The Motion was put and agreed to.

BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, 1884, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Risley moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884.

He said:—"Mr. President, in moving for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Bengal Municipal Act III of 1884, I will endeavour to explain, as briefly as possible, why it has been thought necessary to amend that Act, and in what manner and on what lines the amending Bill has been drawn up. The first draft was prepared in January 1892, and was circulated to all Commissioners and Collectors of districts, with the request that they would consult all Chairmen of Municipalities and Municipal Commissioners as to its provisions. In reply to this circular, we have received a great mass of official and non-official opinion, and have taken advantage of the suggestions thus made to revise the draft in several important details. The Bill which I now ask leave to introduce is, I regret to say, rather a long one. It contains 57 sections, and deals with a number of details through which the Council would find it tedious to follow me. All of these points are explained section by section in the Statement of Objects and Reasons which, with the Bill itself, will I trust shortly be in the hands of Honourable Members. On the present occasion I do not propose to trouble the Council with anything more formidable than a running commentary on the Statement of Objects and Reasons, taking up and explaining the more important sections at greater length and in more popular language than would be appropriate to that quasi-legal document.

"In the first place, I have to answer the obvious question, why should the Act be amended at all? To change the law is no light matter at any time, least of all when the statute to be dealt with extends to 367 sections, and is concerned with the mass of minute administrative detail of which municipal business is everywhere made up. In the present instance, the reasons for amendment are, I submit, convincing. In a judgment delivered on the 24th March 1891, a Divisional Bench of the Calcutta High Court held on technical grounds that none of the provisions of Part VI of the present Municipal Act were in force in the town of Kushtea. The Hon'ble Judges added that so far as they could see none of those provisions were in force in any municipality in Bengal, unless they had been specially extended under Act III of 1884. They considered the matter to be of such importance that they directed a copy to be sent to the Government of Bengal. Now, Part VI contains a number of what are called special regulations dealing with privies, drains and excavations, obstructions and encroachments on roads, building regulations, sanitary measures affecting blocks of huts, sale of food, drink and drugs, burial and burning grounds, and certain offensive and dangerous trades, such as tanneries, slaughter-houses, kerosine depôts, and the like. To all or most municipalities of any standing the corresponding Sanitary sections, which formed Part VII of Bengal Act V of 1876, the old Municipal Act, had long ago been extended by notification, and the legislators who framed Act III of 1884 took infinite pains to provide in section 2 of the Act that every rule, bye-law, notification and assessment and other work done under the old Act should be valid under the new Act. The Law Officers of the Bengal Government held that this section was amply sufficient to maintain in force the notification which extended this portion of the old Act. The High Court judgment, however, overruled this opinion, and held that the framers of the new Act had not succeeded in carrying out their obvious intention by the words they used. The Honourable Judges thus created a sort of vacuum in respect of these essential provisions. To fill this vacuum two courses were open—a short and simple one, and a long and cumbrous one. The simplest one was to amend the Act by using words so clear and definite that no Court could hold they did not carry out the intention of the Government. The alternative would have been to issue fresh notifications under the existing Act for all the municipalities affected by the judgment, and thus to put things straight without any change in the law. But in order to attain this end, the Commissioners of each municipality concerned would have to convene a special meeting, and pass a Resolution applying to the Government for the extension of the Part in question. The Local Government would thereupon make an order accordingly. This order would have to be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and within fifteen days of such publication to be posted up and published by beat of drum in the municipalities concerned, and the Commissioners would have to fix a date on which it should take effect. Having regard to the amount of trouble and correspondence that would have been caused by setting this complicated machinery in action all over the country, it was thought that the simplest means of attaining the end in view was also likely to be the best, and it was accordingly decided to amend the Act.

"There were other reasons for adopting this solution of the difficulty. In the eight years during which Act III of 1884 has been in force, municipal administration has developed in several directions, and is no longer the simple matter that it was. All over the world the Goddess of Health, the newly-born science of sanitation, is beginning to assert herself, and is laying every day heavier burthens on those who are responsible for the management of towns. Like the Sibyl of the Roman legend, she constantly raises her demands, but unlike her, I regret to say, she shows no disposition to burn any of her books. On the contrary, the mass of sanitary literature is continually growing, and very dreary literature it is. Well, as I said, this movement in favour of sanitation is going on everywhere; and Bengal, which people in Europe are apt to look upon as a centre for the manufacture and distribution of cholera, cannot expect to stand aloof from it. Our municipalities have in the main—longo intervallo it may be—to follow the lead of municipal authorities in England, who, I need hardly say, are ruled with a rod of iron by the sanitarians of the Local Government Board. Looked at from this point of view—from the standpoint of modern sanitary notions—it must be admitted that the Act of 1884 is rather primitive. An analysis of that Act will show that it contains provisions belonging to two different types, one may almost say two different eras. What may be called its constitutional provisions—the sections dealing with election and so forth—are very advanced and modern. They were introduced in 1884 with the current of new ideas then prevailing. But its sanitary provisions are comparatively antiquated; they date for the most part from 1876, or even earlier than that; they belong to the stone age of municipal legislation.

"Now, in order to enable our municipalities to march with the times and to meet those enlarged demands of the Goddess of Health which I have referred to, it becomes necessary, in the first place, to enlarge their powers. In drafting provisions with this object, we have been mainly concerned with the duty of altering any item in which our own Act has been proved to be inefficient or to operate very narrowly; but as to the form in which our emendations are recast, we have taken as an example the most modern piece of Indian municipal legislation—the Punjab Municipal Act of 1891. That, I submit, is the natural and the right thing to do. I remember having seen some criticism on the Bill, which reflected on our action in this respect, and said or implied—I cannot recall the exact words—that in taking a Punjab Act as our model we were trying an advanced Province by the standard of a backward Province, and so forth. That is a complete mistake. Whether the Punjab is more or less advanced than Bengal in the essential characteristic of city life would be hard to decide, but it may safely be asserted that there is no such difference as to lead the legislature to provide the Punjab with a rougher and less perfect instrument for conducting Municipal government than should be provided for Bengal, and, as a matter of fact, a perusal of the Punjab Act will show that its clauses embody experience gathered from all Provinces, and are, or were, till the present Bill was drafted, the most advanced specimen of legislation on the subject. In referring to the Punjab Act, therefore, as a model to be followed in shaping the municipal law of the growing towns of Bengal, we are simply referring to the best model that is available in India. We shall give our municipalities the opportunity of adopting the legal provisions which are believed to be suitable for the most highly developed type of an Asiatic town, which has to be swept and garnished in accordance with Western sanitary ideas adapted to Eastern conditions. It will rest with the Commissioners to apply these provisions according to their lights.

"I am not at all prepared to say that the Bill which is to be laid before the Council exhausts the possible applications of this principle. We have borrowed and adapted a good deal from the Punjab Act, that is to say, from the conduct and experience of all India, as well as from examples of shortcomings at home. It will be for the Select Committee and for public opinion to say whether more should not be borrowed from that experience, or from the lessons taught by the working of the existing Act in Bengal. I will sketch briefly the main features of the changes proposed. It has on several occasions been brought to the notice of Government that the existing building regulations are inadequate and unsatisfactory, and that they do not confer sufficient power on the Municipal Commissioners. The sections adopted from the Punjab Act seem to meet what is a real want in many Bengal towns. It is a matter for regret that the criticisms received on these sections do not go into their possible working as minutely as might have been wished, and I must repeat here the hope expressed in the circular letter issued with the first draft of the Bill, that the provisions now suggested, which have meanwhile undergone some revision, will receive careful examination from all Municipal Commissioners. To one form of criticism I wish to say a word of reply. It is alleged, in curious contrast to the opposite line of argument already noticed, that these sections are too advanced for Bengal towns and will not be brought into operation. Now it is no doubt the case that what passes for a town in Bengal is usually a rather mixed kind of product—half town, half village. But almost all Bengal towns have grown up on the nucleus of what is frequently called a chauk—a street or group of streets of closely packed masonry buildings—and as time goes on the tendency is for the chauk to expand and for masonry houses to multiply in other parts of the town. For this chauk and its precincts the provisions in question are already suitable and necessary, and the area of their application will go on constantly expanding.

"Another useful provision, which has been adapted from the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, is section 14, which enables Municipalities to combine with each other, and with other local bodies, such as District Boards, Local Boards and Cantonment Committees, for any purpose in which they are jointly interested. Such purpose might either be a matter of every-day administration, like the registration of carts or the disposal of rubbish, or might be a larger scheme, such as a project for water-supply or drainage. I believe that the practical advantages derivable from this section will be illustrated, as soon as the Bill becomes law, in the groups of Suburban Municipalities on either bank of the Hooghly. These Municipalities have long suffered from the want of pure water and good drainage; they have experienced serious outbreaks of cholera; they have felt the more deadly, though less sudden, ravages of malarial fever, and yet through want of the requisite legal machinery they have been unable to combine to carry out the only measures likely to relieve their sufferings.

"In the same area—the suburban area lying round about Calcutta and Howrah—the crowded state of the huts used as lodging-houses by the poorer classes, particularly by day-labourers and mill operatives, has been found to be a source of danger to the public health. A section has therefore been inserted empowering the Commissioners to prevent overcrowding in such lodging-houses, and to enforce provision for a proper water-supply, for latrine accommodation, and for the disposal of refuse.

"Another section, framed with a sanitary object in view, enables the Commissioners by public notice to prohibit the use of the water in any well, tank, or other place which they consider likely to engender or cause the spread of any dangerous disease. This section has been received with almost unanimous approval, and is objected to by only one officer on the ground that it is contrary to the ordinary principles of legislation to punish a man for doing that which can only harm himself. This, however, seems to miss the point, both of this particular provision and of most modern sanitary legislation. All prohibitions, such as that now in question, proceed on the assumption that the consequences of the action prohibited are not limited to the individual who does it, but extend also to his neighbours, and it is this assumption alone that justifies interference. In fact the section empowering the Commissioners to stop people using water, the use of which may spread disease, rests on exactly the same principle as certain other sections enabling them to control the storage of kerosine and inflammable oils, and to search for oil stored in contravention of such orders. In both cases the act of an individual may do injury to his neighbours. He drinks bad water and gets a disease, which other people catch; he stores kerosine carelessly; his house takes fire, and the fire spreads to the houses in the same street. In either case the law intervenes to save others from the consequences of his neglect.

"The important question of the extinction and prevention of fire—a matter which comes home with considerable force to the residents of most Bengal towns—is disposed of by Act III of 1884 in half-a-dozen words. Section 69 enables the Commissioners to maintain a fire-brigade: that is all. Of the powers of the members of the fire-brigade and of the possible liabilities arising from their action nothing is said, nor does there appear to be any power taken in the Act to fill this gap in its provisions by rules or bye-laws. The draft sections on this subject which have been adapted from the Punjab Act have been received with general approval by officials and Municipal Commissioners. The only adverse opinion is that of a single official who thinks that the police could deal with the fires more efficiently, the cost of the necessary implements being paid by the municipality. This officer adds that his experience of municipal fire-engines is that they are either out of order when a fire occurs, or arrive too late to be of any use, and suggests that the question might be better dealt with by recasting the Calcutta Fire-Brigade Act. There is no doubt an element of truth in what is said of the efficiency of Mofussil Fire-Brigades. I knew of a Fire-Brigade in a certain municipality which was superbly organized, so far at least as outward appearances were concerned. All the members of the force had gorgeous uniforms, they were commanded by a Major-General, they had a Lieutenant-Colonel, a Major, and a Captain, and the people of the next District, who looked on with envy, said the Brigade consisted of nothing but officers. They used to drill regularly, and work their engines at every drill, but the place was very dry, and there was not water enough for ordinary drills. So they did without. When at last their opportunity came, and a fire broke out in the bazar, the engines were in excellent time, and the firemen were all there; they pumped away with extreme vigour but without the smallest result; the hose though swollen to alarming dimensions produced the feeblest dribble, hardly enough to quench a fire in Lilliput. After a bit the hose burst, and scattered in all directions a huge family of rats of all sizes who had found it a comfortable home in its dry state, but had been drowned incontinently directly the pumping began; their bodies had choked the nozzle, and the pressure had burst the hose. That illustrates one aspect of the Fire-Brigade question, an aspect which I hope is not likely to recur. At the same time, it does not follow that the suggestion to recast the Calcutta Fire-Brigade Act for Mofussil use is a practicable suggestion. I trust that, after considering the draft sections, which have been adapted from the Punjab Municipal Act, the Council will be of opinion that they offer a reasonable solution of the question.

"These are the chief among what may be called the executive or administrative provisions of the Bill. They add materially to the powers of the Commissioners, and may perhaps tend indirectly to enhance their financial liabilities. In any case, whether these sections have that effect or not, there can be no question that the ideas of the day on the subject of Municipal administration make generally for higher expenditure. Municipalities are required to do more, and to spend more money on doing it, than was the case twenty years ago. Larger establishments, more expensive plant, more elaborate methods are the order of the day. How are all these things to be provided? Fresh forms of Municipal taxation are, I submit, hardly to be thought of, and no attempts in this direction will be found in the Bill. But what may be done and, I submit, ought to be done without delay is to make the existing methods of taxation more productive. In many, if not most, Municipalities the work of assessment, at no time an easy matter, has become too difficult and too complicated for the Commissioners to deal with adequately. We have got to the point which was reached in England in 1836, when it was found that the system under which the Vestry appointed members to form a Committee and revise the rate and the valuation on which it was levied 'seldom produced a satisfactory result to the parish.' The Parochial Assessment Act was passed expressly with the object of redressing 'the irregular and unequal mode in which the poor-rate (on which English municipal taxation is based) was assessed in a great part of the country,' and to remedy 'the many abuses and irregularities which prevailed in the imposition of this tax.' These words, taken from a standard English work on parochial assessment, are, I submit, entirely applicable to the state of things which prevails in Bengal Municipalities. The system usually adopted of dividing the area to be dealt with among a number of Commissioners is bound to bring about an unequal incidence of taxation, and the Government has knowledge of numerous cases where it has done so. The fact is, that whether the tax on holdings or the tax on persons is in force, it is a very difficult task to make a good assessment of a Bengal Municipality, and assuredly the worst possible means of doing it is to put it in commission, as it were, among a number of gentlemen not specially qualified for the purpose. No one would dream of making the road cess assessment of a district on such a system, but as between cess valuations and Municipal valuations, I am not at all sure that the former is not the easier of the two. The data for rating the cess are obtained by fixed rules, and under legal sanction, they are on the whole moderately certain, and once the returns have been got in and verified, the rest of the process is mainly mechanical. In municipal matters, on the other hand, everything is uncertain: the law gives the vaguest of rules, and you need to be something of an expert to apply those to the facts in hand. How is a man with no special experience of such matters to ascertain the annual value of a particular holding which does not happen to be let, or to estimate the income—for that is what the personal tax really comes to—of so many dwellers in so many mud huts? Then consider the influences that are brought to bear, the constant solicitations the unfortunate assessing Commissioner is subjected to, frequently by his own constituents, if he is assessing his own ward, the closely personal character of the whole thing, the pressure, the intrigue, the liability to error all round, and I really think it is wonderful that Municipal assessments are not much worse than they are.

"The flaws in our present system being then much the same as those which were observed in the English system fifty years ago, we propose to adopt the same remedy. The new assessment sections, which have been drafted as far as possible on the lines of the English law, provide that all assessments shall be made by a salaried assessor appointed by the Municipal Commissioners and working under their authority. The Commissioners will fix the rate at which taxation shall be levied, and the assessor will determine the valuation. That is to say, where the tax on holdings is in force, the assessor will determine the annual value of each holding, and where the tax on persons prevails, he will fix the assessable income of each person occupying a holding. Appeals from the assessor's decisions will be heard by three Municipal Commissioners appointed at a meeting. Provisions have been added, borrowed from the English law on the subject of parochial rating, which entitle the assessor to be heard, or to state his opinion, in every appeal, and lay down that the valuation made, or opinion stated by him, shall be deemed to be right unless it is proved to be wrong.

"I venture to hope that these provisions, which differ materially from those embodied in the draft Bill, will be favourably received by most municipal bodies. They will relieve the Commissioners of the details of what is generally admitted to be an irksome and unpleasant duty, without depriving them of the executive control and appellate jurisdiction which have hitherto belonged to them. They will also, I believe, equalise the burthen of municipal taxation by distributing it more fairly, while by getting full value out of the assessments they will add materially to the income available for municipal purposes. The idea is not a new one. Under the former law, and, I believe, also under this, assessments of complete municipalities have occasionally been made by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman, who did the work of a salaried assessor, and such assessments are admitted to have been the best on record. In recent times and in some Municipalities salaried assessors have also been employed, I understand, with considerable success, though their status under the present law is an uncertain one.

"I have only to add that power has been taken to regulate the conditions of appointment by rule so as to keep the cost to the Municipalities as low as possible. It is, of course, not intended that every Municipality should have a separate assessor. One assessor will be able to do the work of a number of Municipalities, and will be paid by contributions in proportion to the income assessed, or on some such system. But, obviously, the area to which he will be appointed may differ in different parts of the country. In some places, one assessor to a division will be sufficient; in others, like the 24-Parganas, only experience will show whether one man can do the work of a district. In any case it is believed that the cost to individual Municipalities will be trifling, and will be amply recouped by the increased income which is likely to be realised.

"Under the head of Water-supply certain amendments have been introduced, based partly on the North-Western Provinces Water-supply Act of 1891, and partly on some valuable suggestions made by Rai Nalinaksha Basu Bahadur, Chairman of the Burdwan Municipality, whose opinion on this subject carries very great weight. In section 279 of the Act, we propose to raise the percentage on annual value from 6 to 7½ per cent., to abolish the distinction between streets supplied with water and streets not supplied, and to substitute for it provisions modelled on those of section 33 of the North-Western Provinces Water-Works Act of 1891, which exempts from water-rate houses or lands situated beyond a certain radius to be fixed by the Local Government for each Municipality from the nearest standpipe; land used exclusively for agriculture; lands or houses specially exempted by the Municipality with the approval of Government; and any house unoccupied for three consecutive months. At the same gentleman's suggestion it is also proposed to limit the right to house connexions accorded in section 290 (which was taken from the Calcutta Municipal Act of 1876) by substituting for it a section based on section 158 of the present Calcutta Municipal Act. Experience has shown that unrestricted house connexions mean an incalculable waste of water, and that the grant of this privilege may so raise the cost of particular projects for water-supply as to place them wholly beyond the means of the municipalities concerned. Here, as in so many administrative schemes, one is reminded of the French saying, for which oddly enough we have no equivalent in English, le mieux est toujours l'ennemi du bien. People want too much and they get nothing. Surely pure water without house connexions is better than impure water, and a law which is intended to apply to places of very various circumstances should recognise the fact that all of them cannot afford the same standard of conveniences.

"Finally, I have a few words to say about three sections, regarding which the intentions of the Government seem to have been somewhat misunderstood. The first of these is section 3, amending section 9 of the present Act. Section 9 of the Act runs as follows:—

Variation of limits and power to withdraw from operation of Act.

The Local Government may, on the recommendation of the Commissioners at a meeting, by a like notification, at any time vary the limits of any Municipality or sub-divide any Municipality into two or more Municipalities, or withdraw any town, village or land from the operation of this Act, or alter the number of the Commissioners of such Municipality.

"The condition about the recommendation of the Commissioners was introduced in 1884, no special reason being given. In practice the change has been found inconvenient. Several cases have been reported in which purely rural tracts have been included within the boundaries of municipalities, and enquiry has shown that in these cases the tests prescribed by section 10 of the Act for determining whether a particular place can properly be made a Municipality were almost wholly inapplicable. Whether a mistake was made in the first instance, or whether the local circumstances have changed, so that what may have looked like an urban area some years ago has now fallen back into a more primitive condition, it is impossible to say. But there can be no question as to the fact that the jurisdiction of several of the smaller municipalities requires revision in the direction indicated, and that the clause requiring the Commissioners themselves to take the initiative is a serious obstacle to such revision. It is natural enough that the Commissioners should be reluctant to recommend a course, the immediate result of which would be to reduce their income without producing a corresponding decrease in their expenditure, for the rural portions of a municipality are necessarily those upon which least municipal money is spent, and the allegation of the persons who are aggrieved by the retention of such places within the municipality is that no money is spent on them at all. In justice to the poorer classes—raiyats, agricultural labourers, fishermen, and the like—from whom these protests have been received, it is essential that some change in the law should be made. In the first draft of the Bill it was proposed simply to strike out the words 'on the recommendation of the Commissioners at a meeting,' and thus to leave this matter, and the other cognate points touched upon in the section, to the discretion of the Government. A section has now been introduced, modelled on sections 194 and 195 of the Punjab Act, which provides that, when the Government intends to do any of the things which it is empowered to do by section 9, it shall notify its intention in the Gazette locally, and shall receive and consider objections. That, I submit, is a fair solution of the difficulty. It reserves to the Government the power which is reserved to it in every other province, and which in England is exercised by the Local Government Board, and it gives all classes of residents full opportunity of making their wishes felt. I may add that a defect in the existing Act has been cured by taking power to unite two or more Municipalities into one.

"There is another proposal which may be briefly noticed. Under the Act as it stands, the original election of a Chairman requires the sanction of Government, but by a curious omission, an ad interim election under section 27 does not. It has been thought necessary to supply this omission by providing that an intermediate election of a Chairman shall be subject to the same conditions as an original election. Again, under the present law, the election of a Vice-Chairman does not need the approval of Government, and it is proposed in future to impose this condition. The reason for making the change is that the duties of Vice-Chairman are almost as important as those of the Chairman, and it seems advisable that Government should be placed in a position to exercise an effective influence in the matter. This is more particularly necessary in certain towns, where local magnates, men of old family and high position in the neighbourhood, have offered themselves for election to the post of Chairman. It is in many ways a great advantage to the municipalities concerned to have such men at their head, but as a rule they cannot be expected to exercise the same amount of minute personal supervision as an ordinary Chairman; and in such cases therefore the duties of the Vice-Chairman come to be of special importance and require to be subject to special control.

"One section more, and I shall have done. Under the present law, the Government has power to appoint the Chairman in those Municipalities which are entered in the second schedule. It can remove Municipalities from that schedule, and thereby surrender the right of appointing the Chairman, but it cannot, as the law now stands, add the name of a Municipality to that schedule, unless it is newly created, or has been superseded under section 65. The Bill proposes to amend section 23, so as to take this power. Opinions on the subject are numerically very even. About 58 opinions are in favour of the change, and about 60 are against it. The 58 consists of 38 officials and 20 Municipalities: the 60 is made up of 4 officials and 56 Municipalities. We may say then, roughly, that all the officials are for it, and three-fourths of the Municipalities are against it. Further analysis would be tedious. It is clear, however, from the opinions of the Municipalities which are opposed to the change, that they contemplate the section being used in a manner quite alien to the spirit in which it has been conceived. They seem to think that Government will at once set to work, and get rid of non-official Chairmen all over the country.

"I need hardly assure the Council that nothing could be further from the intentions of Government than to do anything of the kind. A non-official Chairman, who is even moderately efficient, is far too valuable to the Government for there to be any question of replacing him by an official. That of itself is a sufficient answer to the apprehensions of the Municipal dissentients. But I will go further still. I wish to make it absolutely plain that the change in this section proceeds, not from any wish to make sweeping changes, but from the desire to be provided with the means of meeting the happily unfrequent case of municipal mal-administration by some less stringent method than that of superseding the Commissioners altogether. Every now and then it happens in Bengal, as it happens in England, and in other countries, where Local Government by corporations is in force, that a municipality gets its affairs into a regular mess. These things happen gradually; no one can foresee exactly when and where they are going to happen, and they are possibly not the fault of the body of Commissioners actually in power when the matter comes to notice. Something has to be done, and the obvious and reasonable thing to do is to give the Commissioners an administrative expert in the form of an official Chairman to put their affairs straight. A deus ex machina is wanted for a particular emergency, and the Government ought to have the power to provide one. For the reasons I have already mentioned, it is not likely to abuse the power. An official Chairman is an expensive luxury where the Municipalities cannot be required to contribute to his pay. The interest of the Government, its solid, financial interest, is all on the side of having non-official Chairmen. If it pays an expensive official to do its work, it likes to have full value for its money; it wants all his time, and nothing is further from its intentions than to give half, or a quarter, or even a smaller fraction of it to the Local Municipality.

"These, Sir, I think may fairly be described as the most important sections of the Bill, which I ask leave to introduce."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 16th July, 1892.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE LEGAL AFFAIRS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1891-92.

No. 2809J.

RESOLUTION.

JUDICIAL.

Dated Darjeeling, the 27th June 1892.

READ—

The Report on the Legal Affairs of the Government of Bengal for the year 1891-92.

Read also—

The Reports for the two preceding years, and the orders of Government thereon.

The result of civil litigation in which Government was concerned during 1891-92 is summarised in the following paragraphs which are abstracted from the Legal Remembrancer's Report.

2. The two appeal cases, in one of which the Secretary of State was appellant, and in the other respondent, which were pending before the Privy Council at the close of the year 1890-91, were dismissed during the year under review. A third case, which was remanded by the Privy Council to the Court of first instance for the trial of certain issues, has come back to the High Court, and the papers will shortly be transmitted to England. Only one fresh appeal case (to which the Court of Wards is a party) has been admitted by the Council during the year.

3. The results of Government litigation in the Civil Courts in Bengal during 1891-92 are compared with those of the two preceding years in the following table:—

	Original cases.			Appeals. Before High Court.			Appeals. Before Lower Courts.			Total.

NOTE.—The figures for 1891-92 do not include those for the district of Bhagalpur, which were not received when the Legal Remembrancer's report was written

4. These figures are extremely unsatisfactory, both as regards the actual unsuccess of Government litigation, and as compared with the results of previous years. It is, however, fairer to exclude land acquisition cases in which only the amount of compensation, and not any principle of law or equity, is involved. Leaving these out of consideration, the percentage of original cases decided in favour of Government was 72 against 76·9 in 1890-91 and 81·5 in 1889-90. Of the 13 appeals decided by the High Court against Government during the past year, three were land acquisition cases but omitting these there is still a very serious decrease in the percentage of suits decided in favour of Government. The information given in the Legal Remembrancer's report regarding the remaining ten unsuccessful appeal cases in the High Court is very meagre, and regarding the seven appeal cases before Lower Courts, in which Government was unsuccessful, no information at all is given. The result of Government litigation is in almost every detail worse than in the two preceding years, and this fact creates the impression that Government is not well advised by its experts.

5. The following statement shows the result of the litigation in which the Court of Wards was concerned during the past year, as compared with the two previous years:—

NOTE.—The figures for 1891-92 do not include those of certain estates in the districts of Dacca, Mymensingh Bhagalpur and Purnea.

6. The great increase in the number of cases decided during 1891-92 over the figures for the two previous years is said to be mainly due to the institution of a large number of rent suits on behalf of the Burdwan Raj in the Burdwan and Hooghly districts. Of 18 unsuccessful appeals in the Lower Courts five were conducted with the sanction and advice of the Legal Remembrancer's Office; the remainder, which were all rent suits and settlement appeals, were conducted by the Managers with the advice of the local officers. Out of 117 original cases which were decided against the Court of Wards, 104 were not reported to the Legal Remembrancer. Only one of these suits, viz., that of Kameswar Prasad versus Raja Bhiman Narayan and the Deo Raj Estate for the recovery of Rs. 32,106, is reported to have been of any importance. This case was decided in favour of the plaintiff, subject to the provisions of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, and both parties have appealed against the decision.

7. The subjoined table shows the amounts recovered under decrees in favour of Government during the year 1891-92 and the two preceding years—

	1889 90	1890 91.	1891 92.
	Rs	Rs.	Rs
Amount under realization ...	55,247	61,231	63,648
Amount realized during the year	11,659	14,790	30,332
Percentage of recovery ...	21·1	24 1	47 7

This shows a considerable improvement both in the actual amounts realized and in the proportion of realizations to outstandings. About Rs. 2,500 were remitted during 1891-92, and, under the orders of Government, execution proceedings against one Ashutosh Ghosh, from whom upwards of Rs. 5,400 was due on account of costs in a suit, were abandoned.

8. The figures below represent the amount recovered on account of Wards' Estates during the year as compared with the two preceding years:—

	1889 90	1890 91	1891 92
	Rs	Rs	Rs.
Amount under realization ..	11,74,880	11,92,016	10,95,704
Amount realized during the year	2,15,720	1,54,504	2,30,997
Percentage of recovery	18 3	13	21

Here also there was an improvement in the amount and proportion of realizations, but nothing could really be worse than the large outstandings which are shown to exist in this department in almost every estate. Thus in the Burdwan Raj Estate, out of Rs. 2,26,571 due to the estate, Rs. 80,892 have been remitted, and a large portion of the balance is said to be irrecoverable. In the Tikari Estate, out of Rs. 1,62,023 which have been decreed, more than Rs. 1,26,000 appear to be irrecoverable. In the Dighaputia Estate Rs. 50,000 are irrecoverable out of Rs. 1,18,380. In the Deo Kumar and Dharm Kumar Estate, the whole amount due, Rs. 45,458, is said to be irrecoverable. In the Dakhin Shahbazpur Estate Rs 22,812, out of Rs. 26,469, are irrecoverable. Such results would seem to show that in these Court of Wards cases the time of the officials must have been wasted, and large sums of money spent in obtaining decrees which were mere waste paper. The attention of the Board of Revenue will be invited to this matter.

9. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to say that he cannot consider the present report to be a satisfactory one, either as to the facts it narrates, or as to the manner in which these facts are presented. As regards the actual facts of litigation, the only satisfactory feature in the report is the improvement in the realization of Government decrees mentioned in paragraph 7. As regards the mode in which the information is presented, Sir Charles Elliott begs that the Legal Remembrancer will in future be guided by three principles.

First, in appeal cases, in which Government is the respondent, the fact that the Government claim has been upheld in a Lower Court raises the presumption that it was a reasonable claim, but where Government is appellant and is unsuccessful, there is primâ facie reason to hold that the judgment of the Lower Court was right, that the Government claim was untenable, and that Government was ill-advised in appealing. His Honour desires that in future reports cases of this class may be specified, and a brief account given of each case, as well as information as to what officer advised the appeal and on what grounds. These orders apply also to cases in which the Court of Wards is concerned.

The second principle is that in reporting the result of suits some distinction should be made between unfavourable decisions based on equitable and on technical grounds. When Government fails on purely technical grounds, no administrative discredit is incurred; but it is discreditable to the administration that Government should have sued on any claim in which failure on equitable grounds actually occurs, or was antecedently probable, and it is desirable that such cases should be the subject of a special narrative.

10. In the third place the Lieutenant-Governor desires to point out that the Legal Remembrancer's report should be of such a nature that it may with advantage be circulated to officials in different departments of Government, in order to make known to them the effect of judicial decisions which ought to govern their conduct in matters in which they have gone, or are liable to go, astray. The present report is, however, useless for any such purpose. For instance, it is stated in paragraph 18 that a large number of cases in which Government was an unsuccessful defendant were brought against the Eastern Bengal State Railway to recover damages for loss of goods sent by the Railway. If this litigation showed that there was any tendency on the part of the Railway authorities to refuse compensation unjustly or harshly, and this fact had been clearly brought out in the report, the important points of the cases being noted, the report might have been used as the medium of inculcating a lesson, and showing what view the Courts take of such cases. But no such information is given, and the mere recital of the fact that the cases were dismissed is of no use. Again, in paragraph 11 it is said that the High Court gave damages to a person who sued to make the same Railway Administration liable for the loss of certain coins and notes, though no insurance fee was paid, and the clerk had no authority to accept such articles. Stated in this bald way, the judgment would seem opposed to section 75 of the Railway Act IX of 1890, and it is very desirable that the principle involved in the judgment should be known to this railway in particular, and also to all other railways. The same remarks apply to the salt cases referred to in paragraph 10, and the limitation cases in paragraphs 12 and 13. In all these cases, Government officers appear to have taken a view of the law which was not approved by the High Court, and unless the doctrine laid down by that Court is made known to them, and to others similarly situated, they are likely to repeat their error. There is no more convenient vehicle for making these matters generally known than the Legal Remembrancer's report, if it is drawn up in accordance with these suggestions.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDEN, CALCUTTA, FOR THE YEAR 1891-92.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—MISCELLANEOUS.

READ—

The Annual Report of the Royal Botanic Garden, Calcutta, for the year 1891-92.

The report shows that the year has been one of great activity as regards outdoor operations, and that much has been done to improve the condition of the driving roads in the garden, which were referred to in last year's report as requiring attention. The season was abnormally dry; and though in the conservatories but little damage was done, it is to be regretted that out of doors, despite the exertions of the garden staff, many casualties occurred especially among the finer and rarer palms Valuable additions were made to the Herbarium, among which may be mentioned a rich collection of plants from Kew, a beautiful collection of Australian plants from Baron Von Müller, and collections from the north-west Himalayas, Jaunsar-Bihár, Dehra Dun, the Malay Peninsula, North Canara, Sindh, Chota Nagpur, Khasia Hills and Manipur, Upper Burmah and Assam, the Duars, Independent Sikkim and Laccadive Archipelago. To the contributors of these specimens, Messrs. Lace, Gamble, Ridley, Peal, Heawood, Talbot, General Sir H. Collett, Captain Fulton, and Drs. Waddell, Cooke, Wood and Alcock, the thanks of Government are due. Dr. Prain visited the Andaman Islands, Parasnath, and the Khasia-Jaintia Hills; and his botanical explorations, as well as those of Collectors employed by the Calcutta garden, have added some valuable collections During the year the third volume of the garden annals was issued, and the bulk of the material for the fourth volume, containing a monograph by Dr. King on the important family of Anona ea was prepared. Both Dr. King and Dr. Prain continued to contribute valuable papers on botanical subjects to the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal.

2. The Lloyd Botanic Garden in Darjeeling was visited in July last by flights of locusts, which caused at the time considerable damage to the plants. The mischief was, however, speedily repaired, and the garden is now reported to be in excellent order.

3. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are again due to Dr. King, the Superintendent, and Dr. Prain, the Curator of the Herbarium, for their successful administration of the garden during the year.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, and of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India, in the Revenue and Agricultural Department, for information.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Superintendent, Royal Botanic Garden, for information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. H. RISLEY,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 21G., dated Sibpur, the 11th May 1892.

From—SURGEON D. PRAIN, M.B., F.R.S.E., Acting Superintendent, Royal Botanic Garden, Calcutta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith the one hundred and fifth Annual Report of the Royal Botanic Garden.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC GARDEN, CALCUTTA, FOR THE YEAR 1891-92.

THE year under review has been one of great activity as regards outdoor operations. Another supplementary grant having been allotted by Government for the purpose of improving the condition of those driving roads adverted to in the Annual Report for 1890-91 as still in need of alteration, the attention of the outdoor staff has been mainly devoted to roadwork in the Palmetum, where it has been possible to replace the old path that connected the Howrah gate and the College gate entrances of the garden by a good driving road on a new and proper alignment, and to remake the approach leading from the College gate entrance to Colonel Kyd's monument. The latter undertaking was rendered necessary by the fact that this approach, one of the finest avenues in the garden, and the road that must, after the completion of the new drive along the river bank from Howrah, be the principal means of access to the centre of the garden, could not hitherto, owing to its low level, be used with comfort or even safety during the rains. The necessary alterations have involved a good deal of earth-cutting, and advantage has been taken of this to considerably enhance the appearance of the large Palmetum lake. Much remains to be done to bring the older roads in the garden into the excellent condition of the newer ones that have been aligned by Dr. King, what is chiefly required being the adjustment of their levels to admit of free surface-drainage, and at the same time to obviate scouring during the rains. But none of the work now left to be done is so formidable as that of the past year; practically all the earth-cutting necessary for the roads in the Palmetum at least has been completed. Still further improvements were effected along the river-bank, advantage being taken of the unusually low tides that prevailed during the months of February and March to repair and strengthen places that in ordinary seasons are inaccessible. The conservatories are in a satisfactory condition, and though some of the palms have suffered from the extreme drought of the early part of 1892, it has been possible to bring the plants under their shelter through a trying season with few actual losses to record. The orchid display was by no means equal to that of the last five or six seasons; though the plants commenced flowering very early, and though those that flowered first were even finer than usual, the conditions to which they were subjected during February and March rendered the blossoms of all the later flowering species small and few. Out of doors the abnormal season has proved very trying to many exotics, and though for a time all other work was suspended and the whole garden staff was employed only in watering plants, many casualties have unfortunately occurred, especially among the finer and rarer palms. But though it has been impossible to save all the individuals, it has fortunately been possible by devoting especial care to the stronger ones to preserve alive some representatives of nearly every species in the garden.

2. Economic plants.—The attention of the staff has been as usual largely directed to the cultivation and distribution of plants of economic interest. The chief event of the year under this head has been the introduction of the aloe which yields "sisal hemp" (Agave rigida, var. Sisalana). The Director of the Royal Gardens, Kew, in June 1891 kindly obtained a consignment of plants for the Calcutta Garden from Florida and kept these at Kew till they were strong enough to stand the voyage to Calcutta. The boxes reached Calcutta on 29th October 1891; unfortunately a considerable percentage of the plants died on the way out, and it has been necessary to nurse the survivors carefully before venturing to distribute them. They are now being distributed; as usual in such cases, the garden authorities are being assisted by the Agri-Horticultural Society of India, which heartily co-operates in bringing plants of this kind to the notice of the public and in furthering their distribution especially among the planting community.

3. Herbarium.—The work in this department was of the usual description. Over 19,000 specimens were contributed to the Herbarium during the year from various sources; while the distribution of authentically-named specimens to other herbaria reached the high total of 10,505 sheets. The precise details of these accessions and of the distribution are shown in two of the appended lists. The chief benefactor to the Calcutta Herbarium has again been the Royal Herbarium, Kew, to the Director of which institution the Calcutta one owes a debt that can never be repaid. Baron Von Mueller has again contributed a beautiful collection of Australian plants; the Herbarium has been greatly enriched by further accessions of Tibetan, Chinese, and Mexican specimens; the Saharanpur Herbarium has presented 954 plants from the North-West Himalaya; Mr. J. H. Lace has sent a contribution of 627 specimens from the same region; Mr. J. S. Gamble has sent 256 from Jaunsar-Bihár and Dehra Dun. Mr. H. N. Ridley, Director of the Singapore Garden, has sent 498 specimens from the Malay Peninsula, mainly from the recently explored province of Pahang; General Sir H. Collett, K.C.B., has again befriended the Herbarium by sending some interesting plants from Khasia and Manipur; Dr. L. A. Waddell has contributed some specimens from the more remote valleys of Independent Sikkim; Captain Fulton has sent some specimens from Upper Burma; Mr. S. E. Peal another collection from Upper Assam; Dr. J. J. Wood a very complete collection from Chota Nagpur; Mr. W. A. Talbot another interesting collection from North Canara; Dr. T. Cooke, C.I.E, some interesting specimens from Scinde, and Mr. Heawood a small collection from the neighbourhood of the Sonthal Colony in the Duars. One of the most interesting contributions of the year has been a very carefully made and complete collection of the plants of the little visited Laccadive Archipelago, sent by Dr. Alcock, Surgeon Naturalist of Her Majesty's Indian Marine survey steamer Investigator. The chief recipients of distributed specimens have been the officers in charge of the great national herbaria; in the United Kingdom sets have been presented to the Royal Gardens, Kew, the British Museum, the Royal Botanic Garden, Edinburgh, the Universities of Cambridge and of Aberdeen and Owen's College, Manchester: in India and the East to the Herbaria at Saharanpur; Madras (Government Central Museum); Poona (College of Science); Dehra Dun (Imperial Forest School); Royal Botanic Garden, Peradeniya, Ceylon; Singapore (Botanic Garden); Perak (Government Museum); Penang (Forest Department); Straits Settlements, Royal Botanic Garden, Buitenzorg, Java; University Herbarium, Melbourne, Australia. The chief foreign recipients besides the famous kindred Dutch institution in Java have been the Smithsonian Institution, Washington; the Imperial Gardens, St. Petersburg; the National Botanical Museums in Berlin, Vienna, Paris, Florence, and Leiden; the University Herbaria of Vienna, Utrecht, and Upsala, and the great Herbarium of M. de Candolle at Geneva.

4. Botanical collection.—During the year full advantage was taken of the various opportunities offered for the botanical exploration of the provinces allotted to the Superintendent of the Royal Botanic Garden, Colonel T. Cadell, V.C., Chief Commissioner of the Andamans, whose assistance has already had so often to be acknowledged, having invited Dr. Prain to revisit Port Blair in connection with the botanical exploration of his province, and Dr. King having permitted the visit, Dr. Prain proceeded to Port Blair in March 1891. The station steamer, Her Majesty's Indian Marine steamer Nancowry, having been placed at his disposal by Colonel Cadell, Dr. Prain was enabled to visit and investigate the flora of Narcondam, Barren Island, Little Andaman, Car-Nicobar, and Batti Malv—all these, save Car-Nicobar, being places never before botanically investigated. Mr. E. H. Man has again most kindly superintended the collection of specimens in the neighbourhood of Port Blair by Burmese convicts. In November 1891, Dr. Prain visited Mount Parasnath and made a botanical tour in Chota Nagpur, while in March 1892 he was directed to make a botanical tour in the Khasia and more particularly the Jaintea Hills. This tour was in connection with the botanical survey of Assam and Burma, towards which the Government of India and the local Governments of Burma and Assam give annual grants. In connection with this survey also Mr. Proudlock, Curator of the garden, was sent in February 1892 on a collecting tour to Tenasserim, Tavoy, and Mergui. In Assam two native collectors were at work in the Naga Hills for the greater part of the year; latterly they collected on the Lushai frontier; the recent troubles in this region have unfortunately as yet prevented Mr. McCabe from taking the men into the interior of the Lushai country, and personally supervising their work, as he has most kindly volunteered to do. From Burma, besides the Tenasserim and Mergui collections, other collections have been received from the garden collector, Abdul Hok, who has been at work in the Shan Hills and the Ruby Mine districts; some specimens have also been received from frontier stations under the arrangement mentioned in last year's report as having been kindly made by Dr. Leslie.

5. Publications.—During the year the third volume of the Garden Annals was issued, and the greater part of the fourth volume, which is to consist of a monograph by Dr. King of the difficult and important family of Anonaceæ, has been elaborated. Besides this Dr. King has also continued his series of papers on the Malayan Flora, part 3 (dealing with the natural orders Malvaceæ, Sterculiaceæ, and Tiliaceæ) having been published in the beginning of the year, while part 4 (dealing with Anonaceæ) is, at its close, in the hands of the printer. These papers are published in the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. In the same Journal two descriptive papers—on a new species of Nepeta and on two new species of Glyptopetalum—have been published by Dr. Prain, who has in the same place published the account of the Vegetation of the Coco Group, referred to as in preparation when the last Annual Report was submitted. The Asiatic Society has also published Dr. Prain's account of the botanical results of his visits to Little Andaman and the Nicobars.

6. Library.—Some new books have been purchased; others have been presented to the Library; a good number of old ones have been rebound. Perhaps the most interesting occurrence in connection with the Library has been the acquisition of a portrait of Colonel Robert Kyd. Learning that a portrait of this distinguished soldier was in the possession of the Agri-Horticultural Society, the Curator of the Herbarium, with Dr. King's permission, asked the Society to be allowed to have it copied for the Library of the Royal Botanic Garden. The President and Council having very cordially granted this request, a copy of the original, carefully executed in the Government School of Art, has now been completed, and a portrait of the gentleman who in June 1786 suggested to the Honourable the Board of Directors "the propriety "of establishing a Botanic Garden," and who performed the duties of Honorary Superintendent here from August 1786, when the undertaking was commenced, till his death in 1793—an officer described by the Honourable the Court of Directors in the letter in which, in 1787, they sanctioned the action of the Honourable Board in the previous year, as one "who, by the attention he has "shown to a matter which may one day prove of the greatest benefit to his "constituents and to his country, stands most deservedly high in our esteem "and favour,"—at length hangs in the museum of the institution with which his name is so intimately associated.

7. Interchange of plants and seeds.—The distribution lists attached to this report show that during the year 14,251 plants were received and 46,435 plants were distributed, while of seeds 1,580 packets were received and 2,972 packets were distributed, the recipients both of plants and seeds being, as is usual, nearly all public officers.

8. Lloyd Botanic Garden, Darjeeling.—This garden was throughout the year under the charge of Mr. W. A. Kennedy, and was in excellent condition till 19th July, on which date locusts appeared in huge flights; the day of their arrival happened unfortunately to be a Sunday, when no coolies could be obtained, and the creatures could not be kept flying; much destruction was done, in some parts of the garden nothing but bare soil being left. Thanks, however, to Mr. Kennedy's energy and care, the damage committed was wonderfully quickly remedied, and long before the close of the year the garden had again been brought into a state of excellent order.

9. The sums provided in the budget for the maintenance of the gardens both at Calcutta and Darjeeling were utilized in full; indeed, owing to the Accountant-General having found it necessary to charge directly against the garden budget allotments the cost of and freight on Europe stores sent by the Secretary of State from England, there will be a small technical deficit. This is the first occasion on which these charges have been directly deducted from the budget allotments; as no intimation that the step would be necessary was made by the Accountant-General till 11th March 1892, and as a statement of the full amount of the charges under this head was not communicated by him till 28th April 1892 (after the financial year had closed), it was impossible to apply to Government for an additional grant to meet the charges under this head before the close of the financial year, and equally impossible to regulate the expenditure for the year so as to meet the charges under this head from the existing allotment. The steps necessary for the adjustment of the accounts are now being taken. The revenue of the Darjeeling garden fell short of the estimate by Rs 42—a circumstance altogether to be accounted for by the visitation of locusts; the revenue of the Calcutta garden, on the other hand, somewhat exceeded the estimated receipts for the year.

10. Dr. King, Superintendent of the Garden, was absent on privilege leave for two months and 26 days from 15th July; during his absence the duties of Superintendent were performed by Dr. Prain in addition to his own as Curator of the Herbarium. Mr. R. L. Proudlock has been Curator of the Garden during the year; Mr. G. T. Lane has been Assistant Curator; both officers have worked well, as has the Head Clerk, Babu G. C. Datta, and the office staff under him.

11. Six appendices are attached, which show the issues and receipts of seeds the issues and receipts of plants, and the accession and distribution of herbarium specimens.

RESOLUTION ON THE INLAND EMIGRATION REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1891.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EMIGRATION No 1913.

Calcutta, the 30th June, 1892.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Report of the Superintendent of Emigration, Calcutta, on Inland Emigration for the year 1891.

Recruitment.

1. The Report has been submitted by Dr. R. Macleod, the Officiating Superintendent of Emigration, and, as in other years, it purports to trace the history of contractors' and sardari coolies from the time of their recruitment until their arrival in the labour districts, and to give such facts as are available concerning the movements of free emigrants. As regards recruitment under the Act, the conditions which obtained in the previous year continue generally to prevail, but while the same tendency exists towards an expansion of the contract system and of recruitment by Local Agents and Special Local Agents, the falling off in the number of garden sardars has been more marked. Their number was reduced from 2,385 in 1890 to 1,733 in 1891, and as a consequence, the number of sardari coolies registered fell from 12,382 in 1890 to 10,859 in 1891, showing a diminution of 1,523; on the other hand, the number of emigrants registered on behalf of licensed contractors rose from 5,069 to 8,754. The system under which emigrants who are locally recruited under the free system are made over to the Calcutta contractors appears to have been largely resorted to, and will account for the large proportion of coolies to licensed recruiters, which rose this year to 186 coolies to one recruiter. As regards the recruitment of free coolies, whose numbers this year have largely increased, Government receives every year from the Commissioners of the divisions where coolies are recruited reports relating to the inspection and condition of local depôts for their reception. These reports are separately reviewed, but their generally satisfactory nature may be recorded here. A communication, however, recently received from the Government of India, will entail a reconsideration of the whole subject, and a set of rules for the further supervision of free emigration is under preparation and will in due course be issued.

Statistics.

2. The leading statistics of Inland Emigration are those which show the relative numbers of contract, sardari, and free emigrants who were despatched to Assam, Sylhet, and Cachar during the year under report, as compared with the numbers of each class in the previous year, together with supplementary figures showing the sanitary condition of the emigrants on the different routes by which they travelled. After a perusal of the report submitted for the year 1890, the Lieutenant-Governor observed that these statistics were not clearly brought out, and in July of last year two tables were prescribed, which have been included by the Superintendent in the report under review, but the importance of these tables is obscured by the position which has been assigned to them among numerous figured statements which are not of equal significance; greater prominence should be given to them in future reports. The two tables are intended to show (1) the numbers of coolies who were despatched to Assam, Sylhet, and Cachar from Goalundo and Dhubri, and (2) the numbers of coolies who actually arrived at their destination. This information, in the form required, is given below as far as it can be gathered from the Report, but the figures are still incomplete and in some instances doubtful. The Superintendent should show in future reports comparative figures for two years, side by side:—

Statement of coolies who were embarked.

(c) How many of these arrived at destination is unknown.
(d) Many of the number marked (d) must be included in number marked (c), having disembarked at Dhubri en route to Assam.

Free ...	(a)	(b) 11,458	(b) 3,119	14,577	(f) 17,740	32,317

(a) Number unknown.
(b) Numbers reported by District Officers to have been imported in 1891, and must include many of the numbers marked (c) that were embarked at Goalundo, and those who proceeded independently of inspection at Goalundo.
(f) This number is only approximate, being the number that passed Dhubri, including those who embarked at Goalundo.

As compared with the previous year, the number of contractors' coolies who arrived at their destination was 7,316 in 1891 against 4,272 in 1890, of sardari coolies 10,386 against 11,661, and of free emigrants 32,317 against 21,076; but the accuracy of the last-mentioned total is doubtful, and there is therefore reason to believe that the increase in free emigration is not as great as the figures would seem to show.

Health.

3. The sanitary conditions prevailing in the Calcutta depôts for contractors' coolies were satisfactory throughout the year, and the rates of sickness and of mortality (2·7 per 100 and 2·1 per 1,000, respectively) indicate that a high standard of health was maintained. The actual number of deaths among a total depôt population of 8,474 persons was 18, as compared with four deaths among 5,020 persons in the previous year. The number of coolies despatched from Calcutta was 7,389. There were five desertions on the way to Goalundo, while one death and two desertions at Goalundo complete the number of casualties before the coolies were embarked.

4. The majority of sardari coolies travel straight from the labour districts viâ Naihati to Goalundo. Out of a total of 8,851 (including a child born on the way) despatched from the labour districts by this route, 8,780 were finally embarked at Goalundo, there having been 62 casualties on the way and 9 at Goalundo, though it is not stated in what proportion death and desertion contribute to these totals, which do not compare well with the totals of 12 and 3, respectively, out of 6,766 coolies despatched from the recruiting districts in the year 1890. The remainder of the sardari coolies are taken vid Naihati to Dhubri, where 1,668 were embarked, but the number of casualties on the way to Dhubri is not stated.

5. Statistics of casualties among free coolies before embarkation at Dhubri or Goalundo are not forthcoming, but the new rules about to be issued will enable the authorities to watch the movements of free coolies with greater precision. It has been reported, with reference to a remark in the Resolution of last year, that all free coolies are placed before the Medical Officer at Goalundo for inspection.

6. The number of deaths among the 11,776 contractors' and sardari coolies who embarked at Goalundo in licensed steamers bound for Assam was 38, giving a rate of 3·2 per mille, as against a rate of 2·2 per mille for 7,629 emigrants embarked in the year 1890. There were also 10 deaths among free emigrants, and 16 deaths, including four sardars, among emigrants embarked at Dhubri. The report does not clearly state whether the 10 deaths occurred among the 11,532 free coolies said to have embarked at Goalundo, or among the total number of free coolies embarked at Goalundo and Dhubri. Similarly, as to the 12 deaths, deducting the four sardars, it is not stated whether these occurred among the sardari coolies only, or among both the sardari and free coolies who embarked at Dhubri. It is impossible, therefore, to make out percentages, and the Lieutenant-Governor would be glad if in future reports the casualties of each class of emigrant could be clearly distinguished, the casualties also which occur between Goalundo and Dhubri, and after Dhubri being separately stated. In this connection His Honour observes that the statement on pages 20 and 21 is almost identical with that on pages 29 and 30, and the two statements should be combined in future reports.

7. Of the total number of contractors' and sardari emigrants embarked at Goalundo for Sylhet and Cachar, 4,311 were conveyed in steamers vid Narayanganj up to 30th April 1891, and direct from Goalundo from 1st May 1891, while 74 were despatched in country boats. It is satisfactory to observe a further diminution in the number conveyed in country boats which in 1890 was 138. The number of casualties known to have occurred is 84, including 46 desertions and 38 deaths; but owing to the non-return of batch way-bills relating to 1,404 sardari emigrants, complete information is not available. In 1890 there were 10 casualties, including 3 desertions and 7 deaths among 3,413 coolies embarked; so that, even with the imperfect returns received, the percentage of casualties of either kind is higher than last year. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with pleasure that the Managing Agents of the India General Steam Navigation Company readily carried out His Honour's suggestion for the provision of filtered water on board their Cachar mail boats.

8. No particulars have been received relating to the health of free emigrants bound for Sylhet and Cachar after embarkation at Goalundo, nor is it known in what proportion they were conveyed by steamer or country boats. Apparently a considerable number embark above Goalundo, and travel by country boats: of these we have no statistics except what is derived from the District Officers' reports as to the numbers who arrived.

Administrative.

9. The Superintendent has drawn attention to an abuse in connection with the mixed system of emigration already referred to, under which a cooly is taken as a free cooly to one of the free labour depôts of Raniganj or the 24-Parganas, then registered and made over to a licensed contractor. The Registering Officers of the 24-Parganas and Burdwan are unable to check the descriptive particulars furnished by intending emigrants at such a distance from their homes, and the latter can therefore give any account of themselves they please. As a remedy, the Superintendent proposes to enforce by legal enactment the local registration of every free cooly, but the Lieutenant-Governor, who has lately made a careful inquiry into this point in consequence of some complaints received from Assam, would point out that it is impossible to secure that the man who comes to be registered in a district, say, for instance, Gaya or Chapra, is a resident of that district. The question of initial registration of free emigrants has been thoroughly discussed, and the Government of India has decided not to enforce it. If the evil of mis-description increases to any great extent, it will develop its own remedy. Contractors will find that it will not pay them to accept coolies who are not of the cooly castes, though they may have falsely described themselves as such, and will be on the alert. This will produce a corresponding care on the part of the agents in the recruiting districts, who will take precautions that only those coolies are sent down to Burdwan or the 24 Parganas for registration of whose identity they are tolerably sure.

10. The rules requiring the return of batch way bills were to a great extent disregarded. Of 229 batch way-bills issued in connection with 7,381 contractors' coolies embarked at Goalundo, only 45 covering 1,115 coolies were returned from the labour districts. Of the 1,269 way-bills relating to 8,780 sardari emigrants embarked at Goalundo, only 298, covering 1,951 emigrants, were returned. With reference to the 1,668 sardari coolies embarked at Dhubri, 5 way-bills only, covering 15 coolies, were returned. The Government of Assam will be consulted as to the measures, if any, which should be taken in view of these facts.

Departmental.

11. In the course of the year the duties of the Superintendent of Emigration and Embarkation Agent at Goalundo were transferred from Mr. H. Thompson, Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, to Assistant Surgeon Kissory Lall Banerjee, Medical Inspector of Emigrants at Goalundo.

12. With the exception of two days, Dr. R. Macleod, Health Officer of the Port of Calcutta, officiated as Superintendent of Emigration throughout the year, and the thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to this officer, as also to Brigade-Surgeon R. C. Chandra, who was Medical Inspector of Emigrants throughout the year.

DEPARTMENTAL EXAMINATIONS OF SPECIAL DEPUTY COLLECTORS AND SUB-DEPUTY COLLECTORS.

No. 311A.

RESOLUTION.

APPOINTMENT.

Dated Darjeeling, the 4th July 1892.

READ—

The Rules for the regulation of the Departmental Examination of Assistant Magistrates and others, dated 21st March 1883.

The Resolution of Government, dated 28th April 1881, on the question of reducing the Subordinate Executive Service and establishments in Bengal, and of increasing their efficiency.

The Resolution of Government, dated 24th April 1889, on the recruitment of the Subordinate Executive Service.

The Resolution of Government, dated 25th May 1892, upon the examination of candidates for appointment as Deputy Magistrate-Collectors and Sub-Deputy Collectors.

The question of the admission of Special Deputy Collectors and of Sub-Deputy Collectors to the departmental examinations of junior members of the Covenanted and Provincial Civil Services has been for some time under the consideration of Government, and the Lieutenant-Governor is now pleased to record the following observations and orders on the subject.

2. The old rule in force was that Sub-Deputy Collectors who had entered the service by passing the Native Civil Service Examination were allowed, on the special recommendation of Divisional Commissioners, to appear at the departmental examinations. This arrangement was, however, considered to be open to objection on the ground that it gave undue advantage to Sub-Deputy Collectors, as on their appointment to the grade of Officiating Deputy Collector they were placed above all officers in the officiating grade who had not passed the examinations, and were entitled before them to the substantive appointment of Deputy Collector. The rule was therefore cancelled, under Sir Ashley Eden's orders, in 1879, and it was then decided that Sub-Deputy Collectors should not be allowed to appear at the departmental examinations until they had been promoted to be Officiating Deputy Magistrates.

3. These orders remained in force up to October 1887, when the question arose whether Special Deputy Collectors, a class of officers who had come into existence in the interval, and who occupied an intermediate position between Sub-Deputy Collectors and Deputy Collectors in the regular line of the service, should be allowed to appear or not. It was then ruled by Sir Steuart Bayley that these officers might be allowed, if they wished, to attend the examinations, but that they should be informed that their passing would give them no claim, which they had not otherwise, to appointments in the regular line, and that their being permitted to appear implied no pledge on the part of Government to appoint them to be Officiating Deputy Magistrates.

4. In 1889 a further step was taken. In that year a certain number of Sub-Deputy Collectors, including those who had already been appointed to be Special Deputy Collectors, were selected as eligible for promotion to the grade of Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors. It was decided that these officers should be permitted to appear at the departmental examination if they wished to do so, but that each time the permission was granted they should be told that the mere passing the examination would give them no special claim for promotion. The names of these officers were not to be included in the half-yearly lists of officers liable to appear at the examinations, and they were required to apply for Government permission each time they wished to attend. They were also not allowed to take up both standards at the same time, as Deputy Collectors in the regular line are permitted to do. These orders are now in force.

5. According to the original scheme under which Sub-Deputy Collectors were created on Sir George Campbell's recommendation, they were to be primarily employed as executive revenue officers in the interior of the district on out-door work. In course of time, however, they began to be employed on judicial and criminal work to an increasing extent. This tendency was temporarily checked by the orders of Government in 1881, when it was directed that under no circumstances whatever should Sub-Deputy Collectors, whether vested or not with magisterial powers, be employed in the investigation of criminal cases antecedent to judicial enquiry. The magisterial powers with which the Sub-Deputies were then vested were not withdrawn, but it was declared that such powers would in future be conferred in special cases only on the recommendation of the Commissioner. In point of fact, however, the force of circumstances and the changed conditions of administration have inclined more and more to nullify these orders and to make it necessary to invest Sub-Deputy Collectors with the powers of a Magistrate, and at the present time out of 82 Sub-Deputy Collectors employed in the regular line of the service, only 20 officers have not been invested with criminal powers. Of the remaining 62 officers, six exercise second class, and the remainder third class powers. The necessity of their exercising criminal powers is now admitted on all hands, and the services of Sub-Deputy Collectors are fully recognised by the present Government as forming a valuable adjunct to the judicial administration of the country.

6. The class from which Sub-Deputy Collectors are recruited has also changed its character. They are now admitted into the service by the same examination as that which has been prescribed for admission into the Provincial Service, and the result of the late examination held in March last was to supply the ranks of probationary Sub-Deputy Collectors with highly qualified graduates from the Calcutta University, between whom and the successful probationers for the Provincial Services the smallest possible difference exists. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt that such officers are fitted for much higher duties than those which were entrusted to Sub-Deputy Collectors when that grade of officers was first created. There is no reason why they should not do the same work as Deputy Collectors, and exercise the same powers as they do in respect of criminal, revenue and in some places civil functions. But if they are to exercise second class or first class magisterial powers, they must pass examinations in criminal law. The work they are called upon to do as settlement and revenue officers requires also that they should possess a competent knowledge of revenue law. Whatever consideration, therefore, applies to the use of the departmental examinations as testing the knowledge of an Assistant or Deputy Collector, and of compelling them to familiarise themselves with law and procedure, and the rules laid down by authority for their guidance, appears to apply with equal force to the case of Sub-Deputies who, in the exercise of the duties which it is now intended to assign to them, will constitute a class similar in power and responsibilities to that of Deputy Collectors, but inferior in dignity. It may be added that as a certain proportion of the number of Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors will continue in the future, as they have been in the past, to be recruited from Sub-Deputy Collectors, it is desirable, in order that their services may be fully utilised on promotion, that they should already have passed their departmental examinations in the Sub-Deputy class. The objection which was taken in 1879 to this course is now obviated by the fact that the Special Deputy Collectorships are now well understood to be the grade through which Sub-Deputies must ordinarily pass before they can hope to become Officiating Deputy Collectors in the regular line, and that under orders recently issued a flow of promotion has been secured by the declaration that no one but Sub-Deputies shall be eligible for promotion to be Special Deputy Collectors.

7. In these circumstances the Lieutenant-Governor considered it desirable to lay down as an inflexible rule that all Special Deputy Collectors shall be required to appear at the departmental examinations under the same conditions as Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors of the Provincial Service. If they do not pass these examinations within the time prescribed from the date on which it is made compulsory on them to appear, they must be reduced to their permanent appointments as Sub-Deputies.

8. In regard to Sub-Deputy Collectors, also, it is now laid down that they shall be required to appear at the examinations under similar conditions. In their case, however, the rule can only be enforced in the first instance with considerable exceptions. It cannot be applied to the senior officers of the service, who have reached an age when they cannot be expected to pass examinations. Nor would it be fair to extend the rule to officers who, at the date of the present orders, have been confirmed in their appointments. For such officers, therefore, the examinations will be optional. But it must be distinctly understood by all who are concerned that if they do not succeed in passing at least the lower standard of examination, they will not be eligible for promotion to the grade of Special Deputy Collector. It is optional for them to compete at the examinations or not as they please, but if they have not passed the lower standard they will be passed over for promotion. There is no need, however, to make any exception in the case of officers who have not yet been confirmed in their appointments or are still probationers in the service, and for such officers the Lieutenant-Governor is now pleased to decide that it shall be compulsory on them to appear at the examinations. The following orders are applicable to their case:—They will not be confirmed in any grade higher than that of the fourth grade of Sub-Deputy Collectors until they have passed the lower standard of examination, and they will not be confirmed in any grade higher than the third grade until they have passed the higher standard. Their position in these grades will primarily depend on the date on which they are declared to have passed, and their eligibility for substantive pro tempore promotion will (other things being equal) be regulated accordingly. If they fail to pass their examinations within the prescribed periods, they will be liable to lose their appointments under the same conditions as now apply to Officiating Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors.

9. All Sub-Deputy Collectors, for whom the examinations are now declared to be optional, will be required to send in their names as intending candidates through their District Officer and Commissioner to the Under-Secretary to Government, in the Appointment Department, at least two months before the date which is ordinarily fixed for holding the half-yearly examination. If they neglect to comply with this rule, they will not be allowed to appear. The names of those officers, for whom the examination is obligatory, will be included in the half-yearly lists of those who are liable to appear at the examination without any further representation on their part.

10. The Lieutenant-Governor is conscious that the orders now passed are calculated to materially increase the work of the Secretary and Members of the Central Examination Committee, who without remuneration devote time which they can ill spare to the duty of conducting these examinations. In order to meet this difficulty he would suggest that the increase in the number of candidates for examination should be met by an increase in the number of examiners who may be selected from among officers who are not members of the Committee. Upon this question the Central Examination Committee will be requested to submit a report for the orders of Government. The necessary alterations which the promulgation of these orders will require in the rules for the regulation of the departmental examinations should also be reported by the Central Examination Committee.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Revenue and Financial Departments of this Government for information.

Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to all Commissioners for information and guidance, and for communication to District Officers and to all Special Deputy Collectors and Sub-Deputy Collectors employed in their Divisions.

Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to the Excise Commissioner and to the Director of Land Records and Agriculture for information and guidance and for communication to all Special Deputy Collectors and Sub-Deputy Collectors employed under them.

Ordered also that copy be forwarded to the Board of Revenue with an intimation that Commissioners and the Excise Commissioner and Director of Land Records have been informed direct.

Ordered also that a copy be submitted, with a covering letter, to the Government of India, in the Home Department, for information.

Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to the Secretary to the Central Examination Committee, Calcutta, for information and guidance.

Ordered also that a copy be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. S. COTTON,

Offg. Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL RETURNS ON THE CHARITABLE DISPENSARIES IN BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1891.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MEDICAL.

No. 1581Med.

Darjeeling, the 4th July 1892.

READ—

The Annual Returns on the Charitable Dispensaries in Bengal for the year 1891.

Read also—

The Returns for the year 1890 and the Resolution recorded thereon.

There was an increase both in the number of dispensaries and in the number of patients treated at them during the year 1891. The number of dispensaries at the commencement of the year was 265. During the year 8 new dispensaries were opened and 1 was closed, leaving 272 dispensaries at the close of the year, which were classified as follows:—

Class	I (Government institutions)	6
„	II (Dispensaries maintained by Local Funds)	139
„	III A (Private institutions)	69
„	III B (Private institutions aided by Government) ...	58
	Total ..	272

There was an increase also in the number of beds available, those for male patients having increased from 1,592 in 1890 to 1,682 in 1891, and those for female patients from 607 to 619.

2. The distribution of dispensaries with regard to population, however, shows how far short their number falls of the requirements of the Province, and how extraordinarily low the number is in some districts. In the following districts the numerical strength of dispensaries is greatest:—

Districts.	Population (according to provisional totals of 1891).	Number of dispensaries.	Number of dispensaries per mille of population.
Midnapore	2,621,750	12	·0045
24-Parganas	1,879,920	18	·0095
Rangpur	2,069,950	12	·0057
Dacca	2,406,390	10	·0041
Mymensingh	3,444,030	14	·0040
Tippera	1,776,840	15	·0084
Saran	2,471,520	10	·0040
Manbhum	1,190,070	8	·0067

while in the following districts, some of which are feverish and unhealthy, the number is insignificant:—

Districts.	Population (according to provisional totals of 1891).	Number of dispensaries.	Number of dispensaries per mille of population.
Bankura	1,063,250	4	·0037
Birbhum	789,600	2	·0025
Khulna	1,160,730	5	·0043
Murshidabad	1,244,410	5	·0040
Pabna	1,354,640	3	·0022
Faridpur	1,792,630	4	·0022
Backergunge	2,147,600	4	·0019
Chittagong	1,281,330	2	·0015
Noakhali	1,008,960	4	·0039
Patna	1,770,220	5	.0028
Muzaffarpur	2,689,490	4	·0015
Champaran	1,854,040	4	·0021
Monghyr	2,025,220	4	.0019
Purnea	1,940,650	3	·0015
Singhbhum	546,380	1	·0018

3. The total number of indoor and outdoor patients increased from 29,660 and 1,239,850 in 1890 to 35,859 and 1,460,195 respectively in 1891. Out of this increase of 6,199 indoor and 220,345 outdoor patients, 177 indoor and 22,757 outdoor are put down to the opening of the 8 new dispensaries already referred to. Taking into account the figures for the Calcutta medical institutions, which are not included in these returns, the total number of patients treated in the Province in the two years stands as follows:—

	Indoor.		Outdoor.
Calcutta medical institutions ...	24,362	25,318	208,073	219,818
Mufassal dispensaries ...	29,660	35,859	1,239,850	1,460,195
Total ...	54,022	61,177	1,447,923	1,680,013

These figures, compared with those of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh for 1890, the latest available, show that in Bengal the number of indoor patients is slightly greater, while the number of outdoor patients is considerably less.

	N.-W. P. and Oudh. 1890.	Bengal. 1891.
Indoor patients	52,566	61,177
Outdoor „	2,837,803	1,680,013

The ratio of patients treated to the total population (according to the census figures of 1881) was 21·5 per mille in Bengal in 1891, against 65·5 per mille in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh in 1890. There is thus considerable room for improvement in Bengal, and the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that District Boards and municipalities will see their way to providing more largely for the medical relief of the population, both by increasing the number of dispensaries and by adding to the accommodation of those already existing. There seems to be little room for doubt that a great many more persons would apply for relief if the means of obtaining it were brought more within their reach.

4. Of the total number of outdoor patients treated in the mufassal dispensaries during the year under report, 1,351,314 attended personally and 108,851 were represented by friends, against 1,146,233 and 93,617, the corresponding figures for the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor regrets to observe the increase in the number of cases in which persons applied for medical relief through friends. Where such applications merely mean that the patient has already attended and undergone personal examination at the dispensary, and a child or servant is sent to have the medicine repeated, no harm is done; but it is a very dangerous thing for a medical man to prescribe for a patient whom he has never seen on the diagnosis of an ignorant friend. There is nevertheless reason to believe that this practice prevails largely in Bengal, and the Lieutenant-Governor desires to warn medical officers that they cannot be too careful in administering relief in such cases.

5. The Lieutenant-Governor notices the increase in the number of outdoor patients treated at the Bally, Bettiah, Motihari, Laheria Serai, Bankipore, Moradnagar, Hatwa, Nator, Krishnagar, Daulatpur, Meherpur, and Rampur Boalia dispensaries. The increase is generally attributed either to the growing popularity of the institution, or to the greater unhealthiness of the year, or to both the causes.

6. The average daily attendance of indoor and outdoor patients respectively appears to have increased from 1,287·62 and 8,841·17 in 1890 to 1,446·68 and 10,488·23 respectively in 1891. Taking the figures for both the Calcutta medical institutions and the mufassal dispensaries, the total outdoor attendance for the Province in 1891 was 1,680,013 and the total daily average was 12,160·21, which means that each individual out-patient attended on an average 2·5 times. This appears to be a low average, but it does not differ materially from the average individual attendance in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh in 1890, which was 2·3.

7. The following is a list of the most popular dispensaries; those which show a daily average outdoor attendance exceeding 100:—

	Indoor.	Outdoor.
Kamarhati	21·2	156·5
Daulatpur	...	125·05
Cuttack Branch	...	145·
Dacca	118·86	108·9
Patna	15·63	170·17
Bankipore	89·42	143·76
Gaya	49·67	136·64
Dumraon	8·3	110·63
Darbhanga	31·8	123·3
Laheria Serai	...	101·37

				Indoor.	Outdoor.
Chapra	...	...	...	34·81	249·19
Hatwa	...	...	...	15·07	125·44
Gopalganj	...	...	...	...	113·84
Motihari	...	...	...	15·65	101·46
Bettiah	...	...	..	28·51	151·83
Monghyr	...	...	...	81·58	136·64

The causes of this high attendance should be enquired into, as also the causes of the low numbers in many districts, especially in Eastern Bengal and Cuttack. In the districts of Bankura, Hooghly, Jessore, Dinajpur, Pabna, Darjeeling, Jalpaiguri, Puri, Balasore, Faridpur, Noakhali, Malda, Lohardaga, Palamau, Singhbhum and Manbhum, not a single dispensary had an average daily attendance of 50 outdoor patients. It should be ascertained how far this is due to want of energy on the part of the medical officers in charge and how far to the indifference of the people. The Lieutenant-Governor has noticed that in several places where the medical officer has remained for many years and won the confidence of the people, the attendance at the dispensary is large.

8. The ratio of deaths per cent. of indoor patients treated during the year was 13·31 against 12·85 in 1890. It may be inferred from the remarks recorded at the foot of Statement III of the Report, that this increase was due to the unusual prevalence of cholera and malarial fevers during the year. It is also observed that more patients were treated for all other diseases in 1891 than in 1890, which may either be due to the greater unhealthiness of the year, or to the fact that the dispensaries are on the whole gaining in popularity and are being more largely resorted to. As an instance of the appreciation of the relief afforded at these institutions, it may be mentioned that the number of cases of eye-diseases increased from 45,583 in 1889 to 50,064 in 1890 and to 52,726 in 1891. The number of cases of small-pox was 165 against 103 in 1890. This is a slight improvement, but the number is still very small in comparison with the number of cases of this disease which are reported from time to time, and which do not find their way to the dispensaries. The remarks of the Lieutenant-Governor on this subject in the Resolution on the returns for last year should be borne in mind.

9. The total number of major operations performed during the year was 8,074 against 6,344 in 1890, the increase being due to some extent to the reclassification of major and minor operations. Adding to this number 291 cases remaining under treatment at the close of the previous year, the total number of major operations comes to 8,365, of which 6,806 were cured, 1,108 were more or less relieved, 163 terminated fatally, and 288 remained under treatment at the close of the year; 2,963 of the operations were performed by the Superintendents and 5,402 by the medical subordinates. The number of cataract cases rose from 1,686 in 1890 to 2,159 in 1891, the operators to whom this increase is chiefly due being Drs. R. D. Murray, E. G. Russell, R. Macrae, and the late Dr. Beatson, and Assistant Surgeons Upendra Nath Sen, Apurva Krishna Dass, Guru Nath Sen, and Nritto Gopal Mitter, each of whom performed over 100 operations. The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the Inspector-General in attaching much importance to this class of operations, as the restoration of sight must necessarily gain for the successful operator the confidence of the people in whose midst he is situated, and must consequently produce an increase in the attendance at his dispensary; but too great an insistence on the performance of such operations, which require care and a suitable place in which to conduct them, may possibly be dangerous where local conditions are insanitary and unfavourable to recovery. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to notice the favourable mention made by the Inspector-General of Assistant Surgeon Upendra Nath Sen, of Monghyr, as the most successful operator in cases of litholopaxy, an operation which is becoming more popular and is gradually taking the place of lithotomy. The instruments employed in this operation being of an expensive character, arrangements have been made to keep four sets at Calcutta, Patna, Dacca, and Cuttack respectively, whence they are obtainable on loan by local bodies requiring their use at dispensaries. Similarly, with a view to assist local bodies and to encourage the practice of ovariotomy, four sets of ovariotomy instruments have been placed at the four centres above named, and are lent out for use as required.

10. The following statement compares the different classes of patients treated during the past two years:—

Total treated during the year.				Class.					Daily attendance.
				a	b	c	d	e	Average number.				Ratio per cent of—
1890 ...	758,276	194,247	316,987	1,269,510	870	3,103	304,407	947,120	13,990	6,013,905	1,596·53	2,590 471	10,128·796	39 57	15 74	24 69	79
1891	883,800	228,555	383,890	1,496,254	1,029	3,020	481,100	961,315	29,190	6,933·904	1,959·69	3,111·32 2	11,934 918	28·10	15 83	26 07	79

The increase in the number of both women and children is satisfactory, though the number treated as indoor patients is still comparatively small, as the following figures show—

	Indoor.	Outdoor.	Total.
Women	6,223	222,332	228,555
Children	2,123	381,767	383,890

It is only as suitable accommodation is provided for them that the attendance of women and children as indoor patients can be expected to increase. Suitable female wards and cottage hospitals where the patients can be kept in seclusion are as much needed for the children as for the women, since the children can hardly come without their mothers, and the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to find that the Inspector-General has supplied a standard plan for "cottage hospital" to all Civil Surgeons. In only a few dispensaries, the chief among them being those at Burdwan and Bankipur, is there any suitable provision made for the indoor treatment of women, but preparations are being made for the construction of such accommodation in several other places, and the Lieutenant-Governor sees no reason why every district should not have at least one dispensary similarly provided, and he trusts that the steps which are reported to have already been taken towards this object in many cases will result in much good. The Inspector-General is requested in future years to give a list of dispensaries where cottage hospitals or female branch hospitals of a suitable pattern exist. This is a subject in which the Committee of the Lady Dufferin Fund are largely interested, and the Lieutenant-Governor therefore considers it desirable to reproduce the following remarks made by him in the course of his speech at the annual meeting of the Committee held on the 4th February 1892:—

"Hitherto our energies have been absorbed in starting the Dufferin Hospital in Calcutta, but it is obvious that we must not be content to remain in this position. It is the mufassal from which, to a large extent, we receive subscriptions, and it is in the mufassal which needs medical skill and attendance far more than Calcutta with its magnificent provision of hospitals and its abundance of doctors, that our funds should chiefly be spent. The scheme which I intend to propose to the Local Committee is that we should offer to pay half the salary of a medical lady, up to, say, Rs. 30, in every district, and should offer to pay half the cost of erecting a women's ward up to, say, Rs. 1,000, attached to the hospital at the head-quarters of every district. When I said women's ward I used the wrong word. It is not a ward that I contemplate, but a row of separate rooms suited to the secluded habits of respectable women. We have made a great mistake hitherto in several cases in Bengal by creating wards for women on the same pattern as wards for men. No women but the very poorest will be content to lie in beds six or eight or ten together in a single ward. We must provide separate quarters for them in which they can retain their privacy, and can be visited and attended by their relatives, and I am glad the Maharaja of Bettiah's hospital is being constructed on this plan. It need not be an expensive plan; indeed, it should be a less costly one than the construction of wards on the usual system. In this way I hope that in a few years, possibly even before I leave this country, I may see a trained lady doctor and a suitable women's branch hospital in every district of Bengal."

The scheme here sketched out has been circulated to all District Officers with the request that they will co-operate in placing it on a firm and lasting basis by the collection of subscriptions which, whether great or small, shall at any rate be annual. The sums collected will be devoted either to the maintenance and extension of existing institutions or to the establishment of new female hospitals where required.

11. The total income of the dispensaries during the year, including the opening balance, was Rs. 5,15,726-7-7, against Rs. 5,07,583-2-11 in 1890, and the total expenditure, including investments, Rs. 4,78,441-4-7, against Rs. 4,74,853-15-6. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to notice the increase from

Rs. 1,58,941-1-7 to Rs. 1,73,858-15-5 in the contribution from municipalities, as also the increase from Rs. 70,504-15-7 to Rs. 89,377-0-3 in the contribution from district and other local funds, and trusts that the interest in charitable dispensaries on the part of local bodies indicated thereby will continue to be maintained. The total amount invested during the year was Rs. 16,146-12-4. On the other hand, the securities sold and deposits withdrawn amounted to Rs. 14,643-14-10.

12. The total expenditure on diet was Rs. 52,088-5-10, against Rs. 47,416-10-8 in 1890. This is an improvement, but the amount is still too low. The average cost of a daily diet for each indoor patient, taking all the dispensaries together, was 1 anna and 6 pies, against 1 anna and 7·3 pies in 1890. In the districts of Bankura, Bogra, Pabna, Saran, Lohardaga, and Manbhum, the average cost of a daily diet was less than 1 anna and 6 pies, while in the dispensaries at Jajpur in Cuttack, Aurangabad in Gaya, Kharakpur in Monghyr, and Purulia, Pandra, Govindpur, Topchansi, and Jharia in Manbhum, the average cost was less than 1 anna. The causes of this low average should be looked into.

13. The following statement compares the cost per patient under all heads of expenditure in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces for the years 1889 and 1890:—

Headings of Charge.	1889.				1890.
	Cost per patient.				Cost per patient.
	Bengal.		N.-W. P.		Bengal.		N.-W. P.
	Rs. A. P.		Rs. A. P.		Rs. A. P.		Rs. A. P.
Establishment	0 3 1½		0 1 8		0 3 0		0 1 7
Medicines { Country ...	0 0 1½		0 0 1		0 0 1½		0 0 1
Diet	0 1 7		0 0 8		0 1 6		0 0 9
Buildings	0 0 6½		0 0 1½		0 0 5 1/10		0 0 1½
Miscellaneous	0 0 5		0 0 4		0 0 6		0 0 3
Total cost under all heads taken together, excluding investments.	0 5 7		0 2 10		0 5 6½		0 2 6½

The fact that Bengal spends twice as much on each patient as its sister-province brings out into singular relief the relative unwillingness in Bengal to make use of the hospitals.

14. In future reports the district and provincial averages should be given in column 6 of statement V, Part I. It would also be convenient if, in all the statements in the report, the grand totals of the previous year were shown below those of the year under report.

15. The Lieutenant-Governor has much pleasure in acknowledging the good work done by the Inspector-General during the year in inspecting 22 sadar stations and six sub-divisional dispensaries. He is also glad to learn that the Civil Surgeons generally paid more attention to this part of their duty. In the next and future reports a statement should be given showing the number of inspections of each dispensary made by the Civil Surgeon.

Order.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution, together with a copy of the Report, be submitted to the Government of India, in the Home Department, for information.

Ordered also that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, and to all Commissioners of Divisions, for information and communication to District Officers and Municipalities in their respective divisions, and that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. H. RISLEY,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

OFFICIAL CIRCULAR OF INFORMATION FOR FOREIGN EXHIBITORS AT THE CHICAGO EXHIBITION.

Circular No. 28.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department (Museums and Exhibition),—dated Simla, the 21st June 1892.

READ—

The following Official Circular of information for Foreign Exhibitors, received from the Chief of the Department of Foreign Affairs, World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, United States, America.

GENERAL REGULATIONS FOR FOREIGN EXHIBITORS.

1. The Exhibition will be held on the shore of Lake Michigan, in the City of Chicago, and will be opened on the 1st day of May 1893, and closed on the 30th day of October following.

2. All Governments have been invited to appoint commissions for the purpose of organizing their departments of the Exhibition. The Director-General should be notified of the appointment of such foreign commissions as soon as the appointment is made.

Diagrams of the buildings and grounds will be furnished to the foreign commissions on or before January 1, 1892, indicating the localities to be occupied by each nation, subject, however, to revision and readjustment.

3. Applications for space and negotiations relative thereto must be conducted with the commission of the country where the article is produced.

4. Foreign commissions are requested to notify the Director-General not later than June 1, 1892, where they desire any increase or diminution of the space offered them, and the amount.

5. Before November 1, 1892, the foreign commissions must furnish the Director-General with approximate plans showing the manner of allotting the space assigned to them, and also with lists of their exhibitors and other information necessary for the preparation of the official catalogue.

Products brought into the United States at the ports of Portland, Me.; Boston, Mass.; New York, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Penn; Baltimore, Md.; Norfolk, Va.; Newport News, Va., Key West, Fla.; Mobile, Ala; New Orleans, La.; Galveston, Texas.; San Francisco, Cal.; Port Townsend, Wash.; Portland, Ore.; Port Huron, Mich.; Detroit, Mich.; and Chicago Ill., or at any other port of entry, intended for display at the International Exhibition, will be allowed to go forward to the Exhibition buildings, under proper supervision of custom officers, without examination at such ports of original entry, and at the close of the Exhibition will be allowed to go forward to the port from which they are to be exported. No duties will be levied upon such goods unless entered for consumption in the United States.

6. The transportation, receiving, unpacking, and arranging of the products for exhibition will be at the expense of the exhibitor.

7. The installation of heavy articles requiring special foundations or adjustment should, by special arrangement, begin as soon as the progress of the work upon the buildings will permit. The general reception of articles at the Exhibition buildings will commence on November 1, 1892, and no articles will be admitted after April 10, 1893.

NOTE.—Weight of single article to 30,000 pounds.

8. Space assigned to foreign commissions, and not occupied on the 10th day of April 1893, will revert to the Director-General for reassignment.

9. If products are indented for competition, it must be so stated by the exhibitor; if not, they will be excluded from the examination by the International juries.

10. An Official Catalogue will be published in English, French, German, and Spanish. The sale of catalogues is reserved to the World's Columbian Exposition.

The twelve departments of the classification which will determine the relative location of articles in the Exhibition—except in such collective exhibits as may receive special sanction—also the arrangement of names in the catalogue, are as follows:

A. Agriculture, Forest Products, Forestry, Machinery, and Appliances.
B. Viticulture, Horticulture, Floriculture.
C. Live Stock: Domestic and Wild Animals.
D. Fish, Fisheries, Fish Products, and Apparatus for Fishing.
E. Mines, Mining, and Metallurgy.
F. Machinery.
G. Transportation: Railways, Vessels, Vehicles.
H. Manufactures.
J. Electricity.
K. Fine Arts: Painting, Sculpture, Architecture, and Decoration.
L. Liberal Arts: Education, Literature, Engineering, Public Works; Music and the Drama.
M. Ethnology, Archæology, Progress of Labour and Invention, Isolated and Collective Exhibits.

11. Foreign commissions may publish catalogues of their respective sections.

12. Exhibitors will not be charged for space.

A limited quantity of steam and water power will be supplied gratuitously. The quantity of each will be settled definitely at the time of the allotment of space. Any power required by the exhibitor in excess of that allowed will be furnished by the World's Columbian Exposition at a fixed price. Demands for such excess of power must also be settled at the time of the allotment of space.

13. Exhibitors must provide at their own cost all show-cases, shelving, counters, fittings, etc., which they may require, and all countershafts, with their pulleys, belting, etc., for the transmission of power from the main shafts in the building where the exhibit is located. All arrangements of articles and decorations must be in conformity with the general plan adopted by the Director-General.

NOTE.—The general plan requires all decorations, signs, &c., to be in harmony with the dignity and magnitude of a magnificent exhibition, and the Director-General is empowered to secure this result.

The World's Columbian Exposition will take precautions for the safe preservation of all objects in the Exhibition; but it will in no way be responsible for damage or loss of any kind, or for accidents by fire, or otherwise, however originating.

NOTE.—A thoroughly equipped fire department will protect the buildings and exhibits, and a large police force will maintain order. The entire Exposition grounds will be under the immediate supervision of the City of Chicago and of the State of Illinois. A guard equal to any possible contingency is thus provided; the municipal authority being upheld, if necessary, by the State troops, and the State by the army of the United States, so that no apprehension need arise as to losses resulting from lawlessness.

14. Favourable facilities will be arranged by which exhibitors or foreign commissions may insure their own goods.

NOTE.—Special care has been taken to render everything about the Exposition as nearly fireproof as possible, and it is reasonably certain that the rates of insurance will not be excessive, but, on the contrary, very reasonable. Exhibitors may insure in any company, foreign or domestic. Arrangements will be made with English, French, German, and American companies to fix uniform or special rates on exhibits and buildings, so that no advantage will be taken of any exhibitor who wishes to insure his goods.

Foreign commissions may employ watchmen of their own choice to guard their goods during the hours the Exhibition is open to the public, subject to the rules and regulations of the Exposition.

15. Foreign commissions, or such agents as they may designate, shall be responsible for the receiving, unpacking, and arrangement of objects, as well as for the removal at the close of the Exposition; but no person shall be permitted to act as such agent until he can give to the Director-General written evidence of his having been approved by the proper commission.

16. Each package must be addressed, "To the Commission (name of country) at the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, United States of America," and should have at least two labels affixed to different, but not opposite, sides of each case, and give the following information:—

17. (1) The country from which it comes; (2) name of firm of the exhibitor; (3) residence of the exhibitor; (4) department to which objects belong; (5) total number of packages sent by that exhibitor; (6) serial number of that particular package.

18. Within each package should be a list of all objects.

19. If no authorized person is at hand to receive goods on their arrival at the Exposition buildings, they will be removed without delay and stored at the risk and cost of whomsoever it may concern.

20. Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, also patent nostrums and empirical preparations, whose ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted.

21. The removal of goods on exhibition will not be permitted prior to the close of the Exhibition.

NOTE.—Articles not on exhibition in competition may be sold under special permit.

22. Sketches, drawings, photographs, or other reproductions of articles exhibited will only be allowed upon the joint assent of the exhibitor and the Director-General; but views of portions of the building may be made upon the Director-General's sanction.

23. Immediately after the close of the Exhibition exhibitors shall remove their effects, and complete such removal before January 1, 1894. Goods then remaining will be removed and sold for expenses, or otherwise disposed of under the direction of the World's Columbian Exposition.

24. Each person who becomes an exhibitor thereby acknowledges and agrees to be governed by the rules and regulations established for the Government of the Exhibition.

Special regulations will be issued concerning the exhibition of fine arts, awards, the organization of the international juries, and sales of special articles within the buildings, and on other points not touched upon in these preliminary instructions.

25. All communications concerning the exhibition will be addressed to the Director-General, World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, Illinois, United States, America.

The Management reserves the right to explain or amend these regulations, whenever it may be deemed necessary for the interest of the Exhibition.

Chief, Department of Foreign Affairs.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE FREE IMPORTATION OF ARTICLES FOR EXHIBITION AT THE WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION AT CHICAGO IN THE YEAR 1893.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,

Washington, D. C., November 5, 1891.

ON April 25, 1890, the President of the United States approved an Act passed by the Congress providing for celebrating the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, which Act contains the following preamble:

"WHEREAS it is fit and appropriate that the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America be commemorated by an exhibition of the resources of the United States of America, their development, and of the progress of civilization in the new world; and

"Whereas such an exhibition should be of a national and international character, so that not only the people of our Union and this Continent, but those of all nations as well, can participate, and should therefore have the sanction of the Congress of the United States."

And Section II of the said Act is as follows:

"That all articles which shall be imported from foreign countries for the sole purpose of exhibition at the said Exposition, upon which there shall be a tariff or customs duty, shall be admitted free of payment of duty, customs fees, or charges under such regulation as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe; but it shall be lawful at any time during the exhibition to sell, for delivery at the close of the Exposition, any goods or property imported for and actually on exhibition in the Exposition buildings or on its grounds, subject to such regulations for the security of the revenue and for the collection of the import duties as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe; provided that all such articles, when sold or withdrawn for consumption in the United States, shall be subject to the duty, if any, imposed upon such articles by the revenue laws in force at the date of importation, and all penalties prescribed by the law shall be applied and enforced against such articles, and against the persons who may be guilty of any illegal sale or withdrawal."

Under the authority conferred upon him by the above section and by previous statutes of the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury prescribes the following regulations, viz:—

1. It is the purpose of this Department to secure expedition and security in all articles imported for exhibition at the Chicago Exposition without the exaction of customs duties, fees, or charges, and to arrange the proceedings on entry so as to afford the utmost convenience and despatch.

2. In order to obtain the benefits of this arrangement, every package destined for the Exposition should have affixed to it by the foreign shipper one or more labels representing the flag of the country to which it belongs. This label should be about eight by twelve inches in size, and should bear across the face, in plain black letters, the inscription "Exposition at Chicago." All packages should be plainly marked as follows:—(1) Collector of Customs, Chicago;" (2) "Exhibits for Columbian Exposition;" (3) Name of consignee or agent at the port of first arrival in the United States; (4) The shipping marks and numbers of the exhibitor; (5) Name and address of the exhibitor.

3. Every foreign exhibitor will prepare, in duplicate, a statement in the form of an invoice, which shall show the name of the exhibitor, the marks and numbers of the packages, with a description of their contents and a declaration of the quantity and the market value of each separate kind thereof in the country of production. This statement must be signed by the exhibitor, but will require no further verification. One of the invoices will be transmitted by mail to the Collector of Customs at Chicago, and the other to the consignee of the goods at the port of first arrival.

4. As a matter of convenience, it is recommended that all packages intended for the Exposition shall be consigned to an agent, or forwarder, or commissioner, at the port of first arrival, who will attend to customs business incident to the transfer of packages from the importing vessel to a bonded route for transportation to Chicago. All of the bonded transportation lines will discharge their freight at stations in Chicago to be arranged within the Exposition grounds, and packages marked as suggested in Article 2 may be taken to their respective divisions as soon as they have been identified by the Customs Officers.

5. The following list of companies, bonded for the transportation of merchandise to Chicago, without appraisement, is furnished for the information of parties whom it may concern:

From Portland Me.—Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada; American Express Company.

From Boston, Mass.—Central Vermont Railroad Company; American Express Company; New York and New England Railroad Company; The Fitchburg Railroad Company; Merchants' Despatch Transportation Company; Boston and Maine Railroad Company.

From New York, N. Y.—Pennsylvania Company; American Express Company; Pennsylvania Railroad Company; New York West Shore, and Buffalo Railway Company; Michigan Central Railroad Company; Merchants' Despatch Transportation Company; New York, Lake, Erie and Western Railroad Company; Central Vermont Railroad Company; Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company; Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; Wells, Fargo and Company; Lehigh Valley Railroad Company; West Shore Railroad Company; Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad Company; United States Express Company.

From Philadelphia, Pa.—Pennsylvania Company; Pennsylvania Railroad Company; Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western Railroad Company; Merchants' Despatch Transportation Company; Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

From Baltimore, Md.—Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; Northern Central Railway Company.

From Norfolk, Va.—Norfolk and Western Railroad Company.

From Newport News, Va.—Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

From Key West, Fla.—Plant Investment Company.

From Mobile, Ala.—Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

From New Orleans, La.—Morgan's Louisiana and Texas Railroad and Steamship Company; St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway Company; Illinois Central Railroad Company; Louisville, New Orleans, and Texas Railway Company; Texas and Pacific Railway Company; Southern Pacific Company; Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

From Galveston, Tex.—St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway Company; Southern Pacific Company.

From San Francisco, Cal.—The Central Pacific Railroad Company; Southern Pacific Company; Wells, Fargo and Company.

From Port Townsend, Wash.—Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

From Portland, Oregon.—Northern Pacific Railroad Company; Oregon Short Line and Utah Northern Railway Company.

From Port Huron, Mich.—Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company.

From Detroit, Mich.—Michigan Central Railroad Company; Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad Company; Wabash Railroad Company.

6. The consignee of the merchandise at the first port of arrival must present at the custom-house the invoice above described, with a bill-of-lading and an entry in duplicate made out upon the special form to be provided for this purpose by the Treasury Department, which shall show the name of the foreign shipper or owner, the name of the importing vessel, the marks and numbers of the packages, with a statement of the nature of their contents and of their foreign value as declared in the invoice. The entry must also indicate the bonded route by which the goods are to be transported to Chicago, and must be signed by the consignee. No other declaration will be required. The goods will be consigned, on the customs entry, to "Collector of Customs, Chicago," and there need be no computation of duties upon this entry, but the amount charged against the bond of the transportation company shall be double the invoice value.

7. The Collector will thereupon issue a special permit bearing the words "Chicago Exposition," authorizing the transfer of the goods from the ship to the bonded railroad for transportation to Chicago, and will record and file one of the entries in his office and send the other by mail, with the invoice, to the Collector at Chicago.

8. The permit will be taken by the agent or consignee to the inspector on board the importing vessel, who will thereupon send the goods, by a cartman duly licensed, to be delivered under the supervision of a customs officer to the transportation company.

9. The consignee will also prepare a manifest of the goods, which, after being duly certified, will be handed to the conductor of the car carrying the same, and a duplicate copy must be sent by mail to the Collector of Customs at Chicago. Upon arrival at Chicago of any car containing such articles, the conductor or agent of the railroad company will report such arrival by the presentation of the manifest to the customs officer designated to receive it, who shall compare the same with the copy received by mail, and superintend the opening of the car, taking care to identify the packages by marks and numbers as described in the manifests. In case of the non-receipt of the manifests, the unlading of cars need not for that reason be delayed, but the invoice may be used to identify the packages.

10. Articles sent by foreign Governments to the Exposition, which are used solely for Government purposes, and are not intended for sale, will be admitted to entry at the exterior port of arrival on certificates of the proper foreign commissioner without the production of invoice. But it is desired that the estimated value of each package shall be stated on the certificate or the bill-of-landing in order that the pecuniary responsibility of the transportation company may be fixed.

11. These regulations will also apply to goods sent to the Exposition from foreign contiguous territory. All articles destined for the Exposition arriving from Canada on through cars under consular seal, and articles which are sent direct by vessel from any foreign port to Chicago, must be consigned by the foreign shipper to the "Collector of Customs" at that port, and on entry being made, as in the case of goods arriving at the seaboard, a permit will be issued for the transfer of the goods directly to the Exposition grounds.

12. The buildings and spaces set apart for the purposes of the Exposition are constituted "constructive bonded warehouses and yards," and all foreign articles placed therein under the supervision of the custom officers, and which have been specially imported for exhibition therein, will be treated the same as merchandise in bond. No warehouse entry will be required at Chicago in order to obtain entrance for such goods, but the latter will be kept under customs supervision in accordance with the general regulations governing merchandise in bonded warehouses, except as herein otherwise provided for. The Collector at Chicago will keep a special record, in the form of a warehouse ledger, of every invoice, assigning serial numbers to the same in order of their reception, and the transportation entry received from the Collector at the port of arrival will be considered the warehouse entry.

13. After the packages have been placed in the respective positions assigned to them by the officers of the Exposition, they will be opened by an officer of the customs, who shall primarily identify the contents with the invoice only as to quantity and character. Due examination of the contents and appraisement of values will be subsequently made by the appraiser, who shall be furnished with the invoice of the articles to be appraised, and shall indorse his report of appraisement upon such invoice in like manner as if such articles were regularly entered for consumption or warehouse. The entry will then be liquidated, the full amount of duties ascertained, and the whole transaction entered upon the prescribed record. All the proceedings relating to the examination, appraisement, and liquidation shall be the same as on ordinary importations.

14. As, under the United States tariff, the cost of packages is made a part of the dutiable value of imported goods, the empty boxes, barrels, and casks from which imported articles have been taken in order to be displayed should be carefully preserved so as to be repacked for exportation at the close of the Exposition. Dutiable packing-cases not exported will be subject to the payment of duty. It is expected that a place will be provided for the storage of such empty packages, and the latter should be recorded and numbered for identification.

15. Packages containing articles imported for gratuitous distribution, or for actual use and consumption in restaurants, refreshment rooms, etc., must be regularly entered for consumption and duty paid thereon before being delivered by the customs officers.

16. The articles after having been received in the Exposition will remain under the custody of the customs officers, and must not be removed from the place assigned without a permit from the Collector of Customs or the officer who may be designated by him to grant such permit. In no case shall such articles be released from the custody of the customs officers, unless the same shall have been regularly withdrawn for consumption, for warehouse, or for export. The requisite number of customs inspectors will be stationed at every place containing foreign exhibits, each of whom will be placed in charge of a section, which shall be numbered and designated as a customs division. A list of the articles entered for exhibit in his section will be furnished to each of such inspectors, who shall retain a copy thereof, certify the original, and transmit it to the Collector.

17. Sales may be made during the exposition of articles imported for exhibition, but deliveries of the same will be allowed only at the close of the Exposition. For this purpose a regular withdrawal as from bond will be required, and duty must be paid according to law. In case the articles are sold for delivery at some port other than Chicago, a withdrawal may be made for transportation and re-warehouse, duty to be paid at the place of destination. Any exhibitor of articles which shall be sold may authorize withdrawal of the same by the purchaser, such authority to be contained in a written notice to the Collector at Chicago. After the filing of such notice, the person specified in the same shall be recognised as entitled to all the rights and subject to all the liabilities of the original importer.

18. Withdrawal from bond cannot be made for less than one entire package, but in case of accidental damage or destruction, it is not intended to assess duties upon such articles as shall not have entered into actual consumption in this country. On articles which shall have suffered diminution or deterioration from incidental handling and necessary exposure, the duty, if paid, will be assessed according to the appraised value at the time of withdrawal for consumption.

19. At the close of the Exhibition all goods intended for exportation will be transported in bond to the seaboard or exterior port, and exported therefrom under the general regulations for immediate export in bond, as modified by special regulations to be in due time provided.

20. Any exhibitor who may import merchandise in excess of that which he desires to place on view in the Exposition may make regular warehouse entry of the same on its arrival at Chicago, whereupon it shall be taken to a United States bonded warehouse and stored without payment of duty, subject to the regulations provided for bonded goods. Withdrawals of merchandise stored under these conditions, if made for the purpose of placing the same within the Exposition, will be treated under the provisions for entry on arrival at first port of entry, and no duty will be required to be paid. Such merchandise must be delivered at the Exposition in charge of a customs officer. Should any merchandise be abandoned by the owner at the close of the Exposition, it will be placed in a general order warehouse for twelve months, and, if then unclaimed, will be sold for account of owner.

21. The privileges granted by virtue of these regulations are intended solely for the benefit of exhibitors at the World's Columbian Exposition, and with the view of relieving them, so far as practicable, of delays and vexations in connection with the customs business pertaining to their importations. Any attempt to take advantage of these regulations in order to evade the tariff laws of the United States will subject the offender to all the penalties prescribed by these laws, including confiscation of goods and fine and imprisonment.

22. The regulations issued by this Department on January 7, 1891, are hereby revoked, and the foregoing adopted in lieu thereof.

Explanation.—..... indicate that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

Calcutta, the 5th July 1892.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 2ND OF JULY 1892.

DURING the previous week there had been a slight break in the rains extending for about three or four days over the greater part of the province, but on the 25th, or the last day of the week, rainfall had recommenced over all districts except Bihár and Chota Nagpur. On the 26th the changes were not important, pressure was rising in the north and falling over the southern half of the province, but the band of relatively high pressure which had existed for a considerable period over South Bengal, the head of the Bay, and Orissa, still existed. Winds, however, had become rather more easterly in direction, though the rainfall, as on the previous day, was mainly confined to the eastern half of the province; while Bihár, the western part of Bengal and Orissa received no rain, though a few light showers were reported in Chota Nagpur. On the 27th there was an increase of pressure equalling about 0·08″ at the western stations, but elsewhere the changes were decidedly smaller, and though winds were still generally south-easterly and southerly, there were evidences that a westerly current was forcing itself into the centre of the province. Rainfall on this day extended into Bihár, and the greater part of the province, except Orissa, received general rain. On the 28th a slight but unequal increase of pressure took place, and the winds blowing over the province were rather irregular. Rainfall became less general over parts of North Bengal and South Bihár, though it was still general in South-West and East Bengal, North Bihár, and Chota Nagpur, and in Orissa there was almost no rain. On the 29th pressure began to fall, the fall being largest in the north of the province, thus tending to reproduce the abnormal distribution of pressure which prevailed at the beginning of the week; and on this day pressure had become below the normal in the north-east of the province and above it elsewhere, the excess being rather large in Orissa, at the head of the Bay, and in South Bengal. Winds also became rather more strongly westerly than they had been, and fairly general, and in some cases heavy, rain had fallen in all districts except Orissa and Chota Nagpur and parts of South-West Bengal, North Bengal, and South Bihár. On the 30th the pressure changes were small and the distribution was practically unaltered, but the westerly element in the wind direction was giving way, and winds had become rather more strongly easterly. On the 30th almost general rainfall was reported from all districts including Orissa, and fairly heavy rain had fallen over a large part of the province. On the 1st of July pressure was falling slowly but fairly equally over the whole province, and the previous distribution of a band of high pressure across the head of the Bay and in South Bengal was rather strongly marked. Winds had, however, become more strongly westerly than on the previous day, and the south-easterly winds were confined to the north and east of the province. Rainfall on the 1st was reported fairly generally from Orissa, East Bengal, North Bengal, and Bihár, though in other divisions local showers only were received. On the 2nd pressure had commenced to rise slowly, but the changes were rather unequal in amount, and the previous abnormal distribution of pressure continued unaltered, winds remained almost unchanged in direction and force, but rainfall suddenly decreased in area and amount, and this day rain was only received in Orissa and East Bengal and over small parts of South-West and North Bengal.

The general changes during the week have, therefore, been small in amount; pressure has oscillated slowly from day to day, and wind directions have also changed slightly, the westerly element strengthening on some days, while the easterly element predominated on others. Though, however, wind directions and velocities have remained to a great extent unchanged since the previous week, the winds considered as a rain-bearing current have become decidedly more important, and for the first time during the present south-west monsoon, the rainfall over the greater part of the province has been either in excess of, or equal to, the normal. The falls indeed in East and North Bengal have been largely in excess, in South-West Bengal in moderate excess, and in North Bihár of about normal amount, though on the other hand the falls in Orissa, South Bihár, and Chota Nagpur have been very considerably in defect.

Pressure.—The mean pressure for the week has been in slight defect of the normal in the northern districts of the province, and in distinct excess over the southern half; thus defects of about 0·04″ are registered at Dinajpur, Rangpur and Jalpaiguri, and excess pressures of about 0·05″ or 0·06″ in Orissa.

In Assam pressure has been 0·029″ in defect of the normal.

Temperature.—Owing to the abundant rainfall in East and North Bengal, the mean temperature in these districts has been from 2° to 3° below the normal. In South-West Bengal and North Bihár also temperature has been slightly in defect, but in Orissa, South Bihár, and Chota Nagpur, where rainfall has been deficient, temperatures have averaged up to nearly 2° in excess. For the whole province the mean temperature for the week has been only 0·2° in defect of the normal. In Assam the defect has equalled 2·9°.

Rainfall—Has been exceptionally heavy in East and North Bengal, where an average amount of about six and-a-third inches has been received. South-West Bengal and North Bihár have also recorded between three and four inches, while in Chota Nagpur, Orissa, and South Bihár the amounts have usually ranged from one to two inches, the actual average fall in South Bihár only equalling 0·95 inch. Excess falls of two to three inches are recorded in East and North Bengal and an excess of two-thirds of an inch in South-West Bengal, but, on the other hand, defects of from one to two inches are reported from the three divisions of Orissa, South Bihár, and Chota Nagpur. Some exceptionally heavy falls have been reported at some stations during the week. Thus falls exceeding fourteen inches, or an average of two inches per day, are reported at Buxa, Siliguri, Cox's Bazar, Kurigram, and Laksham; falls exceeding ten inches have been received at Canning Town, Noakhali, Fenny, Comilla, Brahmanbaria, Ulipur, Dinhatta, Kuch Bihár, Mickligunge; and falls exceeding seven inches, or an inch a day, at Rampur Hát, Bolpur, Magura, Barisál, Gaurnaddi, Bhola, Doulatkhan, Joydebpur, Pabna, Churamon, Raiganj, Thakurgaon, Bagdogra, Alipore Duar, Fallacatta, Bhagatpur, Matabhanga, Darjeeling, Kalimpong, and Motihari. The exceptionally heavy fall of 11·25 inches was reported on the 29th from Laksham, and one of 9 inches from Canning Town on the 30th.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 2nd of July 1892:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Letter from the Solicitor to the Government of India, No. 498, dated the 28th May, 1892, and enclosures.

RESOLUTION.—In the letter of 29th April, 1892, the Chief Commissioner of Burma represented that the form of mortgage bond appended to the Notification of 30th June, 1870, might with advantage be amended so as to convey to Government, not only the dwelling-house erected or about to be erected by the person to whom the advance is made, but also his interest in the land upon which the house is built. He enclosed the Government Advocate's opinion on the point with a form of mortgage bond drawn by that officer, and recommended that the existing form of bond and Rule IV of the rules might be amended on the lines of the draft.

2. In the letter of 10th May 1892 the Chief Commissioner recommended that in cases in which the pay of officers receiving house-building advances is small, the repayment of the advance should not commence until after the fourth issue of pay from the date on which the advance is taken, and requested that he might be empowered to authorize the issue of house-building advances by instalments in cases where this might be considered prudent.

3. The Governor-General in Council has accepted the changes recommended in the form of mortgage bond.

4. With regard to the proposals contained in the Chief Commissioner's second letter, it has been decided that house-building advances may be made in instalments when considered desirable, and that, when so made, repayment shall commence from the fourth issue of pay after the first instalment is paid, but that when the advance is taken in one instalment, repayment shall commence with the second issue of pay, the whole advance in both cases being repaid in two years as required by Rule II of the rules issued with the Notification of 30th June, 1870.

5. The Governor-General in Council considers it expedient to re-issue the rules on the subject of house-building advances, and directs that, in supersession of all existing rules, the subjoined rules shall in future regulate the grant of house-building advances to officers in the Civil Department:—

I.—Advances may be made, under the sanction of Local Governments and Administrations, to officers who desire to build houses, for occupation by themselves, at places where no houses are available, or where house-rent is exceptionally high.

II.—All such advances must be bonâ fide required for the purpose of building suitable houses for the personal residence of the officers concerned; and if more is advanced than shall be actually expended for the purpose, the surplus shall be refunded to Government.

III.—The advances may be made in instalments when considered desirable, and when so made, repayment shall commence from the fourth issue of pay after the first instalment is taken; but when the advance is taken in one instalment, repayment shall commence with the second issue of pay. The repayment of the whole advance shall in both cases be completed in two years.

IV.—No advance shall exceed six months' salary of the officer to whom it is made.

V.—Recovery will be made by the Treasury Officer, or other disbursing officer, deducting monthly instalments equal to one-twenty-fourth part of the advance from the salary bills of the officer concerned.

VI.—In order to secure Government from loss consequent on an officer dying or quitting the service before complete repayment of the advance, the house so built, together with the land it stands upon, must be mortgaged to Government by whom the mortgage will be released on liquidation of the full amount of the advance.

VII.—The officer must satisfy Government regarding his title to the land upon which the house is or is proposed to be built.

VIII.—An officer quitting or removed from the station where he has built a house, before the whole amount of the advance has been liquidated, will continue liable to the deduction of his monthly instalment until the advance has been repaid; but, with the special sanction of the Local Government, he may be allowed to dispose of the house, provided he is thereby enabled to clear off at once the whole amount due; or to transfer it to any officer of his own or higher rank, the future deductions being made from the salary of such officer.

IX.—An officer will not, under any circumstances, be allowed a second advance whilst any amount remains due on a previous advance.

X.—Applications for advances must be made through the applicant's departmental superior, who will record his opinion as to the necessity for the assistance solicited. The applicant must certify that the sum is to be expended in building only, and pledge himself that, should there be any surplus funds after the house is completed, they will be at once refunded to Government.

XI.—The last pay certificate granted to officers under advances must specify the original amount of such advance, the amount repaid, and the balance remaining due.

A form of mortgage bond* will be issued to officers who may wish to avail themselves of the advance.

* See Annexure A.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be communicated to all Local Governments and Administrations, and to the Chief Commissioner of Burma, for information, with reference to his letter No. 485-3B-22, dated the 29th April 1892, to the Comptroller and Auditor-General, and to all Accountants-General and Comptrollers for information.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE MONTH OF JUNE 1892.

At the close of May the meteorological conditions in Bengal were fairly normal for the hot weather season, though perhaps the number of local storms with rain which were occurring was rather larger than usual. In the centre and south of the Bay the south-west monsoon current was blowing steadily, and at one time it appeared as if the current had drifted well into the north of the Bay, and almost up to the Sunderbans, and on the 1st of June the meteorological observer at Akyab reported that the monsoon had broken at that station. On the first two days of June, however, the barometric pressure in Bengal increased moderately to rapidly, and from the 2nd pressure became rather largely in excess of the normal over the province, and hence conditions became unfavourable for any further advance of the monsoon current. From the 4th of the month these abnormal pressure conditions began to disappear and pressure fell, the fall being continued on the 5th and 6th, and on the latter day the distribution of pressure became very irregular, and a comparatively low-pressure area existed near the Orissa coast off Puri and Gopalpur. The monsoon current, however, continued to blow fairly strongly in the centre and south of the Bay, though it did not advance over Bengal to any extent; conditions hence became favourable for the formation of the storm, which subsequently developed in the north-west angle of the Bay.

During the early part of June the amount of rain falling over the province was comparatively small, and up to the 6th or 7th there was no general rainfall reported, such as always occurs at the commencement or burst of the regular rains in Bengal, though Bihár and North Bengal on the 6th and 7th reported moderate amounts of rain.

At this time, that is from the 6th, a severe cyclone commenced to form in the north-west angle of the Bay, and this storm formed by far the most important feature in the meteorology of the month, for in its inland advance it was accompanied by a wave of monsoon winds, and hence brought about the commencement of the rainy season over the whole of Bengal. The following description of the formation and history of the storm is taken mainly from the weekly meteorological reports.

On the 6th, so far as could be detected, there was no sign of any cyclonic circulation of winds in the north of the Bay, and certainly no storm had formed, though perhaps in some parts of the Bay weather may have been a little squally. On the morning of the 7th pressure had fallen moderately to rapidly, and had become below the normal by amounts which ranged up to nearly a tenth of an inch along the west coast from Gopalpur to Madras. Winds also at the stations on the Circars and Orissa coasts began to show the commencement of a cyclonic circulation, though they were very light in all cases. The lowest pressures reported on this day were at Puri and Gopalpur, and it was evident that a barometric depression had formed, and its position, so far as can be at present roughly judged, was in about latitude 17° or 18° N. and perhaps longitude 88° E., but until all the observations from the vessels navigating the Bay have been received and worked out, the precise position of the formation of the storm cannot be more accurately given. On the 7th the winds over Bengal became mainly easterly and south-easterly, and were probably influenced by the developing whirl or depression. On the 8th the storm in the Bay had undergone further development, a rapid fall of pressure had taken place in the north-west angle of the Bay, and in Orissa, and at such stations as False Point, pressure had become more than a fifth of an inch below the normal. The cyclonic wind circulation as indicated by the observations at the coast stations had also advanced northwards, and the centre of the storm was at 8 a.m. probably to the east of Puri or Gopalpur. The storm had undoubtedly developed very considerably in the twenty-four hours and was already of moderate severity. From the 8th to the 9th at 8 a.m. the storm developed in intensity with extraordinary rapidity and had become a fierce cyclone, and it had also again advanced slowly in a northerly direction and was probably a little to the south of east of False Point. The increase in intensity may be judged by the fact that there had been a fall of a quarter of an inch in the pressure at False Point, and pressure there was about half an inch below the normal. The position of the cyclone can be fortunately fixed in the afternoon and evening of the 9th, from the observations taken on board the P. V. Sarsuti which experienced the storm and which passed through the calm centre. The Sarsuti it appears entered the calm centre of the cyclone from the north-eastern quadrant between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. of the 9th, and was in it until nearly 7-30 p.m. The position of the Sarsuti at this time is given as 55 miles E. by N. of False Point, so that since 8 a.m. the storm had again moved in a northerly direction, and its centre was about 80 miles from, and almost due south of, the mouth of the Hooghly, and considering the direction in which the storm had been moving on the 7th and 8th, which, so far as can be judged, was almost due north, it appeared highly probable that the storm would reach the mouth of the Hooghly, and might possibly subsequently advance up the basin of the Hooghly towards Calcutta. During the evening and night of the 9th the rate at which the storm was moving must have increased very rapidly, and the storm must also have commenced to recurve towards the west, for at 11 p.m. of the 9th the centre was to the south-south-west of Saugor Island, and about 45 miles only from the mouth of the Hooghly, so that it had moved 35 miles in 5 or 6 hours. At 2 a.m. of the 10th it was to the west-south-west of Saugar Island, and at 5 a.m. it was almost on the coast line between Calcutta and Balasore. So far as can be ascertained, the storm centre crossed the coast between Balasore and Saugor

Island at about 6-30 a.m. on the 10th, and rather nearer the former station than the latter. As the distance between the mouth of the Hooghly and Balasore is not more than about 50 to 60 miles, the storm could only have passed about 30 or 40 miles to the west of the mouth of the river.

Though the storm crossed the coast probably 20 miles to the east of Balasore, the extremely low pressure of 28·670 inches was registered, at that station at 6-30 a.m. of the 10th. It then advanced in a west-north-westerly direction, and at 8 a.m. the centre was to the north or north-west of Balasore, when a pressure of 28·730 inches was registered. From the 10th to the morning of the 11th the storm continued its west-north-westerly advance, and the centre was on this day apparently in the south-west corner of Chota Nagpur, but as there are no meteorological observatories in the immediate neighbourhood of this area, it is impossible to state its position with certainty. The rapidity of the advance of the storm on this day was also very much greater than it had been, and while from the morning of the 9th to the 10th the distance travelled by the storm cannot have been more than 90 to 100 miles, from the 10th to 11th it had travelled over probably 250 miles, and thus had more than doubled the rate of its advance. On the 12th the storm was in the neighbourhood of Sutna, when its forward movement ceased. It still existed near Sutna on the 13th, but it was filling up, and by the morning of the 14th it had practically disappeared after having existed for 6 or 7 days.

The strength of the storm may be accurately judged by the excessively low pressures registered at all the coast stations in the north-west angle of the Bay during the advance and passage of the storm, which were much lower than during the passage of any storm during recent years, and notably by the pressure at Balasore at 6-30 a.m. on the 10th of 28·670 inches. Exceedingly strong winds also prevailed in the neighbourhood of the storm, and for a long distance to the east and south of it. At Balasore during the early morning of the 10th winds were reported to be of hurricane force, and most of the observing stations in the north-west angle of the Bay reported severe gales of wind. It was, however, at sea that the main force of the cyclone was felt, and in the report from the Sarsuti sent in by Mr. Milner, the weather experienced near the centre of the storm is thus stated :—" The wind kept at S.E. and E.S.E. till 3 p.m. of the 9th), when it died away to a calm; it had been blowing a moderate gale; wind was very light until 7-30 p.m., when it began to freshen and became very violent at 9 p.m. from the W.S.W.; it was most furious at midnight to 1 a.m. (of the 10th), when it seemed doubtful if the masts would not be blown out of the vessel, the wind being then S.W. It is doubtful if the wind was not as strong as in the cyclone of May 1887 (when the Sir John Lawrence and the Retriever were lost), at which time I was on board the P V. Cassandra and nearly in the same position. On this occasion the vessel was under bare poles." The lowest pressure recorded during the calm centre in the Sarsuti was about 28·8 inches, which being reduced for temperature and gravity would be probably about 28·6 inches. Mr. Elson, one of the senior Pilots, who has had 31 years' experience on the Hooghly, was also on board the Sarsuti, and he describes the cyclone as one of the most severe storms he has ever met with, and he writes that the Sarsuti was in a severe gale of hurricane winds for 8 to 10 hours continuously. The P. V. Fame, from which a valuable report has been forwarded by Mr. Rust, also experienced the full force of the cyclone, as will be seen from the following extracts from the report :—" 5 a.m. of the 9th June.—Hard gale from east. The wind remained at east from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., blowing with hurricane force with a calm three times; the first and second time the storm recurved, and the wind came from east again, and the third time at 4 p.m. the wind came from N.E. and veered to N. and N.W. and to W. and W.S.W. at 10 p m. blowing with hurricane force from 4 p.m. of the 9th to 2 a.m. of the 10th, after which at 4 a.m., of the 10th, a hard gale from S.W. and S S.W. was experienced." From the meteorological log kept on board the Fame, the lowest reading of the barometer (after correction from the error of the instrument and reduced for gravity) was found to be 28·65 inches at 2 p.m. of the 9th. The F. L. V. Canopus, stationed at the Pilots' Ridge Light, in charge of Mr. Beahan, also experienced the full force of the storm, which Captain Beahan describes as a terrific cyclone. Captain Beahan, who has had nearly twenty years' experience of cyclones at the Sandheads, writes :—" By 8 a.m. of the 9th it was blowing a hard gale, wind steady at east; by evening the sea rose to a terrible height; at 10 p.m. there was a lull for a few minutes, and at 10-30 p.m. the wind shifted suddenly to the south-west and commenced to blow with terrific force from that point up to 4 a.m. on the 10th, with a most terrific confused sea which was breaking on board our little ship continuously. I consider we experienced as much wind in this storm as we did in the cyclone of the 5th and 6th of November 1891 (when the Coleroon and other vessels were lost), and there was in my opinion very much more sea." The lowest barometric reading recorded on the Canopus was 28·507 inches at midnight of the 9th instant. This, it may be remarked, appears so far to be the lowest pressure recorded during this storm. Most of the other light vessels at the Sandheads experienced hurricane winds during the cyclone, and the most northerly of them reporting a hurricane with winds of "force 12," i.e., 95 miles an hour, was the Lower Gasper lightship, which is only about 13 miles south of Saugor Island. Mr. Tasker, the observer on Shortt's Island, in a valuable history of this storm also reports winds of terrific force, exceptionally violent squalls, terrific sea, &c.

There is therefore abundant evidence to show that the area of hurricane winds of this cyclone was at least about 70 to 80 miles across, and that this hurricane zone crossed the mouth of the Hooghly, at one time being only at the utmost twelve or thirteen miles from Saugor

Island. Fortunately, however, few vessels were in the north-west angle of the Bay, and few therefore experienced the full force of the storm; one or two, however, did pass through the storm in the earlier stages of its formation. Thus the ship Louise, which left Calcutta on the 4th, met the cyclone on the night of the 8th, and at 2 a.m of the 9th lost a man overboard, lost 2 boats, the companion rooms were washed away, etc., etc. Also the S.S. Manora, which left Calcutta on the 7th, received a moderate amount of damage on its passage down to Madras. In the central area of hurricane winds the strength recorded on board the vessels, etc., was in all cases "force 12," the highest possible on this scale, and this equals a wind velocity of about 95 miles an hour. The area of strong winds also extended over a long distance, and thus quite 250 miles to the east of the storm the Port Officer at Chittagong reported squalls of force 10 (65 miles an hour) between 10 p.m. of the 9th and 2 a.m. of the 10th. To the south of the storm, and probably 200 miles from it at least, the S.S. Meanatchy on her voyage from Rangoon to Bimlipatam, experienced a strong gale of wind and heavy sea on the 9th and 10th. And to the north of the storm Mr. Stock, Pilot in charge of the Britannia, which was anchored in the Hooghly at Mud Point, reports that he had very hard squalls and a whole gale (65 miles an hour wind velocity) from 10 p.m. of the 9th to 6 a.m. of the 10th, then squalls and moderate gale for some hours, then again a whole gale up to 4 a.m. of the 11th; so that for a long distance on these three sides of the storm very bad weather prevailed.

Usually intense cyclones are accompanied by storm waves when they reach the coast, but it must be remembered that a storm wave striking the coast at low water produces little or no effect and does not flood the land, while the same wave coming in with a high tide might produce most disastrous results. In the present case the centre of the storm apparently reached the Balasore coast nearly at low water, when any storm wave would have little effect. The Collector of Balasore has, however, reported that by the action of the cyclone "some 650 acres of cultivated lands were flooded with salt water on the sea coast and along the Burrabolang river; 13 head of cattle near the sea perished. No human lives were lost." It is evident, therefore, the cyclone was as usual accompanied by some kind of a storm wave, though probably not a high or very destructive one.

Immediately, however, the storm advanced over the land, a rapid decrease in its intensity took place, and it did practically no damage at the inland stations, though gales of wind were reported at a considerable number of stations in the neighbourhood of its path.

A wave of monsoon winds accompanied the advance of the storm, and rainfall was general over the province from about the 8th to the 12th, though on the 13th it became rather local. Practically, therefore, the rains may be said to have broken in Bengal from the 8th of June.

After the disappearence of the storm there was a rapid rebound of pressure in Bengal, and it became in excess of the normal, so that conditions again became unfavourable for the continued advance of the monsoon winds over Bengal. A very feeble area of barometric depression formed in Central Bengal on the 16th, and existed for two or three days, thus tending at that time to confine the heavy rainfall to the east and north of the province, and from the 18th a break in the rains set in over Bihár, Chota Nagpur, Orissa, and South-West Bengal, and also over a considerable part of East and North Bengal, which continued until the 24th or 25th, when again fairly general, though in most cases light, rain again set in.

For the second half of the month beyond the break in the rains just alluded to, the changes of meteorological conditions do not call for any detailed comment. There were the usual small oscillations of temperature and pressure, and the alternate strengthening of the easterly and westerly components in the wind direction, which characterise ordinary monsoon weather, and, so far as could be judged from the wind velocities during the whole of the second half of the month, the strength of the monsoon current was quite equal to, if not in excess of, the strength in normal years. Though this was the case, it must, however, be remarked that the rainfall of the second half of the month was extremely light until almost its close, when the falls became heavier, even though the heavier falls were not accompanied by any strengthening of the winds. Hence the general rainfall of the month has been rather less than usual, except in the western districts which were directly influenced by the cyclone, and in parts of the northern districts.

Pressure—Was at the commencement of the month in distinct excess of the normal, but during the formation and advance of the cyclone very defective pressures were recorded. After the cyclone had passed away the rapid rebound of pressure caused an excess to be again recorded, and this excess remained to a considerable extent up till the close of the month. The distribution during the last ten days of the month was unusual, for a band of relatively high pressure occupied South Bengal, Orissa, and the neighbouring portions of the Bay, while pressure was comparatively low in the north of the province. For the whole month the mean pressure has been in slight but distinct excess at almost all stations, the only exceptions being in such cases Sibsagar, Dhubri, Jalpaiguri, and Darjeeling; but, on the other hand, the slight excess generally increases towards the southern stations, where it is larger than 0·02."

Temperature.—The changes of temperature during the month have to a great extent followed the distribution of rainfall, and thus the mean temperature for the month has been in slight defect (less than one degree) in Orissa, South-West Bengal, North Bihár, Chota Nagpur, and Assam; while, on the other hand, slight excess temperatures (less than half a degree) have been registered in East and North Bengal and South Bihár. For the whole of Bengal for June the mean temperature is less than three-tenths of a degree in defect of the normal.

Rainfall.—The rainfall for June has been in excess of the normal amount in Orissa, Chota Nagpur, and North Bihár, and in defect in all other divisions. The maximum variations are from one excess fall of 32 per cent. in Orissa to a defect of 25 per cent. in North Bengal and of 21 per cent. in South Bihár and East Bengal. Generally speaking, the actual falls have ranged from about fourteen inches in East and North Bengal, to an average fall of five and-a-third inches only in South Bihár. Falls indeed of less than five inches have been reported over a considerable part of Bihár, and such is the case in parts or the whole of the districts of Sonthal Parganas, Monghyr, Patna, and Shahabad, while indeed falls of less than three inches are recorded at Mohania Sikroul, Jahanabad, Hilsa, and Gogri. Falls indeed have been in defect of the normal by five inches and upwards over a large part of North and South-East Bengal, while the falls have been about 3 inches in defect over practically all the eastern half of the province.

The following table gives a condensed view of the rainfall of the various divisions of Bengal in June, and in each of the previous months of the present year, as compared with the normal values for the same periods. The figures given represent the actual falls expressed as percentages of the normal falls, and it will there be seen that the rainfall of June was decidedly deficient, generally equalling perhaps about 95 per cent. of the normal, that of May was also deficient, and of the previous four months January and March were months of deficient falls, while February and April were months of considerable precipitation. The general average fall for the first six months of the year is, however, in all cases, except North Bengal, in distinct defect of the normal, the defect being very large in South Bihár:—

The following table gives full data for the comparison of the actual and normal rainfall of the month of June in all districts in the province. The figures are derived from the average and actual rainfall of the rain-recording stations in each district, due allowance being made for the area which each represents. This gives a more accurate average than the arithmetical means given in the weekly and monthly meteorological tables. The first column gives the normal district rainfall as determined from the rainfall records of the past 18 years; the second column the district rainfall as determined from the weighted actual rainfalls of the month at the reporting stations in the district; the third column expresses the ratio of the actual district rainfall of the past month to the normal as a percentage, while the fourth gives the percentage variation or the difference of column three from 100:—

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0·5° higher; and, finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

Explanation.—.....indicate that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

CALCUTTA, the 12th July 1892.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 9TH OF JULY 1892.

THE meteorological conditions during the previous week were of ordinary light to moderate monsoon character, and the rainfall during that week had been decidedly heavier than during the previous weeks. At the commencement of the present week pressure was generally rising slowly in Bengal, and had become above the normal at all except a few of the north-eastern stations. A steady south-easterly and easterly monsoon current was blowing over the whole province, and at the head of the Bay winds were strong. Rainfall on the 3rd was almost absent in Orissa and South Bihár, but it was fairly general in all other divisions. On the 4th of July the changes in Bengal were again small, and pressure rose by about a twentieth of an inch, and therefore became rather largely in excess of the normal. A steady monsoon current, however, continued to flow over Bengal, and the rainfall reported on the 4th was general in all districts except Bihár. On the 5th a very slow fall of pressure commenced, though pressure still remained in excess of the normal, and wind directions became a little more southerly than they had been. Rainfall therefore fell off in amount in Orissa and South-West Bengal, but it became much heavier than it had been in North Bihár and North Bengal. On the 6th similar conditions obtained in Bengal, and rainfall became exceptionally heavy in the north of the province. On the 7th pressure was falling over the whole of Bengal, and it had become below the normal in all districts, so that again conditions became more favourable for the advance of the monsoon current over Bengal, and on the 7th rain was reported in all districts except Orissa and South-West Bengal, and the falls in the north of the province were even heavier than they had been on the 6th; and falls exceeding ten inches were reported at several stations. On the 8th pressure began to rise slowly, but in other respects there was no practical change in conditions, and rainfall on the 8th at some of the northern stations was again heavier than on the 7th, and Jalpaiguri on this day reported 15·88 inches. On the 9th pressure had fallen rapidly in Orissa and moderately at the eastern and southern stations, but it was rising elsewhere; winds became more easterly than they had been, and were influenced by the existence of a small storm in the Bay, and indeed they formed part of a cyclonic circulation, and rainfall on the 9th became more general than it had been, but the heaviness of the falls in the north of the province decreased very rapidly.

Over Bengal itself, therefore, the changes during the week were unimportant, except from the fact that the rainfall had been steadily increasing in heaviness, particularly over the north of the province. On the other hand, certain changes were taking place in the Bay which were much more important. Even at the close of the previous week winds had begun to strengthen largely at the Ceylon stations, pointing to the fact that a considerably stronger burst of monsoon winds than there had been since the early part of June was advancing up the Bay. These strong winds commenced about July 1st, and they continued on the 2nd and 3rd, and from the 3rd to the 4th a small storm appeared to form in front of this advance, and on the 4th strong winds began to be reported in the east of the Bay at Diamond Island as well as in the south of the Bay. On the 5th the centre of the small storm was probably in latitude 15° N., and it was increasing in strength The stations round the whole of the central parts of the Bay showed distinct cyclonic circulation of winds, and exceptionally strong winds were blowing on the east and south of the storm, probably indicating that the storm itself was at least of moderate strength. From the 4th to the 5th the small storm had advanced slowly in a north-north-westerly direction. On the morning of the 6th the small storm again appeared to have advanced in a north-north-westerly direction, and was probably in the latitude of Cocanada, but it had not increased in intensity. On the 7th it had distinctly diminished, and had become a depression of little intensity, which apparently existed off the Ganjam coast, and the circulation of winds accompanying it was feeble. Winds had also fallen off rapidly in strength in the east and south of the Bay, and had become light to moderate, and it appeared as if the depression would entirely disappear. On the morning of the 8th the feeble depression with its accompanying light cyclonic circulation of winds still existed off the South Orissa coast with a centre between Gopalpur and Puri, and there was no change in its intensity. On the 8th, however, or the last day of the week, a rapid change in conditions occurred, the residual low-pressure area and cyclonic circulation of winds again suddenly developed, and a very definite barometric depression formed with a centre not far from Puri. Winds in the rear of the storm also strengthened rapidly, and conditions generally in the Bay and partly over Bengal itself on this day were governed by this depression which was accompanied by a very distinct cyclonic circulation of winds, which was, however, of only very moderate force.

Pressure.—The mean pressure for the week has been in slight excess of the normal at almost all stations. The variations from the normal as a rule do not exceed one or perhaps two-hundredths of an inch, but in South-West Bengal, at Calcutta and Burdwan, the excess is larger than 0·03", while at Sibsagar a defect of 0·04" has been registered.

Temperature—Has been below the normal in the north of the province and above it elsewhere. The defect in North Bihár and North Bengal equals nearly a degree, and in Assam it equals nearly two degrees. On the other hand, in South-West and East Bengal and South Bihár there has been an excess of from one to two degrees, and in Orissa and Chota Nagpur of two to two and-a-half degrees. For the whole of Bengal the average temperature has been one degree in excess of the normal.

Rainfall—Has been exceptionally heavy in North Bengal and North Bihár, and moderate only elsewhere. North Bengal has almost twelve inches, or about four times the normal amount, and North Bihár more than six inches, or considerably more than twice the normal. South Bihár has also received three and-a-third inches, or an inch more than usual, and Chota Nagpur more than two and-a-half inches, or nearly a normal fall. In Orissa, South-West and East Bengal the falls have varied from three-quarters of an inch up to an inch and-a-half, and in these districts the falls have been from one to two inches in defect.

The abnormal heaviness of the rainfall in the northern districts is shewn by the fact that during the week Buxa has received 44·33 inches, Jalpaiguri 37·01 inches, and Bagdogra 33·65 inches. Falls of over 25 inches are reported at Bhágalpur, Kuch Bihar, Mickligunge, and Matabhanga, and of over 14 inches, or 2 inches per day, at Churamon (Dinajpur), Debiganj, Dinhatta, Siliguri, and Kurseong

The heaviest fall in a single day has been at Jalpaiguri 15·88 inches, but falls of over ten inches in 24 hours are reported at Bhágalpur, Mickligunge, Buxa, and Siliguri; falls in excess of seven inches at Bagdogra, Debiganj, Dinhatta, and Kuch Bihar; and in excess of five inches at Churamon, Alipore Duar, Matabhanga, Siuhar (Muzaffarpur), and Nanihat (Sonthal Parganas).

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o, overcast; g, gloomy; d, drizzling rain; p, passing temporary showers.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Municipality of Kushtia versus Mohini Chandra Pal and another.

THE judgment of the Calcutta High Court in the case noted in the margin having rendered it necessary to amend the Bengal Municipal Act III of 1884, the opportunity has been taken to revise those of its provisions which experience has shown to be defective, and to introduce certain new provisions which seem well adapted to improve municipal administration in these Provinces.

2. A draft Bill, prepared in accordance with this principle, was circulated early in January for the opinions of District Officers and Municipal Commissioners, and the Bill now laid before the Council has been revised and redrafted with reference to the valuable criticism and suggestions received in reply to the circular.

3. Bill, section 2; Act, section 2.—In the case referred to above a Divisional Bench of the Calcutta High Court held that a notification of the Government of Bengal of the 18th March 1882, extending Part VII, Chapter II of the Bengal Municipal Act, V of 1876, to the Municipality of Kushtia, was not a "notification" within the meaning of section 2 of the Bengal Municipal Act III of 1884, but an "order;" and that, as that section contains no provision saving all orders made under the former Act, none of the provisions of Part VI of the present Act, corresponding to Part VII, Chapter II of the old Act, were in force in Kushtia or in any other municipality to which they had not been extended by the present Act. The difficulty created by the judgment of the High Court could have been remedied by executive action, but this course would have involved much trouble and correspondence, and it was decided that it would be simpler and more convenient to amend the Act by providing that the expression "notifications" as used in section 2 of Bengal Act III of 1884 should be deemed to include, and to have always included, all directions, declarations and orders given or made and published under any enactment referred to in that section. The Government of Bengal is advised that the clause adopted with this object, which is modelled on the section which was added by section 9 of Act VII of 1891 to Act X of 1841, will best effect the validation of the at present doubtful orders retrospectively from the date of the enactment of Bengal Act III of 1884.

4. Bill, sections 3 and 4; Act, sections 9, 11 and 12.—Under section 10 of Bengal Act V of 1876, which deals substantially with the same matters as section 9 of Bengal Act III of 1884, action could be taken by the Lieutenant-Governor either on the recommendation of the Commissioners at a meeting, or of his own motion. The Act of 1884 struck out the latter condition. Experience has shown that this limitation has in some cases occasioned inconvenience and hardship, without doing any practical good, and has thrown needless difficulties in the way of modifying the jurisdiction and constitution of particular municipalities. The power to make such changes is reserved to the Local Government by all other Municipal Acts in India, and the Lieutenant-Governor considers that the Government of Bengal should be in a position to exercise it, if necessary, without any restriction. The sections which have been drafted for this purpose are modelled on sections 194 and 195 of the Punjab Municipal Act XX of 1891. They require the Government to notify its intention of varying the municipal area or constitution, they give ample opportunity to the inhabitants of objecting to the proposed alteration, and they provide that such objections shall be considered by the Government. Sections 11 and 12 of the Act are now rendered unnecessary by clause (b) of proposed section 9 and are therefore repealed.

5. Bill, sections 5, 7, 9, 12, 13 and 14; Act, sections 14, 17, 21, 24 and 25.—Power has been taken in these sections to make appointments by official designation in the manner provided for by section 7 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act III of 1885. Provision has also been made, on the model of section 6 of the Punjab Municipal Act, for fixing the term of office of Commissioners by rule, for introducing retirement by rotation for which some municipalities have expressed their preference, and for preventing inconvenience in the case of Commissioners appointed by office.

6. Bill, section 8; Act, section 18.—This section has been amended so as to provide for the resignation of a Chairman being reported to, and accepted by, the Government, and the resignation of a Vice-Chairman or a Commissioner being notified to, and accepted by, the Chairman of the municipality.

7. Bill, section 10; Act, section 23.—The law, as it stands now, empowers the Government to appoint the Chairman of every municipality mentioned in the second schedule of the Act, and to remove the name of any municipality from that schedule, but not to enter any fresh name in the schedule except the names of newly-created municipalities, or municipalities the Commissioners of which have been superseded under section 65. In the amending section power is taken to include a municipality in the second schedule as well as to remove it from that schedule, and it is provided that in either case the office of Chairman shall become vacant. The object of the change is to avoid the necessity of resorting to the stringent control sections (64—66) whenever the affairs of a municipality are found to have fallen into disorder and call merely for the exercise of a higher degree of administrative skill and experience than can ordinarily be looked for among the Commissioners themselves.

8. Bill, section 15; Act, section 26.—Under the present law it has been held that the powers of the outgoing elected Commissioners determine as soon as the next election has been held. But until the results of the election are known, it is impossible for the local officers to draw up a list of persons nominated for appointment by Government, and it is found in practice that some time may elapse before the list can be settled and the appointments actually made. During this period municipal business is necessarily in abeyance, as the outgoing elected Commissioners cannot act, and the outgoing appointed Commissioners, though legally qualified, may not be able to form a quorum under section 42, and in any case are disinclined to transact any business of importance. Section 26 has accordingly been amended by providing that the outgoing Commissioners shall hold office until the new body of Commissioners has been fully constituted, that is to say, until the appointed members have been actually gazetted. In order to obviate the delay and inconvenience that might arise from the fact that the election of the new Chairman and Vice-Chairman, ordinarily completed at the first meeting of the Commissioners, is not valid until sanctioned by Government, a clause has been added declaring these officers competent to act from the date of their election, until the orders of Government are known.

9. Bill, section 16; Act, section 29 A (proposed).—This section, modelled on section 41 of the Punjab Municipal Act, enables the Government to delegate to Commissioners of Divisions certain powers and functions of minor importance. A clause has been added requiring the delegation in each case to be notified in the Gazette.

10. Bill, section 17; Act, section 30.—It has been held by the Advocate-General that a notification issued under section 30 in respect of a road in a municipality has the effect of excluding such road from the operation of the Act altogether, so that the provisions and those of the bye-laws framed under it cannot be enforced within the excluded area. Words have therefore been introduced limiting the effects of the second and third paragraphs of section 30 to that section and any other specified sections.

11. Bill, section 18; Act, section 37 A (proposed).—The object of this section is to enable municipalities to combine with one another and with District Boards and Cantonment authorities to carry out works, and to administer such matters as the registration of carts, the taxation of carriages, the disposal of rubbish and night-soil, in which they may be jointly interested. The interposition of the Commissioner, provided for in the second paragraph, would only become necessary in the event of the municipalities concerned failing to agree among themselves as to the formation of a Joint Committee.

12. Bill, section 19; Act, section 53.—Under the present Act no power is given to frame rules for the guidance of ward Committees, or to allot them funds for expenditure in discharging the duties delegated to them.

13. Bill, sections 20 and 21; Act, sections 57 and 58.—The changes in these sections, which are based partly on the English Municipal Corporations Act of 1882, are intended to remove a doubt which existed on the question whether a Municipal Commissioner could hold any office of profit under the municipality, and to define more clearly the obligations which Municipal Commissioners are under in respect of voting in matters affecting their own interests.

14. Bill, section 22; Act, section 59.—As the original election of a Chairman requires the approval of Government, it seems reasonable that an intermediate election should be subject to the same condition; and as the duties of a Vice-Chairman are almost as important, and may be quite as important, as those of a Chairman, it is thought desirable that his election or removal should also receive the approval of Government.

15. Bill, section 23; Act, section 66*A* (proposed).—This section provides for the settlement of disputes arising between two or more municipalities or between a municipality and a District Board or Cantonment authority. Such disputes are continually liable to occur, and it is convenient to lay down some simple procedure by which they may be readily settled.

16. Bill, section 24; Act, section 68.—The amendments proposed here merely give effect to the substantive change made in section 82, and explained at length in the paragraph treating of that section.

18. Bill, section 25; Act, section 69.—It is thought desirable that municipalities should be definitely invested with the power to spend money on the training and employment of medical practitioners. The last clause is a flexible provision which seems well adapted to meet the requirements of the advancing municipalities of Bengal.

19. Bill, section 26; Act, section 82.—In a recent case it was found necessary to depute an officer of the Accounts Department to examine the accounts of a certain municipality which had fallen into great disorder, and it was suggested that there might be legal objections to meeting this officer's pay from the Municipal Fund. The section is intended to provide for the recurrence of such cases. If the Commissioners of a municipality allow their accounts to fall into confusion, it is reasonable that the cost of putting them in order should be met by the municipality and not by the general tax-payer.

20. Bill, section 27; Act, section 85.—It is believed that the difficulties of carrying out the assessment of a municipality will be reduced if, instead of being confined to a single method of assessment, it is open to the Commissioners to adopt for particular parts of the town whichever method may be found best suited to the circumstances of the case.

21. Bill, sections 28 to 39; Act, sections 86*A* to 86*M*, 87, 88, 90, 92, 93, 94, 96, 97, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 108, 112, 113, 114, 114*A* (proposed), 114*B* (proposed), 118, 121.—The Lieutenant-Governor's attention has been drawn in various ways to the general inadequacy and inequality of municipal assessments throughout Bengal, and he is satisfied that, in view of the higher standard of administration which is now required of the Commissioners, it is desirable to provide them with a more efficient machinery for discharging this portion of their duties. The sections which have been drafted for this purpose give effect to the principle, already followed in Calcutta and several other important municipalities, that all assessments shall be made by a salaried assessor appointed by the Commissioners and working under their authority. The Commissioners will fix the rate at which taxation of either kind shall be levied, and the Assessor will determine the valuation, i.e., where the tax on holdings is in force, the annual value of each holding, and where the tax on persons is in force, the assessable income of each person occupying a holding. Appeals from the Assessor's decisions will be heard by three Municipal Commissioners appointed at a meeting, and power is given to the Assessor to appeal from the decision of the Commissioners to the Magistrate. Provisions have been added, borrowed from the English law on the subject of parochial rating, which entitle the Assessor to be heard, or to state his opinion, in every appeal, and lay down that the valuation made or opinion stated by him shall be deemed to be right unless it is proved to be wrong.

22. Bill, section 40; Act, section 125. The amendment merely adds a sanction to section 125.

23. Bill, section 41; Act, section 127.—The object of the amendment is to provide a ready means of realizing municipal dues from defaulters living out of the jurisdiction of the District Magistrate.

24. Bill, sections 42 and 44; Act, sections 141 and 147*A* (proposed).—These sections are intended to guard against the hardship arising from the double taxation or double registration of carriages, horses, and carts.

25. Bill, section 43; Act, section 142.—Under section 83 of the old Calcutta Municipal Act IV (B.C.) of 1876, every cart kept or used within the town of Calcutta, the Suburbs or Howrah, had to be registered in the office of the Commissioners of Calcutta, and section 85 provided for the Suburban and Howrah Municipalities receiving a share of the fees. In order to prevent double registration, Howrah and the Suburbs of Calcutta were excluded from the operation of section 142, Act III (B.C.) of 1884. Under section 94 of Act II (B.C.) of 1888, only the carts kept or used within the limits of Calcutta or Howrah are to be registered in the office of the Calcutta Municipal Commissioners, and under section 96 a division of the proceeds has to be made between Calcutta and Howrah and such other adjacent municipalities as the Local Government declares entitled to a share, in such proportion as the Local Government may from time to time determine. It would be a more convenient arrangement if the whole of the receipts from carts kept or used within Calcutta and Howrah were divided between those municipalities, and the Cossipore-Chitpur, Maniktollah, and South Suburban Municipalities were left to register their own carts and levy fees under sections 142 and 143 of the Bengal Municipal Act. In order to make this possible, it is proposed to omit from clause (c) of section 142 the words "or the Suburbs of Calcutta," which ought to have been repealed when the Calcutta Municipal Consolidation Act was passed

The concluding paragraph of the section is intended to clear up a practical difficulty that has been met with in working section 142.

26. Bill, section 45; Act, section 175.—This amendment will enable bye-laws, requiring persons to do specific acts, to be enforced by the procedure laid down in section 175 and the following sections.

27. Bill, section 46; Act, section 199*A* (proposed).—It is desirable to empower Municipal Commissioners to prohibit the use of unwholesome water.

28. Bill, section 47; Act, section 200.—This amendment, based upon section 315 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, extends the powers of Municipal Commissioners to deal with insanitary blocks of land.

29. Bill, sections 48 and 49; Act, sections 217 and 218.—These amendments merely add a sanction to sections 199A, 206 and 207.

30. Bill, section 50; Act, section 236.—This amendment is intended to remove the difficulty hitherto experienced in enforcing orders duly passed under section 236.

31. Bill, sections 51 to 58; Act, sections 237-244 (proposed).—The inadequacy of the building regulations embodied in sections 236-244 of the Bengal Municipal Act has on several occasions been brought to notice, and it is believed that considerable reforms are needed. The draft sections now suggested are based on the provisions of the Punjab Municipal Act.

32. Bill, section 59; Act, sections 256*A and* 256*B* (proposed).—This section seems to be more elastic in its operation than section 256 of the existing Municipal Act, which recognises no middle course between leaving a burial-ground open and closing it outright.

33. Bill, section 60; Act, section 261.—The necessity of this change is obvious, and it is probable that the section may admit of further extension.

34. Bill, section 61; Act, section 261*A* (proposed).—This section has been inserted in consequence of a representation that the crowded state of the huts used as lodging-houses in some municipalities is a source of danger to health.

35. Bill, section 61; Act, sections 261*B and* 261*C*.—The increasing use of mineral oils for lighting purposes, and the danger involved in their storage, seem to render these sections necessary.

36. Bill, sections 62 and 63; Act, sections 271 and 273.—These additions are necessary to provide a sanction for the sections referred to.

37. Bill, sections 64, 65, 66 and 74; Act, sections 279, 290 and 295.—These sections have been suggested by recent experience of the working of the provisions of the present Act dealing with water-supply. They raise the maximum limits of water-rate that may be levied; they provide an improved procedure, taken from the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Water-works Act, 1891, for regulating exemptions from water-rate; and they introduce provisions, based partly on the Calcutta Municipal Act, and partly on the English Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, which seem likely to enable Municipal Commissioners to deal more effectively with the question of supplying water for domestic purposes through communication pipes.

38. Bill, section 67 ; Act, sections 349*A to* 349*C* (proposed).—The existing Municipal Act is clearly defective in the matter of fire-brigades and dealing with outbreaks of fire, and the Lieutenant-Governor has little doubt that these sections are really required.

39. Bill, section 68 ; Act, section 350*A* (proposed).—This section accords additional power to Municipal Committees to make rules in hill municipalities. It is notorious that while in most of the hill stations in India the municipal body have considerable powers to control the owners of property within municipal limits as to building, moving earth, cutting away hillsides, altering drains, cutting down trees, and the like, the powers conferred upon the Municipal Commissioners of Darjeeling and Kurseong, which are the only hill sanitaria in Bengal, are wholly inadequate to meet the special conditions of these places.

40. Bill, section 69 ; Act, section 351.—It is thought right that the Local Government should have the power of cancelling its confirmation of a bye-law.

41. Bill, section 70 ; Act, section 351*A* (proposed).—This section corresponds to section 32 of Bengal Act III of 1885, and confers on the Commissioners powers with which it seems desirable that they should be vested.

42. Bill, section 71 ; Act, section 353.—The object of this section is to strengthen municipal administration, especially in matters of conservancy and sanitation, by giving Magistrates and Sub-divisional Officers concurrent jurisdiction with the Commissioners to order prosecutions for municipal offences.

43. Bill, section 72 ; Act, section 365.—Several municipalities have suggested that their own servants should be given the same powers of arrest, etc., as police officers in respect of offences against the Municipal Act. In support of the proposal it is urged that the number of police employed in towns is small and is liable to be still further reduced ; and that in any case the servants of the Commissioners are likely to be more interested in the suppression of municipal offences than the police. The section has been drafted so as to confer the power asked for, while at the same time providing efficient safeguards against its abuse.

THE following Report of the Select Committee, together with the Bill as amended by them is, by order of the President, published for general information :—

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE BILL TO FURTHER AMEND THE VILLAGE CHAUKIDARI ACT, 1870.

WE, the members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to further amend the Village Chaukidari Act, 1870, was referred, have the honour to present this report. We have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and we have modified the original draft of the Bill in the following particulars :—

The Report of the Police Committee of 1890-91.

The Commissioner of Orissa, No. 455J. of 5th July 1892.
The Secretary to the British Indian Association of 5th July 1892.

In sub-section (1) of section 2, the word "residents" has been substituted for "persons," in order to guard against the possibility of the members of the panchayet being strangers to the village.

Sub-section (2) of section 2 has been omitted. We consider that it is impossible, and would be objectionable if it were possible, to introduce the principle of manhood suffrage into Bengal villages.

In sub-section (3) [now (2)] of section 2 the word "Magistrate" has been substituted for the words "officer exercising magisterial powers."

Having regard to the fact that it is the Magistrate who will henceforward determine the number of chaukidars to be appointed and not the panchayet, we have altered the proviso to section 4, so as to provide a maximum number of chaukidars to be ordinarily appointed in proportion to the number of houses instead of the minimum limit which is now prescribed.

In the 2nd clause of section 10 relating to the duties of a chaukidar, we have omitted the words "a reasonable complaint has been made, or a reasonable suspicion exists, or" and we have also struck out the 4th clause of section 10. We have slightly altered the 8th (now 7th) clause of this section by making it part of the chaukidar's duties to report births as well as deaths, and leaving it to the Magistrate to determine at what periods the report is to be made.

In Schedule B (which contains a list of the offences to be reported and for which a chaukidar may arrest) we have added two offences, namely—administering stupefying drugs and kidnapping; and in view of the provisions of the Age of Consent Act, we have excluded the offence of rape when the offender is the husband of the woman raped.

The 14th July, 1892.

We sign this report subject to the following reservations :—

We consider that the right of electing the panchayet, which sub-section (2) of section 2 proposed to confer upon the adult male rate-paying inhabitants of the village, could be exercised by the people of many districts with advantage both to themselves and to the Government.

Under section 4 we think that the number of chaukidars to be employed should be fixed by the panchayet subject to the control of the District Magistrate, with a minimum limit as in the present Bill.

Under section 5 we would allow the panchayet to fix the salaries of chaukidars subject to the control of the District Magistrate.

In section 8 we would permit the panchayet to appoint the chaukidar, and would empower the Magistrate, for reasons to be recorded by him, to overrule their selection.

LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE BILL.

THE Hon'ble the President moved that the Hon'ble MR. COTTON be added to the Select Committee on the Bill for the regulation of Warehouses and the maintenance of a Fire-brigade.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT, 1884, AMENDMENT BILL.

THE HON'BLE MR. RISLEY introduced the Bill to amend the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, and moved that it be read in Council.

He said:—"I may take this opportunity of supplying an omission in the statement I made to the Council the other day. I should, perhaps, have mentioned that in the original Bill, the Bill which was circulated early in January last, there was a provision for raising the municipal franchise from Rs. 3, as it stands in the Act at present, to Rs. 5. The provision in the Act is that the franchise may be reduced by Government by rule, and, as a matter of fact, in almost every mufassal municipality it does now stand at Rs. 1-8, and the maximum to which it can be raised under the present Bill is Rs. 3. It was proposed to put that maximum up to Rs. 5. When the proposal was originally made and embodied in the Bill in January last, it was made necessarily without precise statistics showing exactly what numbers would be affected by this change. While the Bill was under consideration, statistics were collected, and recently I had the opportunity of going into the matter carefully, and the result of those statistics stated generally is to show that a franchise of Rs. 5 would reduce the numbers of voters in almost every municipality in Bengal to an extremely small number. It would in fact give municipalities a constitution of such an oligarchical character that it could hardly be characterised as an elective constitution at all. The number of voters, in relation to the number of assessees, would form so microscopic a minority that the change would have been virtually a reductio ad absurdum of the elective system. There are only four towns in Bengal to which this remark would not apply, namely, Burdwan, Howrah, Patna, and I think Dacca. So that it came to this that if this new section to raise the franchise to Rs. 5 were introduced, it would affect four towns only and no more. Under these circumstances, and considering the absurd result the proposed change would produce in other municipalities, it has been thought best to omit the section altogether, and to leave the franchise as it stands."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Bill was read accordingly.

The HON'BLE MR. RISLEY also applied to the President to suspend the Rules for the Conduct of Business.

The President having declared the Rules suspended—

The HON'BLE MR. RISLEY also moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble the Officiating Advocate-General, the Hon'ble Mr. Allen, the Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar, the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 23rd July, 1892.

EMIGRATION TO BRITISH AND FOREIGN COLONIES FROM THE PORT OF CALCUTTA DURING THE YEAR 1891.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT—EMIGRATION No. 2067.

Calcutta, the 16th July 1892.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Annual Report on Emigration from the Port of Calcutta to the British and Foreign Colonies for the year 1891.

THE Report of the Protector of Emigrants, which should, under the orders of Government be submitted by the end of April, was not ready until the 20th June, owing to certain returns being received late from the Emigration Agents to the Colonies and from the District Officers. The Report is even now incomplete, inasmuch as the maps, which are under preparation for it, have not yet come up to Government. Steps should be taken to ensure greater punctuality in future, in order that the report may reach the Government of India by the prescribed date, the 1st July.

2. Some small alterations were made during the year in the rules in force under the Colonial Emigration Act XXI of 1883.

Amendment of rules under Act XXI of 1883.

3. The number of adult emigrants indented for by the colonies amounted to 13,867, showing a slight increase on the indent for 1890. The largest indents, as before, were made by Demerara and Trinidad. There was a large decrease in the requisition of the Dutch colony of Surinam from 1,256 in 1890 to 698 in 1891, and even this requisition was not fully complied with, the actual supply having only amounted to 563½ adult labourers. This was, however, the only case in which the supply fell materially short of the requisition, and on the whole 14,401 adult coolies were supplied as against 15,867 indented for.

Requisitions, recruiting, and despatch of emigrants.

The following table shows the number of emigrants registered, brought down to the Calcutta depôts, and actually embarked during the past two years:—

Number of emigrants registered in the districts	23,078	25,613
Ditto ditto who arrived in the depôts	18,064	18,163
Ditto ditto embarked	13,061	15,668

The statement shows that the high standard of emigration attained to in the previous year has been maintained, and that there is no difficulty in meeting the requirements of the colonies.

The increase in the number of licensed recruiters from 768 to 1,003 is said to be the result of an endeavour on the part of the agents to confine their recruiting operations as far as possible to the localities from which the labourers are really drawn, in preference to picking up in Calcutta and the 24-Parganas bodies of coolies who have been brought down under the free emigration system.

4. The tendency of the year has been to recruit in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh rather than in Bengal Proper or Bihár. The following table compares the district of registration with that of birth as declared by the emigrants. Besides the four regions at the top of the four columns, 551 declared themselves to be natives of the Panjáb, Central Provinces, Madras, Bombay, Afghanistan, and various Native States. Two only were said to come from Afghanistan, 3 from Madras, and 14 from Bombay:—

		Bengal.	Bihár.	North-Western Provinces.	Oudh.
Number registered in ...	1891...	2,047	3,347	15,208	5,011
	1890...	2,253	4,393	12,483	3,947
Number who declared themselves to be natives of.	1891...	1,804		17,205	6,053
	1890...	3,400		13,983	5,173

As in the previous year, the chief supplies were drawn from the Azamgarh, Basti, Ghazipur, Balia, and Gonda districts in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the leading Bihár district (Shahabad), standing ninth on the list with a supply of only 693 emigrants as against 4,505 drawn from Azamgarh. A statement included in the report, showing the registrations in Bengal and Bihár for the colonies, contrasted with those for the tea districts, shows that there is still no tendency towards a clash of interests. Apart from this purpose, however, the figures of recruitment given for the tea districts are useless, as they do not include the large number of free emigrants to those districts who are neither registered nor put under contract in Bengal.

5. The Lieutenant-Governor observes with regret that the efforts of the agents to render an account of the large number of coolies who disappear between registration and admission into the Calcutta depôts have met with but very indifferent success. While 25,613 persons were registered for emigration, only 18,163 reached the Calcutta depôt, and of this difference of 7,450 persons, only 698 are accounted for in paragraph 20 of the Report as having died, deserted, been left behind or detained in the sub-depôts, or discharged by the Agency in Calcutta. In the Resolution on the report of the preceding year a hope was expressed that if the agents could spare the time to visit their up-country sub depôts, and to insist locally on details as to all coolies admitted into those sub-depôts being registered, some real improvement in this respect might be arrived at. His Honour understands that some at least of the Agents have in the past year visited their mufassal depôts, and the present report shows that they have seriously endeavoured to introduce a register which will enable all recruited coolies to be accounted for.

Sanitation and management of the depôts.

6. A satisfactory decrease is found in the percentage of deaths and desertions in depôt as compared with 1890. The Medical Inspector, Calcutta, reports that "this is doubtless due to the exercise of greater care at the recruiting centres in the selection of coolies for importation to Calcutta. At the same time, it should be noted, the total number of rejections for the year 1891 is still high, and that this is the case in spite of repeated representations and cautions from the Colonial Agents to the recruiting agents."

The amount of sickness in depôt also compares favourably with that of 1890. Malarial fever heads as usual the list of sicknesses, with a ratio of 1·49 per cent. on the depôt population. Next to fever comes measles, which was generally prevalent in all the depôts throughout the year, the epidemic being marked in the case of the Jamaica depôt by a peculiar tendency to attack adults in preference to children. The Medical Inspector reports that, in spite of all precautions, sporadic cases of the disease could not be prevented from recurring, although it was so far kept in check that no ship was delayed in embarkation or despatch. He suggests that strict orders should be issued to Civil Surgeons and other medical officers in recruiting districts to examine carefully all batches of coolies before despatch to Calcutta, with a special view to detecting incipient cases of measles. All coolies are at present, under the Act and rules, examined medically before registration, and it seems doubtful whether a further examination before despatch from the recruiting district would not be a harassment disproportionate to the gain that might be effected in preventing a few cases of measles in the depôts With regard to general sanitation, accommodation, hospital accommodation, food, and the important item of vaccination, the Lieutenant-Governor is glad to read the usual highly commendatory report upon the Calcutta depôts, two of which, those belonging to the Colonies of British Guiana and of Jamaica and Fiji conjointly, have been lately improved by the laying on of the Calcutta water-supply.

Before leaving the subject of despatch to the colonies, it should be noted that the required proportion of women—33 in the case of Mauritius, and 40 to every hundred men in the case of the other colonies—is sent with apparently less difficulty in each succeeding year.

Lastly, a by-no-means unimportant feature of the year's work was the despatch to St. Lucia and Jamaica of two of the finest of the fleet of the Anchor Line of steamers, carrying respectively 556 and 1,060 emigrants.

Return Emigrants.

7. 4,201 emigrants were sent back during the year from various colonies, including 402 from the French Colonies of Guadeloupe and Bourbon emigration to which is now suspended. Of these, 87 or 2·07 per cent. died on the return voyage. The savings brought back averaged Rs. 138-8-10 per man, as against Rs. 146-14-5 in 1890, Natal and Trinidad again showing the largest averages. The figures of returned emigrants, who have again left Calcutta during the year, show how the different colonies rise and fall in the scale of popularity among the emigrant classes. Out of 220 and 174 return coolies, who re-emigrated to Demerara and Trinidad, respectively, 143 and 58 had come from the same colony to which they elected to return. On the other hand, out of 53 coolies returned from Surinam who went out again, only 2 went back to that colony, the bulk of the remainder preferring to go to Demerara, Trinidad, or Mauritius.

Administration of estates.

8. This branch of the work of the Protector's office again shows good results on the whole, though there are, as in former years, remarkable exceptions, for which however the Protector cannot be held responsible. Out of a total amount of Rs. 81,318-7-9 left to be administered by the death of emigrants in the colonies, or of return emigrants on the voyage to their homes, Rs. 33,457-13-4 were disposed of, leaving a balance of Rs. 47,860-10-5 to be paid over. Of this sum, however, Rs. 26,510-11 refers to cases in which enquiries have been completed and the amounts are actually under payment. British Guiana, Mauritius, and Jamaica are mainly responsible for the balance of Rs. 21,349-15-5, which is still under enquiry, while all the Trinidad vacant estates have been disposed of or traced, with the exception of the trifling sum of Rs. 94-10-7. Where there is considerable delay in administering, it is due, especially in the case of Mauritius, to the necessity of an authority from the colony in each case to pay over the money after the heir has been traced, the colonies being apparently indisposed to grant their agents a general authority to pay to those who, in their opinion, have clearly established their claims.

Financial.

9. The receipts amounted, owing to large despatches, to Rs. 47,624 derived from the consolidated fee of Rs. 3 per head on each cooly embarked. The expenditure amounted to Rs. 27,632-15-5, or less by Rs. 1,554-10-4 than in the previous year, the decrease being apparently due to a smaller disbursement of pay and allowances to Emigration Officers owing to acting appointments. The balance in hand at the close of the year rose to Rs. 19,991-0-7. Proposals have been lately submitted for reducing the fee in view of the increased balance, but it was decided to leave the consolidated fee at its present figure until the close of the current financial year, when all receipts and disbursements for each year since the introduction of the Act will be fully reviewed.

10. The Lieutenant-Governor desires to express his thanks to Dr. McLeod for his work as Protector during the year, and also to Surgeon-Major J. F. P. McConnell, Surgeon-Captain A. Leahy, and Surgeon-Major R. L. Dutt, who held the post of Medical Inspector. Dr. Comins was a member of the Native Passenger Ships Commission during January and February, and in March he left India to visit the West Indian Colonies, to which he was deputed, with the view of enquiring personally into the condition and circumstances of the coolies in their Western homes.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the report and of this Resolution be submitted to the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department, for information. Ordered also that a copy be forwarded to the Protector of Emigrants, Calcutta, for information, and to all Commissioner of Divisions for information, and for circulation to all District Officers subordinate to them.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

W. MAUDE,

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

* Mean of 6 days.

Explanation.—Barometer.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the reading during the same period. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as percentage, saturated air being presented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. Rainfall the normal mean are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the subdivisional station district, i.e, from total rainfall at the subdivisional stations in the district consisting in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on for the week ending Saturday, the 16th of July 1892.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

Calcutta, the 19th July 1892.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 16TH OF JULY 1892.

On the last day of the previous week a feeble cyclonic storm existed off the Orissa coast, probably near Puri. During the night of the 9th it advanced in almost a northerly direction close to the coast, and at 8 a.m. of the 10th, or on the first day of the present week, its centre was near Balasore and perhaps a few miles to the south-east of that station. Though the storm was by no means intense, it was accompanied by decidedly low pressures, and on the 8th Balasore reported 29·286". It was also accompanied by a very perfect cyclonic circulation of winds which affected the whole province, and though the wind force near the centre was comparatively light, yet in the rear of the small storm very strong monsoon winds were blowing, and these extended over a large part of the Bay. These winds were also on this day being partially swept over Bengal, and hence on the 10th fairly general rain was reported over the whole province. Directly the small storm crossed the coast, it recurved rapidly towards the west in precisely the same manner as in the case of the severe storm in the early part of June, and thus on the morning of the 11th the centre of the storm and its accompanying cyclonic circulation of winds was in the extreme south of Chota Nagpur to the south-east of Chaibassa. In the rear of the storm a strong wave of monsoon winds swept over the province, and moderate to heavy rain was reported at almost every station on the 11th. On the 12th the storm centre was a little to the north of Sambalpur, so that it had travelled almost due west since the 11th, and it was still accompanied by a rather low pressure and well-defined cyclonic circulation of winds. On the 13th the storm centre was approaching Allahabad, and therefore had travelled west-north-west since the 12th, while on the 14th the depression had practically filled up and disappeared. This small storm therefore travelled over almost precisely the same path as the severe storm of June did; it in the first instance strengthened and became a definite storm in almost the position in which the storm of June formed, and indeed it also filled up and disappeared in almost the same position. Strong monsoon winds as usual continued to flow in over the province in the rear of the advancing storm, and up to the 13th and 14th the current was very steady. On the 13th, however, an extremely rapid increase of pressure took place, particularly in South Bengal, amounting in some cases to a fifth of an inch, while on the 14th a further increase of about a sixth of an inch took place at the western stations, and hence pressure on the latter date became more than a tenth of an inch above the normal over the greater part of the province. The monsoon current therefore began to decrease in strength from this time, and a westerly wind current set in over the province, driving back the moist easterly and south-easterly current, which had flowed in after the small storm, and on the 15th and 16th winds were westerly and south-westerly over a large part of the province. Pressure, however, began to fall slowly on the 15th, and the fall became more rapid on the 16th, when it became below the normal, so that at the close of the week conditions were again becoming favourable for another large advance of monsoon winds from the Bay over Bengal. With the falling off in the strength of the current on the 14th, rainfall began to diminish in amount, and on the 14th and 15th a considerable part of the province was almost rainless, but on the 16th again with the more favourable conditions rainfall became decidedly more general and in many parts falls were heavy. Thus for the greater part of the week under review conditions have been decidedly favourable for good monsoon rainfall in Bengal.

Pressure.—Owing to the passage of the small storm through the south-western and western districts of the province, the mean pressure for the week over this area has been decidely below the normal, and at Balasore a mean defect of 0·066" has been recorded, while at Chaibassa and Hazáribágh the defect equals 0·070". The general mean pressure over the province has also been in defect of the normal, but the defects have diminished in amount towards the east of the province, and at the eastern and northern stations the defect has equalled only about 0·02" to 0·03". Sibsagar again shows an unusually large defect of 0·052", while the other stations in Assam only report a defect of half this amount.

Temperature.—Owing to the heavy rainfall of the week, temperature has been in decided defect, and in South-West, East and North Bengal, in Bihár and in Assam the defect ranges from a degree to a degree and-a-half, but in Chota Nagpur and Orissa the defect varies from only half to one degree. For the whole of Bengal the mean temperature for the week has been almost exactly one degree below the normal.

Rainfall.—The heaviest general rain has occurred in East Bengal, where nearly four inches have fallen. Orissa, and South-West Bengal have also received very heavy falls averaging from three and-a-quarter to three and a-half inches, while in North Bengal and Chota Nagpur the falls have equalled from three to two and three-quarter inches. In all these districts the falls have been heavier than the normal, the excess amounts being small in North Bengal and Chota Nagpur, but varying from about half to three-quarters of an inch in East Bengal, Orissa, and South-West Bengal. In South Bihár the rainfall for the week has averaged a little more than two inches, or practically a normal fall, while in North Bihár the comparatively small fall of an inch and-a-half is recorded, or about two-thirds of an inch less than usual. As, however, in the earlier part of the month very heavy rainfall was received in this division, the actual fall for July is still nearly an inch and-a-half above the average.

In Assam, also, heavy rain has fallen during the week, and Silchar has received 4·91 inches, Dhubri 3·52 inches, and Sibsagar 1·37 inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 16th of July 1892:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Provisions for increase of number of members of Indian Councils for making laws and regulations.

I. (1) The number of additional members of Council nominated by the Governor-General under the provisions of section 10 of the Indian Councils Act, 1861, shall be such as to him may seem from time to time expedient, but shall not be less than ten nor more than sixteen; and the number of additional members of Council nominated by the Governors of the presidencies of Fort St. George and Bombay respectively under the provisions of section twenty-nine of the Indian Councils Act, 1861, shall (besides the Advocate-General of the presidency or officer acting in that capacity) be such as to the said Governors respectively may seem from time to time expedient, but shall not be less than eight nor more than twenty.

(3) Any person resident in India may be nominated an Additional Member of Council under sections ten and twenty-nine of the Indian Councils Act, 1861, and this Act, or a Member of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of any Province to which the provisions of the Indian Councils Act, 1861, touching the making of laws and regulations, have been or are hereafter extended or made applicable.

(4) The Governor-General in Council may from time to time, with the approval of the Secretary of State in Council, make regulations as to the conditions under which such nominations, or any of them, shall be made by the Governor-General, Governors, and Lieutenant-Governors respectively, and prescribe the manner in which such regulations shall be carried into effect.

Modification of provisions of 24 and 25 Vict., c. 67, as to business at Legislative meetings.

2. Notwithstanding any provision in the Indian Councils Act, 1861, the Governor-General of India in Council may from time to time make rules authorising at any meeting of the Governor-General's Council for the purpose of making laws and regulations the discussion of the Annual Financial Statement of the Governor-General in Council and the asking of questions, but under such conditions and restrictions as to subject or otherwise as shall be in the said rules prescribed or declared: And notwithstanding any provisions in the Indian Councils Act, 1861, the Governors in Council of Fort St. George and Bombay respectively, and the Lieutenant-Governor of any province to which the provisions of the Indian Councils Act, 1861, touching the making of laws and regulations, have been or are hereafter extended or made applicable, may from time to time make rules for authorising at any meeting of their respective Councils for the purpose of making laws and regulations the discussion of the Annual Financial Statement of their respective Local Governments and the asking of questions, but under such conditions and restrictions as to subject or otherwise as shall in the said rules applicable to such Councils respectively be prescribed or declared. Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets; &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Vol. II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Vol. III contains the letters D, E, F and half of G. Vol IV latter half of G to middle of L; and Vol. V contains the latter half of L to end of "O." The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year; but an eighth volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a Glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals and minerals of India, and as such will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The period of registration of subscribers' names having expired on the 1st October, the price will in future be in India Rs. 45 and in England 3 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made). An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England, at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs. 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole sets.

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately.

Non-existence of Mellow rock.

The British Admiralty has given notice (No. 252 of 1892) that the Port Officer, pilots, and fishermen, resident on the Seychelles, are unanimously of opinion that Mellow rock, charted as lying about 10 miles north-eastward of Praslin island, and described as drying at low water, does not exist. This rock, the original authority for which is unknown, has therefore been expunged from the Admiralty charts.

Approximate position as heretofore given, lat. 4° 11¼′ S., long. 55° 51′ E.

(2) Non-existence of shoals north-east and east of Chimney rocks.

Also, that the positions of the two shoals (marked D) charted as lying about 1½ miles north-east and east of Chimney rocks respectively, were passed over by the Stork on two occasions, but no indication of shoal water was seen; the pilot also stated that no shoals other than Chimney and Renommée rocks exist in the immediate neighbourhood. NOTICE to Mariners No. 268 of 1892, issued by the British Admiralty, is republished:—

Information has been received through the Board of Trade that on 9th February 1892 the British barque Argyll was totally wrecked on a dangerous shoal lying eastward of Ursula island, south-east coast of Paláwan island:—

The position of this shoal (Argyll shoal), as determined by the Commander of the Spanish gun vessel Mariveles, is with Ursula island bearing N. 72° W., distant about 5 miles, or in approximately lat 8° 18½′ N., long. 117° 35′ E.

NOTE.—As this part of the Sulu sea is imperfectly surveyed, and many uncharted dangers may exist, Mariners should navigate in the locality with caution.

NOTICE TO MARINERS (No. 132.)

CHINA SEA—MACCLESFIELD BANK.

[First Publication.]

Existence of shoal spots.

THE British Admiralty has given notice (No. 269 of 1892) that a recent examination by Commander W. U. Moore, H. M. Surveying vessel Penguin, of the western rim of Macclesfield bank, has disclosed many spots shoaler than heretofore charted.

The general result of the survey, which embraced 95 miles of the western rim of the bank, shows that the average breadth of the rim is about 3 miles, and that the depths over it are 6 to 33 fathoms.

In the lagoon itself, the shoalest head, 5 fathoms was found.

Until publication of the full survey, the following spots should be noted:—

Cathay shoal, reported by the P. and O. Company's steamer Cathay (see Notice to Mariners, No. 497 of 1891), is 9 cables in length in a north and south direction, and 8 cables wide. On the shallowest part, in the centre, not less than 7 fathoms could be found. This shoal cast is in lat 15° 54′ N., long. 113° 58½′ E.

Walker shoal, situated in the lagoon of the atoll, is circular in shape, and three-quarters of a mile in diameter. The shoalest spot, 5 fathoms in the centre, is in lat. 15° 55′ N., long 114° 28½′ E. The general depths over this shoal are 7 to 8 fathoms.

Oliver shoal, in lat. 16° 4½′ N, long 114° 29½′ E., was not examined in detail, but a depth of 6 fathoms was obtained on it. Shoaler water probably exists in the locality.

NOTE—Attention is called to notice to Mariners, No. 560 of 1891, in which vessels are cautioned not to cross Macclesfield bank, but to navigate "between Macclesfield bank and Bombay reef."

Commander Field places Howard shoal in lat. 4° 53′ 15″ N., long. 118° 41′ E., but it has been adapted to the imperfect outline of the surrounding objects on the charts, and placed in approximately lat. 4° 54′ 30″ N., long. 118° 40′ 30″ E.

RESOLUTION ON THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE WATER-SUPPLY AND DRAINAGE CONFERENCE.

MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENT—MUNICIPAL.

READ—

The Proceedings of a Conference held at Belvedere on the 18th July 1892, to consider what legislative action should be taken in order to promote the improvement of water-supply and drainage in towns and rural tracts in Bengal.

Read again—

The notes and correspondence which were circulated to the members of the Conference, and which formed the basis of their deliberations.

In considering the various schemes which have been brought forward from time to time for the purpose of providing the town of Howrah and the small municipal towns on the west bank of the river between Howrah and Hooghly with a supply of filtered water, the Lieutenant-Governor was led to the opinion that the existing municipal law did not make adequate provision for inducing municipalities to undertake schemes of water-supply or drainage, or to combine their resources for the purpose of undertaking such schemes. Tentative proposals were therefore drawn up with this object, and were circulated to selected officers and non-official Chairmen of Municipalities. On receipt of their opinions, a number of gentlemen who were qualified by their experience to advise the Lieutenant-Governor on these difficult questions were asked to meet

His Honour at a Conference at Belvedere on the 18th July. The reports and papers bearing on the subject were circulated to them beforehand for consideration. The Conference agreed in adopting the following Resolutions, one member dissenting from the first three, but concurring in the fourth:—

I. That it is expedient, in the opinion of this Conference, that the Local Government should be empowered, if the existing law does not already empower it, to require municipalities to apply under section 221 for the extension of the provisions of Parts VI and VII of the Municipal Act (i.e. to provide for projects of drainage and water-supply).

II. That it is expedient, in the opinion of this Conference, that the Local Government should be empowered to require municipalities to combine with one another, and with District or Local Boards and Cantonment authorities, for the purpose of improving the water-supply of the area subject to their jurisdiction.

III. That it is expedient, in the opinion of this Conference, that the Local Government should be empowered to require municipalities to combine with one another, and with District or Local Boards and Cantonment authorities, for the purpose of improving the drainage of the area subject to their jurisdiction.

IV. That when an application is made to Government on the part of the inhabitants of any tract where malarial fever prevails, or when it is notorious that there is a high rate of mortality due to the want of drainage, provision shall be made by law for ascertaining the wishes of the majority of the inhabitants or owners of property concerned, as represented by the District Board, and if the majority support the scheme, the Government shall be empowered to carry out comprehensive schemes of drainage, and to raise from the area affected such funds as may be necessary for meeting the cost of such schemes.

2. Steps will now be taken to add to the Municipal Bill pending before the Legislative Council provisions giving effect to the first three resolutions. Application will also be made to the Government of India for permission to introduce into Council a Bill embodying the principle affirmed in the fourth resolution.

3. This Resolution, together with the proceedings of the Conference and the papers laid before the members, will be published in the next issue of the Calcutta Gazette.

Vice-Chairman, Patna Municipality.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in opening the Conference rose and said:—Gentlemen, I thank you for your kindness in meeting me here to-day, to assist the Government in its deliberations on this very important subject, which is a matter affecting the health and comfort of all our countrymen in Bengal. I have only a few prefatory words to say. I believe the Hon'ble Mr. Risley's Note, in which this Conference was first suggested, is in the hands of all the members. The question has since taken a slight turn in certain respects. The first proposal was to omit the Water-supply Part from the Municipal Act Amendment Bill, and to consider the question of substituting for it an entirely independent Bill dealing more largely and more drastically with the question of water supply; but on further consideration we have thought it better, subject to a certain extent to the resolutions of this Conference, to retain that chapter in the amended Municipal Bill. We have suggested one or two comparatively small alterations, but at present the water-supply provisions stand in the amending Bill very much as in the original Act. The question now to be considered is how far to strengthen the provisions in that Part in the direction to which our conclusions after this Conference may point. There is, I think, some doubt as to what power of control the Government now has over a municipality with regard to the introduction of water-supply. Mr. Risley tells me it is argued that as the Act gives power to the Municipal Commissioners to apply for the extension of Part VII of the Act, and as Part VII, when once extended, makes it compulsory on the Commissioners to provide a water-supply, the legal interpretation of a discretionary power of that kind is that it is practically compulsory on the Commissioners to apply for the extension of the Part. But it seems to me that that doctrine is open to considerable doubt. The provisions of the law give a discretion to do some of certain particular things,—to provide drinking water, lighting, latrine accommodation, and the like. Clearly the introduction of some of those improvements would be unsuitable to some of these places, and therefore I do not think it can be said that because the Commissioners have power to provide latrine accommodation, or drainage, or a water-supply, they are therefore bound to provide it whether it suits the particular municipality or not. Therefore the first question for consideration is, shall we give power to the Government to compel Municipal Commissioners, however reluctant they may be, to introduce a water-supply? The form which the provision would then take would be that, wherever the Commissioners have power to make such application, power should be given to the Commissioner of the Division when necessary to make the application on his own part, and such application would be considered to be an application under section 222. That is the first point for the Conference to consider.

Then Mr. Risley has drawn up three draft resolutions for the consideration of the Conference, and the one he has placed first would in that case come second. If we take power to compel a single municipality to introduce a system of water-supply, should we also compel a number of small municipalities to join together for the purpose for their mutual benefit?

When we have disposed of the water-supply question, next will come the question of municipal drainage. Drainage must be divided into two heads—the drainage and sewerage of towns, and the surface drainage of water-logged tracts in the country. First, we should consider whether we should take power to compel single municipalities to start drainage systems; and if we agree to that or not, we shall next come to the second resolution, namely, shall we compel any number of municipalities to join in drainage works? And then we shall go on to the third proposal, how to treat the drainage of water-logged tracts in the mufassal, outside municipalities.

These are the points I will ask you to consider, and upon which the Government is very anxious to have your advice and the advantage of your experience. And if you agree we will take them in the order I have placed them.

I have begun by speaking on my legs, because I wanted to thank you formally for your attendance at this Conference, but in carrying on the proceedings I propose that we should speak sitting, as that is a less formal way of conducting business.

Rai Nalinaksha Bosu, Bahadur, Chairman, Burdwan Municipality, said:—Under the provisions of the law as it now stands, in order to make an application under Part VII, a special meeting of the Commissioners of the Municipality has to be convened, and if the majority agree, an application for the extension of those provisions can be made: otherwise it cannot be done. We think that power should be given to the Magistrate of the district and the Commissioner of the Division to extend the provisions of the Part to any municipality he may think fit, and when the Part is so extended, the Commissioners may be compelled to carry out a scheme.

Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji said:—As I am opposed to the first proposal submitted for the consideration of the Conference, I think it right to state my views on the subject. I am not clear what is the origin of this movement. It is not a fact that mortality in this country is greater than in other countries. Presumably, and in fact, conservancy and sanitary arrangements are better looked after in municipal areas than in rural areas, and yet I find that the Government in speaking of the vital statistics in towns and in municipal areas in the Administration Report state that the statistics of the past five years, as well as of the year 1886, show a higher rate of mortality in the former than in the latter areas. Comparing the mortality of this country with the mortality in England, we find that the mortality is 22·37 per thousand in London, and in England and Wales 21·27. In this country, whether from the greater care taken in regulating statistics, or for other reasons, I do not know, but latterly the rates of mortality in urban and rural areas have been found to be very near to each other. They range between 22 and 23 per 1,000. We must bear in mind that the care taken in other countries in preparing statistics is not taken here. We do not take into account the increasing population of the country. We strike a ratio as to the rate on the basis of a census taken perhaps ten years ago. But in the meantime the population has increased, and we make no allowance for that increase. In England an allowance is made on the basis of the rate of increase of the population as gathered from the results of the previous census; and if in this country we took into account that increase, the rate of mortality in India and in Bengal would be found to be less than 22 per thousand, less than the rate of mortality in England and Wales. Then we see that the birth-rate is progressive in this country: there is an increase of population. Speaking from the results of the census before last, because I have not before me the papers of the last census, I find that in the Hooghly district alone the population per square mile was 1,049, and that showed a density of population greater than in Belgium, a country which has the most dense population in Europe. Then we should take into account the high rate of infant mortality in this country. It is an established fact in every country that there is a larger proportion of deaths among infants under 5 and old men over 55 than at other ages; and whether it is due to the neglect at the present time of the duties and obligations of married life, which were formerly regulated in this country by our shastras, but are not regulated at present by any code of law or morality, it is an admitted fact that the rate of infant mortality in this country is proportionately very large; and that adds to the rate of mortality in this country. Then in this state of facts it is proposed to introduce what is admitted by our best authority, the Sanitary Commissioner himself, to be a new-born science—a science of which little is known at present—and it is proposed to introduce the principles of that science in a country the religion of whose people is intimately bound up with the laws of health, who are noted for their cleanliness, and whose religion, as I have said, was framed with a view to the preservation and maintenance of the people in proper health. We know that a good deal not only of mischief, but of very serious harm, was committed in the name of sanitation in rural villages from time to time. One medical gentleman advised the Government to have all the jungles cleared, another to have all the aquatic plants removed from tanks, and people had to sell their very brass pots and pans to find the wherewithal to clear jungles and clean tanks, and yet only three years ago Dr. Gregg said in his annual report to Government that several of these aquatic plants, instead of polluting, would preserve the purity of the water. We have it on the authority of Dr. D. B. Smith that swamps and marshes are not necessarily unhealthy surroundings. I shall read his own words: "Yet it is a fact that it is only certain conditions of swampy land which seem to favour the generation of disease." And speaking of the Burdwan fever, Dr. Coates said in 1877: "Burdwan fever is a thing of the past. It does not appear that this is the result of improved drainage." The following opinion is also very favourable as it comes from Sir Joseph Fayrer, but he is speaking with reference to the cremation of dead bodies:—"I am not at all prepared to state that disease must of necessity prevail as a consequence of the immediate vicinity of these burning-places, or that casual contact with the fumes and effluvia they produce must necessarily give rise to special forms of disease. The whole subject of the causation of disease by miasmata of this or similar character is too much involved in obscurity to justify dogmatic assertion that such is the case." And we know that in this country the normal condition of village life is that for more than six months in the year the fields surrounding the houses of raiyats are several inches under water, and for at least three months in the year their houses are surrounded by marshes and swamps.

I submit to Your Honour that under these circumstances it is a matter of serious importance that we should carefully consider whether anything at all should be done to throw an additional burden of taxation on the people, or to do anything experimentally which might not perhaps in the end result in good. I have been reading a work on water by Dr. Parry in which he says:—"The conclusion seems inevitable that in the present unsettled and unsatisfactory state of knowledge on the subject, the guidance of chemical analysis cannot be unreservedly followed;" and Professor Huxley asked the President of a Parliamentary Committee whether there was any known method by which if a drop of Pasteur's solution were placed in a gallon of water its constituents could be estimated. The President said it was doubtful. Huxley said every cubic inch would contain from 50,000 to 100,000 Bacteria, "and yet no microscopical examination would detect this large amount of poisonous matter in the water." Dr. Parry again said:—"Water may be chemically pure, but yet as deadly as Prussic acid." With all deference to the opinions of the learned gentlemen who have expressed their opinions in the papers before the Conference, and to the weight of the opinions of the gentlemen composing this Conference, I deem it my duty to submit these facts for consideration. What is proposed is a question of serious importance to places and towns like Howrah or Serampore. The result of the proposed measure would be simply to double taxation, and Your Honour is aware that a good portion of the tax has to be realized even at present by coercive measures.

His Honour the President having asked whether Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji was against the proposals regarding drainage also, Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji replied that he was against any compulsory legislation at all.

Babu Surendro Nath Banerjea, Chairman, North Barrackpore Municipality, said:—I must oppose the remarks made by my friend Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji. Your Honour must have seen that the particular Association which I have the honour to represent has been circulating certain questions with the view of eliciting opinions as to the desirability of the proposed legislation, and I have before me a statement of the answers received which I am in a position to place in the hands of Government, and which seems to indicate by an overwhelming majority that the sense of those who were consulted is decidedly in favour of legislation. I have prepared a categorical statement which shows at once the places from which the opinions come, and the gist of the suggestions which have been made. Perhaps it would be well that I should read the principal question which was put. It is this:—"Having regard to the terrible mortality arising from bad water and bad drainage, would you object to a law being enacted compelling local bodies, which have sufficient means at their disposal, and the necessity being clearly established, to undertake drainage and water-works, the Provincial Funds granting loans in cases of necessity?" And here are answers from Bogra, Ulubaria, Diamond Harbour, Madaripur, Kalna, Barisal, and other places. I need not read out all those answers, but I may mention that, with the exception of one place, Hooghly, there has not been a single place in which a dissentient voice has been raised. All those who have given answers have given them entirely in support of the questions which have been put. And I may say that if these papers are published, and I hope and trust they will be published, they will indicate the strong feeling which exists in the mufassal with regard to their sanitary needs. I don't know on what authority Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji speaks, but when he speaks of the death-rate of Bengal being less than in England, he seems to make a statement which is contrary to all experience. I have been connected for the last twenty years with the municipal administration of one of the most important cities in the Indian Empire, and comparing the death-rate of the suburbs of Calcutta with any such towns as Glasgow or Birmingham, we find that, whereas before the amalgamation the death-rate of the suburbs was about 50 per thousand, the death-rates of Glasgow and Birmingham are 25 or 30 per thousand. And there is the notorious fact that the registers of births and deaths are most imperfectly kept in this country. I know perfectly well that many persons do not give information of births and deaths, and therefore when we proceed on the authority of our registers, we ought to know that we proceed on very imperfect data. No doubt we are an exceedingly cleanly people so far as personal cleanliness is concerned, but as regards our surroundings we have yet to learn a great deal from the experts of the West. Calcutta, which was reeking with filth and the hot-bed of malaria, has now been reclaimed, and has become one of the greatest sanitariums in India. That has been done by the teachings of science and at an enormous cost; therefore I say that, knowing as we do the beneficial results of sanitation, we are bound to say that a determined effort should be made for the sanitation of mufassal municipalities, and if a plébiscite were to be taken, I am convinced that there would be an enormous majority in favour of effective steps being taken to improve sanitation in the mufassal. I have here a return from about thirty places, and if there were time, I could show that we have an enormous consensus of opinion in favour of effective sanitary steps being taken for the introduction of drainage and a pure water-supply. Therefore, I am not in a position to accept the conclusion at which Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji has arrived.

Having said so much, I desire to suggest a slight amendment of the first resolution. I fully endorse the spirit of that resolution, but I hope the Hon'ble Mr. Risley will be prepared to accept the suggestion which I am about to make.

[THE HON'BLE MR. RISLEY—The first resolution deals with the question of applying some kind of coercive power in the case of a single municipality.]

My suggestion will apply to that case also. I wish to add to the resolution the following—"In all such cases the Local Government should make a full statement in the Calcutta Gazette of the reasons which have induced them to act; and the municipality concerned shall be allowed the fullest opportunity for the discussion of the proposed scheme in which they are concerned." That is to say, you are using powers of coercion. The situation is such that such powers should be granted; yet at the same time you should state your reasons and justify your conduct, and the municipality should have the fullest opportunity of discussion and of saying what they have to say for the satisfaction of their constituents.

(THE HON'BLE MR. RISLEY—The proposal as it stands provides for very full representation of the municipalities affected. My first note of 7th September 1891 proposes that two delegates should be appointed to represent each municipality at the meetings of the Sanitary Board.)

Here, practically speaking, that is contemplated; but as to publication in the Gazette for discussion of the project, that, I believe, is not contemplated. That is to say, when the Government proposes to have recoure to the coercive provisions of the Act, then it ought to justify its proceedings before the public.

[THE HON'BLE MR. RISLEY—All these are questions of detail which may be determined afterwards. I may remark that section 5 of the provisions drafted in my note of 7th September last provides for publication of the scheme in the Calcutta Gazette, and for considering "any objections or suggestions that may be submitted on behalf of the residents of the municipality or municipalities concerned."]

My suggestion will perhaps facilitate the carrying out of this very provision. It will elicit public opinion and vindicate the conduct of the Government. My object is that the proceedings of the Government should be thoroughly justified before the public.

[HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT—"I think I may say on the part of the Government that I shall be quite prepared to accept that suggestion."]

I forgot to say that this matter was the subject of considerable discussion at the last Provincial Conference, in which thirty districts of Bengal were represented, and in the proceedings of which Raja Peari Mohan Mukerji took part. At that Conference the following resolution was passed :—

"Having regard to the fearful loss of life due to malarious fever and other preventible diseases, as testified by the Sanitary Commissioner, of Bengal, this Conference is of opinion that no further time should be lost in at once taking up this all-important question of sanitation, and that a supply of pure water and an effective drainage system represent the great sanitary needs of the Province. That this Conference, while it is deeply grateful to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor for the interest which His Honour's Government has evinced in the general question of sanitation, especially in reference to the extension of a supply of pure water, would earnestly appeal to His Honour to take in hand a system of drainage for the whole Province, and this Conference is of opinion that it should be dealt with as a provincial question, being carried out by and under the superintendence of Government, the local bodies being called upon to contribute according to the measure of their resources and the benefits derived by them, the Government paying money out of Provincial funds when local bodies are too poor to make the contribution."

RAI ESHAN CHUNDER MITTER, BAHADUR, Chairman, Hooghly and Chinsura Municipality said :—As this question has been raised with reference to Hooghly, I think it right to say that the principle is no novel one. We find a provision already in the Municipal Act. It is no novel principle at all, and if the question of compulsion is to be taken into consideration, I think the Government can exercise compulsion by directing the Commissioner to exercise his power of altering or disallowing the budget and directing how the money is to be spent. But even with the existence of these sections, we have no experience of drainage works or of works for water-supply. It cannot be denied that good drinking water and pure air are absolute necessaries, irrespective of any theory or any experience of other countries. Calcutta itself is an example : people are leaving their homesteads and coming to live in Calcutta in order to have the benefit of its sanitation and pure water-supply. Therefore, in the face of that fact, it is not quite legitimate to say that you ought not to introduce compulsory provisions in regard to the water-supply of mufassal municipalities. In Hooghly, five or six years ago, we made an experiment under the direction of Mr. John Beames, but the estimate came to Rs. 3,60,000, and were obliged to drop it. But under the proposed arrangement of a Joint Committee, I think the greatest good will result. I have had opportunities of communicating with some of the best men in Hooghly, and they are all in favour of the proposal. With regard to the opinion of the Ratepayers' Association, which has been referred to by Babu Surendro Nath Banerjea, I consulted the Secretary to the Association, Babu Koylas Chunder Mukerjee, who said that the Association was more in favour of drainage works than of water-works, and of course they were afraid of increased taxation: but in matters like this, you cannot avoid imposing additional taxation, and I submit that the sooner the question is taken up the better for the people; because the mortality is great, and it cannot be denied that the people are dying by hundreds for want of good drinking water, as I take it. I therefore say that the existing sections of the Municipal Act should be so amended and modified as to show that the Government is not actually introducing compulsion, but is giving effect to its existing powers, and adapting means to that power. Therefore I say this legislation should be taken up to-morrow if possible. Last season there was no tank in Hooghly which was worth the name : the river water could not be reached by everybody, and it was besides not good to drink, and for some time recently the people would not go near the river on account of the story of the snakes. I do not think people will object to fair taxation. They will object, of course, to a high rate of taxation. The water-rate in Calcutta is only 6 per cent., but that is a matter of detail which can be considered afterwards. Under the new Bill there will be first the general tax of $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., and there will be a latrine tax of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., and if in addition to that there is to be a water-rate, the rate of taxation will amount to nearly the Calcutta rate. I would, however, ask whether or not we can introduce in mufassal municipalities a tax on professions and trades. We have no such tax as that in the mufassal. I should say that merchants, lawyers and members of other professions should be taxed. It would not be a new tax in principle, and we might realise Rs. 5,000 or Rs. 6,000 from it. But even if we have to pay 17 or 18 per cent., I do not see the objection when we shall have the same advantages as in Calcutta. I therefore say, after mature consideration, that the sooner we have compulsory legislation the better.

MAULVI FAZL IMAM, KHAN BAHADUR, Vice-Chairman, Patna Municipality, said:—I quite agree with what has been said by the last two gentlemen. I tried my best to ascertain the views of my municipality and of many intelligent people from Gaya, Mirzapur, Dinapur and other places, and found that most of the intelligent people were in favour of the proposed compulsory legislation, because they have seen from experience that permissive legislation, which has existed for a long time, has proved a total failure. I am strongly of opinion that now is the time to step in and enact some legislation of the kind proposed. The only difficulty is that the people are against any new or additional taxation. But they must pay higher rates for the greater comforts and advantages they will receive. I have no experience in Bengal, but in Bihár any novelty is always opposed by most of the people, who are not intelligent enough to understand the benefits they will derive from sanitation; but when they gain experience and begin to perceive the advantages they will derive from sanitation, they will not consider the additional taxation, which must necessarily be imposed, to be a burden upon them. I will give you an instance. In a mahal in Patna there was a very bad drain which the Commissioners went to inspect, and finding that it was stagnant, we made a nice fall so as to let the water drain off. The people of the mahal were dead against it: they paid barristers and others to fight for them: but when they were made to understand that they would benefit by what was proposed to to be done, they yielded. They have no real ideas of what is for their own good, but only go by tradition. But now having seen the advantage gained by the improvement to which I have referred, they voluntarily come forward for the carrying out of small improvements, and offer to contribute towards the cost of making them. In my humble opinion the provisions of the existing law are quite insufficient for the purpose the Government have in view. Most of the Commissioners are afraid of their electors, and have not a sufficient amount of moral courage to act according to their own opinions, and there are therefore many of them who would like to see the Government step in and provide for what is necessary by means of compulsory legislation. But they have not the moral courage to come forward and express their views. I have only to repeat that I am strongly in favour of the proposed compulsory powers being given to Government.

Rai Surb Chunder Banerji, Bahadur, Chairman, Bhágalpur Municipality, said:—I am decidedly of opinion that it is expedient to require municipalities to combine for the purpose of introducing schemes of water-supply and drainage for their own benefit. I came prepared to hear a unanimous opinion on this question, and was not a little surprised to find Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji express his opinion against what has been proposed. If, as Babu Surendro Nath Banerjea has said, the Raja took part in the Provincial Conference which passed the resolution which has been read out, I am surprised to see that he has changed his opinion; and I must say I have not heard any reason justifying the opinion which he has to-day expressed. This is the first time the Government has taken up this question in a practical shape. There have been Commissions without number before—Fever Commissions and Commissions for this and for that, but nothing has as yet been practically done to improve the sanitation of towns and of villages. Nothing whatever. And now, when the Government takes up the matter in a practical shape with the intention of doing good to the people, I say there ought not to be two opinions on the question. I really cannot understand how any educated person who has given any thought to the question can come to any different conclusion. I do not wish to refer to the opinions of medical gentlemen, but I can speak from my own experience of the practical result of the introduction of pure water in a municipality. Comparing the death-rate from cholera and other preventible diseases in the municipality of Bhágalpur before and after the introduction of the water-works, I find that there was a striking reduction in the numbers after the water-works were established there. I therefore submit that we should not lose even a single day in introducing the proposed legislation; if even a single life can be saved by the introduction of sanitary-measures something will be gained. Putting aside all other questions—questions of education, political rights and the like—I think the present proposals of the Government deserve the first consideration; and as the Government has now taken it up in earnest, they should be supported by all right-thinking men. Never mind what other people may say, what has been proposed is for the good of the people, and we must strengthen the hands of the Government to enable them to carry out the proposed sanitary measures.

Mr. Lyall said:—I think Raja Peari Mohan Mukerji's objection to the proposed legislation is on the ground of expense. He fears additional taxation. If he were not afraid of that, he would be as pleased to have pure water and proper drainage as the rest of us. I think the fear of taxation is perhaps a little exaggerated. It is by no means proposed by Government to insist upon small municipalities going in for expensive water-works. That is far from the intention of Sir Charles Elliott or of his Government. In such cases good water may be obtained by sinking wells and excavating tanks. It is only the larger municipalities that can afford expensive works. Then as regards combination. There are only two parts of the country where combination is likely to be required. One is the line of municipalities on the other side of the Hooghly, and the other comprises those on this side of the river. The question came before me on two occasions—in Hooghly and in the 24-Parganas—and I am sure the municipalities will save money by combination. And I am quite sure they will never agree among themselves unless some pressure is put on them to combine, and I think it is in their interest that the Government should have the power which it is proposed to confer upon them. The question of drainage is more difficult, and it requires a good deal of working out. There is the drainage of areas outside municipalities, and the improvement of land. Rangpur is a case in point. It not only required drainage within, but also outside the town; and if the Act can be framed so as to effect improvements in drainage, not only within but without municipal areas, the people will gain enormously.

The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar said:—Though I do not wish to contradict any statement made by my esteemed friend Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji, I feel it my duty to say that the statement he has made, that the mortality of villages in Bengal is just the same as it was 50 or 100 years ago, has been and is being contradicted by every day's experience of every family in Bengal for over forty years. That there has been a serious epidemic of fever raging upwards of thirty years, there is not the slightest doubt. And as to the cause of the enormous infant mortality of which my friend has spoken, it is almost entirely due to this malarious fever. I have been all along advocating the necessity of drainage as almost the only curative of this evil. This drainage theory has been ascribed to the late Rajah Digumber Mitter, but I have shown that it originated with Dr. Dempster in 1845, when he was a member of a Committee then appointed. The fever is entirely due to the impeding of the natural drainage channels of villages, and those obstructions have arisen from roads, embankments and railways; and in my humble opinion railways have been the greatest sinners in this matter. So that, when we legislate, we must not forget to compel railways to have a sufficient number of culverts to allow the storm waters to pass through. Quite in our neighbourhood, to the north of Calcutta, we have the Eastern Bengal Railway, the villages both to the east and to the west of which were almost sanitaria before the construction of that railway. I was a medical student then, and I remember very well that almost immediately after the construction of the railway, all these villages became extremely unhealthy. It was found that the waters accumulated in the bhils and other places after the rains, which before easily found their way into three khals, but these the railway succeeded in effectively obstructing, and the result was an epidemic of malarial fever on either side of the railway. And I observe that this malarial fever on either side of the railway has been intensified by another sinner, namely, the Calcutta Municipality, who by running their pipes along the Grand Trunk Road have more effectually obstructed these khals, and malarial fever has thus been intensified on both sides of the Grand Trunk Road; so that we must not forget the actual origin of the obstructed drainage. The local municipalities are no doubt sinners in this respect, but there are greater sinners.

As to water-supply, I do not think a single word need be said. In seasons of drought most of the mortality in mufassal municipalities can be traced to drinking water from impure and shallow tanks, and there cannot be any doubt as to the necessity for compulsory legislation. It is absolutely necessary that municipalities should be compelled to provide good water for those residing within their jurisdiction. But though there is necessity for legislation of a compulsory character, we must see that we do not impose greater burdens upon them than they can well bear.

Rai Gopal Chunder Mukerji, Bahadur, Chairman, Cossipore and Chitpur Municipality, said:—I have nothing to add to what has been so ably said by the Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar and Babu Surendro Nath Banerjea.

Mr. Lyall has also fully explained the difficulty of getting different municipalities to combine. As to the necessity for providing good drinking water and proper drainage, the rate-payers of the municipality to which I belong are agreed, and they are willing to contribute their share of the cost of the improvement. The only question is whether, so far as regards the cost of drainage works, the Railway Companies and other bodies, who are the chief cause of obstructed drainage, should not be required to contribute towards the drainage of the sub-soil. I agree that compulsory legislation is needed for both drainage and water-supply.

MR. ODLING said:—I think the railway is a sinner in obstructing the drainage of the country, but it is credited with more sins than it has committed. Sir Henry Harrison in his note says that the rivers and drainage channels are silting up everywhere, and he was of opinion that even without the construction of railways drainage schemes would be required As I have said, I fully agree that the railways are sinners, but whether they are sinners or not, there are evils which do exist independently of railways.

PRINCE KHOORSHED KADER quite agreed with the opinions which had been expressed by the majority of the speakers.

RAJA PEARI MOHUN MUKERJI said:—In reply, I am anxious that there should be no further taxation. I find that the Sanitary Commissioner has said that the great mortality from fever is not owing so much to bad drainage, and an impure water-supply, as to scanty and inadequate food and insufficient clothing. Poverty is at the root of a good deal of the heavy mortality in this as in any other country, and any measure intended to save life will have an anomalous result if its effect is to add to the poverty of the people. Dr. Coates attributed the outbreak of cholera in different districts to the water-supply being impure and insufficient, to the inhabitants being enfeebled by exposure, to insufficient clothing, and to unwholesome food. Dr. D. B. Smith said:—"Poor diet is unquestionably a predisposing cause." Your Honour will be pleased to recollect that Miss Florence Nightingale submitted a letter on "Village sanitation in India" to the Secretary of State, in which she said: "It would be highly difficult to make the cause of sanitation popular in the villages, if the new movement in favour of sanitation is associated with fresh taxation demands." The Government of India, you will also recollect, published at the instance of the Secretary of State a memorandum prepared by the Army Sanitary Commission (Calcutta Gazette, 20th August 1879), and there that Government said that, "as to village conservancy, it will be necessary to trust to the gradual improvement of village arrangements by the people themselves, as they make progress in education, in the appreciation of sanitary measures, and in wealth." The figures given in the vital statistics published in the last Statistical Parliamentary Blue Book (1889) are, I submit, very interesting. Here in Bengal the rate of mortality varied from 21 to 24 per 1,000; in the North-Western Provinces, where I think we are all agreed that the people are poorer, the rate of mortality is much higher; and the most significant fact is that in Lower Burma, where the wants of the people are few, the rate of mortality is very low, 14 per 1,000 [Mr. Lyall—"The standard of living in Burma is distinctly higher than in Bengal."] That confirms my view that the rate of mortality is very low where the people are well-off, and high where they are poor. I contend that poverty has a great deal to do with a high rate of mortality. In the North-Western Provinces it is greater than in Bengal, and much less in Lower Burma. I may say that in comparing the death-rates in India and in England, I took my figures for the latter from the latest edition of Parkes on Hygiene, and for the former from the Parliamentary Blue Book to which I have already referred.

[BABU SURENDRO NATH BANERJEA remarked that the entire figures for this country were unreliable, because the system of registration itself is unreliable.]

PANDIT HARA PRASAD SASTRI observed that one great difficulty arose from the estimates for the supply of water being very high, and was of opinion that if proper estimates were made, the cost could be reduced to a great extent.

[HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR stated that every effort would be made to keep down the cost of water-works.]

The first resolution was then put to the vote and carried, Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji alone dissenting:—

I. That it is expedient, in the opinion of this Conference, that the Local Government should be empowered, if the existing law does not already empower it, to require municipalities to apply under section 221 for the extension of the provisions of Parts VI and VII of the Municipal Act (i.e., to provide for projects of drainage and water-supply).

The rider to the first resolution proposed by Babu Surendro Nath Banerjea, that the schemes in question and the reasons for compulsory action should be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and opportunity given to every Municipality to argue against such compulsion, was also agreed to.

The second and third resolutions were similarly passed:—

II. That it is expedient, in the opinion of this Conference, that the Local Government should be empowered to require municipalities to combine with one another, and with District or Local Boards and Cantonment authorities, for the purpose of improving the water-supply of the area subject to their jurisdiction.

III. That it is expedient, in the opinion of this Conference, that the Local Government should be empowered to require municipalities to combine with one another, and with District or Local Boards and Cantonment authorities, for the purpose of improving the drainage of the area subject to their jurisdiction.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor then proposed the fourth resolution, which stood thus:—

IV. That special legislation should be undertaken for the purpose of empowering the Local Government to carry out comprehensive schemes of drainage in tracts of country where malarial fever prevails, and to levy a cess for a stated period in order to meet the cost of such schemes. Provisions should be made in the law for ascertaining the wishes of the inhabitants of the area concerned, or of the District Board as their representatives, and the Government should be guided by this expression of local opinion in deciding whether a drainage project should be introduced.

Babu Surendro Nath Banerjea suggested that for the words "levy a cess for a stated period" the words "raise the necessary funds" should be substituted. He said that he made this suggestion because he did not want to pledge himself to the levy of a cess at the present stage. He had received various suggestions on this point among the papers to which he had referred, and he did not wish to commit himself to anything definite to indicate that extraordinary expenditure would be incurred and might demand fresh taxation.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor thought the Conference should make it clear that they are ready to face what will be the real difficulty in the case—the certainty that the supply of local wants is to be met, largely at any rate, by local payments. This proposal should not be sent out with the approval of the Conference, leaving the people concerned to hope that the cost will be paid entirely out of Provincial funds.

Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji remarked that the proposed legislation would be in advance of English legislation. The Bengal Drainage Act was formed on the basis of an English enactment, and it provided only for a drainage scheme receiving the sanction of the Government, when it was likely to benefit the agriculture of a certain area of land, and it was those whose lands would be benefitted who would pay the cost of the work. It is on these lines that the Act was framed and passed into law. If the Government were now to pass an enactment providing for the drainage of lands, simply because the place is malarial without any consideration as to the agricultural results of the scheme, I submit that the people who will pay the cess will get no return (leaving aside the question of malaria) for what they will pay, and there will be the greatest difficulty in apportioning the amount between the landholders and their tenants.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor said:—"I know you speak with great authority on the subject of the working of the Drainage Act, but I would ask you to consider this. I think you are rightly afraid of the Government going too much ahead in philanthropic schemes, but would you assent to an Act so framed as to be put into operation on the representation of the people interested, or the majority of them?"

Raja Peari Mohun Mukerji replied that that would not be in any way a compulsory measure.

Mr. Risley explained that it would be seen from his note of the 4th April that it was not proposed to undertake compulsory legislation to carry out mufassal drainage. The idea was to rely on local option. The action of the Government would be determined by the expression of opinion of the people of the locality. If drainage were to depend entirely on the benefits to be derived from agriculture, the question would merely be whether or not a scheme would pay, not whether it would render the locality more healthy.

RAJA PEARI MOHUN MUKERJI pointed out that section 195 of the Municipal Act provided for the drainage of lands outside municipalities, and there was also section 79 of the Local Self-Government Act, which provided for the Drainage of one tract of land, however large, at the cost of the District Board.

MR. ODLING stated that he had to deal with large bodies of labourers, and he thought they would be much better off pecuniarily if they paid 10 per cent. of their earnings to improve their sanitary surroundings and thereby kept out of hospital: the loss of pay and the suffering caused by their falling sick were enormous.

BABU SURENDRO NATH BANERJEA said:—The Raja wants to proceed on the existing law. The crucial point lies in this consideration. Has the existing law been found sufficient to arrest disease? It has not; and therefore it strikes me that the time has come when some advance has to be made in this direction, and I entirely agree with Mr. Odling that malarial fever, and deaths from malarial fever, mean so much national loss, and loss of wealth, apart from personal suffering. Therefore, the ground is prepared for an advance, and in making this advance, the Government will be supported by the enlightened opinion of the community. I speak with confidence on this point, having regard to the opinions which I have collected. All unite in one common sentiment, that the time has come when a determined effort should be made. Therefore it strikes me that this resolution ought to pass, and I deeply regret that the Raja should dissent from a resolution which will bring health to poor men and women.

RAJA PEARI MOHUN MUKERJI said:—The Drainage Act, 1880, has not remained a dead-letter. Two schemes, one estimated to cost about 2½ lakhs and the other 4 lakhs, have been undertaken on the voluntary application of a number of landholders and tenure-holders under the Act, and that more applications had not been made is due to the fact, not that the people are not alive to the value of sanitary surroundings, but because they are too poor to pay the cost of the extensive schemes of drainage.

BABU SURENDRO NATH BANERJEA observed that the proposed legislation has nothing to do with the question of agriculture. The Drainage Act of 1880 is for the improvement of the soil. What is now proposed is for the benefit of health.

RAJA PEARI MOHUN MUKERJI argued that even where a pecuniary return is expected, the people are remiss to come forward, because they are too poor, and one can well understand with what feeling the people will regard schemes involving considerable expenditure where no pecuniary return whatever is to be expected.

THE HON'BLE MR. RISLEY pointed out that the Census return showed that the population of Nadia has decreased by 18 per cent. within the last ten years, and there is every reason to believe that it has been caused by the ravages of malarial fever, and the Fever Commission reported that malarial fever is mainly due to defective drainage.

The HON'BLE DR. MAHENDRA LAL SIRCAR expressed the opinion that, in a matter like this, if the initiative is left to the people, nothing will ever be done.

BABU SURENDRO NATH BANERJEA thought that, having regard to the importance of the matter, the initiative ought to rest with the Government. The Government can ascertain the opinion of the majority in regard to particular schemes, but if the initiative is not given to the Government, he was afraid that in the vast majority of cases nothing would ever be done.

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR asked whether the principle should still be adhered to, even when the initiative was given to the Government, that they should be guided by the wishes of the majority of those concerned, or whether the people should be saved against their own wishes.

BABU SURENDRO NATH BANERJEA stated that every one of his correspondents were in favour of compulsory legislation, with the exception of Hooghly. He certainly thought the initiative ought to be taken by the Government.

The Hon'ble Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar believed that, when the law was in existence, there would be found many people to take the initiative in places where there is a high rate of mortality due to the want of drainage.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor thought the Conference was so far agreed that, when it is notorious that malarial fever does prevail in any locality, schemes of the kind contemplated in the fourth resolution should be undertaken, but the question which remains for decision is whether, before undertaking any particular scheme, we are to be satisfied with the opinion of the District Board, and impose taxation upon the local area concerned, or whether we should follow the precedent of the Drainage Act and obtain the views of the majority of the landholders, who will be the persons who will have to bear the cost of introducing the scheme. He then put to the Conference the following amended resolution:—

IV. That when an application is made to Government on the part of the inhabitants of any tract where malarial fever prevails, or when it is notorious that there is a high rate of mortality due to the want of drainage, provision shall be made by law for ascertaining the wishes of the majority of the inhabitants or owners of property concerned, and if the majority support the scheme, the Government shall be empowered to carry out comprehensive schemes of drainage, and to raise from the area affected such funds as may be necessary for meeting the cost of such schemes.

The greater part of this resolution was agreed to unanimously, but there was some difference of opinion on the question whether the District Board should be taken to represent the wishes of the inhabitants of the tract of country affected by a drainage scheme, or whether special provisions should be introduced for the purpose of recording the votes of the population who would have to contribute towards the cost. The Conference divided on this point with the following result:—

I

Note on the Water-supply of Howrah and the general questions which it suggests.

His Honour—

The Sanitary Board submit their proceedings and notes on the following schemes for supplying filtered water to Howrah and adjacent municipalities:—

A.—A scheme for supplying Howrah alone with an intake at Echapur at a cost of Rs. 10,46,225, which should apparently be Rs. 9,76,225, vide pencil corrections at page 5 of estimate.

B.—A scheme for supplying Howrah and Bally from the same intake at a cost of Rs. 11,00,226, should be Rs. 10,30,226 for the reason noted above. These schemes I understand to be amended versions of Messrs. Walsh Lovett's scheme.

C.—A scheme for supplying Howrah and municipalities south of Baidyabatty at a cost of Rs. 25,69,380.

D.—A scheme for supplying Howrah and municipalities south of Chandernagore, i.e., Bhuddressur, Baidyabatty, Serampore, Kotrung, Utterpara and Bally, at a cost of Rs. 27,55,185.

The objections on sanitary grounds to schemes A and B are stated in notes by Dr. Gregg and Dr. Lethbridge below. The main point seems to be the proportion of chlorine, which is in excess of the proportion which sanitary experts say that good drinking-water ought to contain. Of course one understands that this is one of the cases in which considerable difference is due to authority, the more so perhaps as sanitation has rather "caught on" in Europe just at the present time. But pace the experts, the source of the chlorine which these analyses show seems to be a little uncertain, and this tempts one to give the water the benefit of the doubt, or at any rate to ask for fuller inquiry. The fact that the notably high ratios of chlorine occur during spring tides at high water or half ebb seems to indicate that it is salt water rather than sewage that communicates the taint. If so, one would ask, is the taint fatal, and may not the water be practically pure, though not up to the highest sanitary standard, in the same way as a horse may be practically sound though a vet will not give him a warranty? I must admit, however, that Dr. Lethbridge's opinion as to the effect of an admixture of salt water, if correct,* destroys my argument on this point. Dr. Gregg, on the other hand, does not take so strong a view—vide last paragraph of his note without date.

* I am not prepared to admit this. C. A. E.

If the sanitary experts are to have their way, we are thrown back on schemes C and D. For scheme D I have had a statement prepared shewing the distribution of the loan according to income, the water-rate that would have to be levied, and other particulars. This statement is modelled on that given in Mr. Cotton's note of 31st July 1890. Legislation appears to be unavoidable. First of all, it is certain that the riparian municipalities would not contribute; their proposals, as summarised in the précis attached to Dr. Gregg's letter of 25th August, leave no doubt on this point. Secondly, if they were willing, the law as it stands provides no machinery for joint action of this sort. Thirdly, the cost of the scheme, so far as Howrah and Serampore are concerned, exceeds the maximum limit laid down by the Act. Section 279 provides that a water-rate may not exceed 6 per cent. on the annual value of holdings in streets supplied with water, and 5 per cent. in streets not so supplied. Now in both Howrah and Serampore the tax on holding is in force, and is levied at 7½ per cent. on annual value, the proceeds being in Howrah Rs. 1,55,488 and in Serampore Rs. 24,238. Therefore the annual value of Howrah is Rs. 20,73,173, and of Serampore Rs. 3,23,173; 6 per cent. on this being Rs. 1,20,420 for Howrah and Rs. 19,390 for Serampore. The water-rate is Rs 1,42,234 for Howrah and Rs. 21,439 for Serampore. In order, therefore, to legalise the scheme as it stands, it would be necessary to raise the percentage on annual value that the water-rate may amount to.

It will be convenient here to notice the question of drainage. A drainage scheme for Howrah is under discussion and awaits decision of the water-supply problem. Patna has just started an elaborate drainage scheme, and something of the kind is badly wanted in Arrah and in most municipalities in Bengal Proper. The Lieutenant-Governor is probably aware that the late Raja Digumber Mitter's theory that obstructed drainage is the cause of malarial fever has found very general acceptance in Bengal, and may be described as an article of popular belief. Dr. Gregg is also a strong advocate of drainage. The point, however, that I would ask His Honour to consider is, not that drainage is in itself either more or less important than water-supply, but that the people, or rather that small section of the people which can make itself heard, believe very strongly in the former and do not care much about the latter. Consequently, if there is any prospect of legislative action to enable us to compel people to provide good water, it would be judicious to include drainage in the same projet de loi simply in order to gild the pill of compulsion. The idea of forcing people to combine to subscribe for drainage is already known, and is formally admitted in the Drainage Act VI of 1880. There would be nothing to surprise people in the extension of that principle to municipalities. When once we had got the powers, it would rest with us to use them for drainage or water-supply as may seem proper. As things stand now, the fact that we cannot order a preliminary survey unless we choose to spend provincial money on it is a continual obstacle to progress, for without such surveys it is impossible to say what ought to be done in any particular case. In the draft attached to the Howrah case, it is proposed that money spent on surveys should be treated as a charge against any loan that may be sanctioned for the scheme, or if no scheme is sanctioned, shall be recovered as a loan. This would remove one of the chief objections that municipalities always bring up. They say, "How are we to pay for the survey?" But on the loan system the charge for the survey would be trifling; and once the survey was made we should see our way clearly.

I may add that these views are in the main borne out by Babu Dukhina Runjan Mukherjee's note on the drainage of the Barnagore and adjacent municipalities (extract annexed), in which a combined drainage scheme is suggested, which could only be carried out by means of fresh legislation.

Supposing legislation to be unavoidable, the next question is, what principles should it follow and what form should it take? The only precedent I can discover is that which is furnished by the Bengal Drainage and Embankments Acts, both of which recognize the principle that under certain circumstances people may properly be compelled to spend money on schemes for the public good. I submit below a draft, of the roughest and most tentative nature, of the sort of provisions which I think the law might contain. As regards the form, I should much prefer to embody these sections in the Municipal Act, which already contains a Part (VII) of 28 sections dealing with water-supply, which part can be extended to any municipality (section 221) on the application of the Commissioners, and speaking generally there can be no doubt that the Municipal Act is the proper place for such provisions. On the other hand, we are now considering the revision of the Act, and I presume His Honour would wish to carry the amended Act during the winter session of Council. The water-supply and drainage provisions would be complicated in themselves, and introduce a novel principle into municipal administration. They would therefore be more properly dealt with in a separate Act. We cannot, however, cut out of the Municipal Act the existing water-supply and drainage provisions, for these are wanted for the places which have got a water-supply already, and for places which introduce a water-supply or improve their drainage of their own free will. The distinction in fact would be this: The Municipal Act would contain the legal machinery for a voluntary water-supply or drainage scheme; the special Act the machinery for imposing a water-supply or a drainage scheme upon recalcitrant municipalities. The special Act, again, would consist of the sections suggested below, and would embody by reference the water-supply sections of the Municipal Act. In the case of drainage the question of maintenance is not so prominent, and that of individual benefit does not arise. The Act therefore contains nothing analogous to the water-supply sections, and the idea of introducing a drainage rate, though not without precedent in English legislation, need not be started now.

This seems the best method of proceeding.

C. A. E.

Draft of compulsory sections.

1. Whenever it appears expedient to the Lieutenant-Governor to require the Commissioners of any municipality, or the Commissioners of several municipalities acting conjointly, to provide a supply of water for domestic purposes or to introduce a system of drainage, he may cause to be prepared a scheme and estimates of the cost of the works necessary for the purpose, together with such plans and specifications of the same as may be required. The cost of such estimate, plans and specifications may be advanced from the public funds, and shall be recovered as if it were a loan to the municipality or municipalities concerned under the Loans Act, 1879, and all provisions of that Act and the rules under it shall be applicable to such advances.

Act II (B.C.) of 1882, section 7.

Act VI (B.C.) of 1880, section 28.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor may refer such scheme, plans and estimates to the Sanitary Board for consideration and report, and may at the same time appoint for each municipality concerned two delegates to represent the Municipal Commissioners at the meetings of the Sanitary Board whenever the scheme is discussed. One of the delegates of each municipality shall be nominated by the Municipal Commissioners, and the other shall be appointed by the Commissioner of the Division. The travelling expenses incurred by the delegates in attending the meetings of the Sanitary Board shall be a charge upon the cost of the scheme.

3. On receiving the report prepared by the Sanitary Board after consultation with the municipal delegates, the Lieutenant-Governor may sanction the scheme, plans and estimates, or any portion thereof as to him shall seem fit, or may alter or modify the same, or may refer the scheme, plans and estimates to the Sanitary Board for further consideration and amendment.

Act VI (B.C.) of 1880, section 19.

4. When the scheme recommended for sanction extends to several municipalities, the Sanitary Board, acting in consultation with the local delegates, shall include in their report proposals for distributing the cost of the scheme, including its maintenance and working expenses, among the municipalities benefited, in proportion to the income derived by each from taxation, allowance being made for any differences in the degree of benefit conferred on each, such as, in the case of a water-supply scheme, the pressure at which the water is delivered, the facilities for procuring water, the distance from the head-works, and the like.

5. If it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that the scheme ought to be sanctioned, he shall cause to be published in the Calcutta Gazette and locally, in accordance with the Provisions of section 354 of the Municipal Act, a statement of the proposals of the Sanitary Board, containing the following particulars:—

(1) A general description of the scheme.
(2) The cost of carrying it out.
(3) The cost of maintaining it.
(4) The amount of the loan.
(5) Where several municipalities are concerned, the distribution of the loan according to the income derived by each from taxation.
(6) The annual instalments in which the loan will be repayable, and the number of years required to clear it off.

Where the scheme is one for improving the water-supply, the following additional particulars shall be stated:—

(7) The total annual charge imposed by reason of the water-supply and to be met by a water-rate.
(8) The percentage of water-rate on the annual value of holdings in the municipality or municipalities
(9) The average incidence of the water-rate per head of the population.

6. After the expiry of one month from such publication, and after considering any objections or suggestions that may be submitted on behalf of the residents of the municipality or municipalities concerned, the Lieutenant-Governor may sanction or reject the scheme as published, or may refer it for amendment to the Sanitary Board. In the latter case the scheme, when amended by the Sanitary Board, shall be published and dealt with in the manner prescribed in this and the preceding section.

7. When an order sanctioning a scheme has been passed by the Lieutenant-Governor under the last section, the Commissioners of the municipality concerned shall thereupon proceed to carry it out, and where more than one municipality is concerned, a joint committee shall be formed for the purpose of executing the scheme.

8. The Lieutenant-Governor may, if he thinks fit, order the works specified in any such scheme, plans and estimates, or any portion thereof, to be executed by an officer to be thereunto appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, and the Lieutenant-Governor shall fix the remuneration of the officer and may specify a period within which the work shall be completed, and may extend such period from time to time as may be necessary.

9. The provisions of Part VII of the Municipal Act, sections 279 to 307, both inclusive, shall apply to any water-supply that may be provided under this Act.

It will be observed that the effect of section 9 would be to impose the limit of 6 per cent. on annual value for streets reached by water and 5 per cent. for streets not so reached, which is laid down by the Act, and which, as is noted above, blocks the road for the present scheme. The question will arise whether, having regard to the circumstances of Bengal municipalities, this limit can properly be raised.

I think it must be raised Can you ascertain the state of things in North-Western Provinces (whose Act I conceive contains no such maximum), and what charge is being imposed on Allahabad, Cawnpore and Agra by the new water-scheme? The Agra project is complete and at work I think Legislation of the character indicated in the draft sections above is, it must be admitted, rather a strong measure, and not wholly consistent with the policy hitherto followed in municipal matters in Bengal. The necessity of something of the kind seems to be beyond question, and it is difficult to see by what other means it can be carried out. Still I am very conscious of the novelty of the proposal, and I should like to have it thoroughly criticised before it is put forward in an official shape. Would the Lieutenant-Governor approve of this note being printed and referred unofficially to the Sanitary Board, the Assistant Secretary, Legislative Department, Mr. Odling, Mr. King of Patna, and say, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Quinn, Mr. Forbes, and perhaps some selected Magistrates, for opinion, as a proposal which the Lieutenant-Governor has under consideration?

H. H. RISLEY—7-9-91.

I AGREE in the last proposal.

I would avoid such legislation if I could, but we may be forced to it. Still, before adopting it, I should like such confidential advice as Secretary suggests. Sir John Edgar and Mr. Cotton, too, should give us their views, and I should like to be able to test personally what degree of opposition we may expect from the leaders of native opinion in these municipalities. I am not without hope that we may find the best opinion on our side.

All this assumes that we have to go in for the 27 lakh project, and I fear we must. But I should like to be assisted on that point by some further information—

(1) How do these analyses of April and May 1891 compare with Dr. Macnamara's analyses of 1878, or whenever they were taken?

(2) What are the facts as to how the riparian municipalities above Calcutta dispose of their sewage? Does it still flow into the Hooghly, or has anything been done to divert it?

(3) Is it impossible to reduce the 27 lakhs estimate? Does it provide Howrah with water at high pressure? If so, what reduction would be effected if the water for Howrah comes in only at ground level, and every one has to pump his own supply up?

As for drainage, the drainage of a town, i.e., of its storm-water and sewage,, is one thing, and the drainage of a water-logged country is another.* I doubt if there is much enthusiasm about the former. No doubt there is a general belief that railway and road embankments have done much to impede the latter. But I agree that if we are to legislate compulsorily for water, we may as well do it for drainage too.

* The Baranagore scheme seems to combine both these characters, and in Bengal, where so many municipalities are towns only in name, there may be other parallel cases.

C. A. E.--18-9-91.

Extract from a Note on Baranagore Municipality, by BABU DUKHINA RUNJAN MUKERJEE, a resident and rate-payer.

WHAT was the state of the place 30 years before? I was then only 10 years old, and, as far as I remember, I had only one attack of fever within five years. I was not an isolated instance, but such was the state of the country that the people had rarely suffered from fever. Why was the country so free from fever then? Why was there no need for Doctors or Physicians? Because the country had a good drainage, was free from jungle, and had very few stagnant, foul and nuwholesome tanks. There were also some good drinking-water tanks. I also perfectly remember that in the months of February and March, after the winter harvest, we schoolboys used to make short cuts through the fields between Pulpara and Belghuria, and before the fishing bunds were contrsucted we used to swim across the Datia khal. The Datia khal at that time was deep enough, and was the principal outlet for drainage of the Baranagore Municipality. The country was healthy and the people were all strong and robust.

2. What is the state of the country now? I do not think the Commissioners would charge me with exaggeration if I say that it is one continued scene of suffering; you see everywhere pale, emaciated, fever-stricken sufferers. There is no house where four or five members are not suffering from fever. Quinine is almost as much wanted by a family as rice. The ravages of fever are so fearful every year from June to January, and so severely is the scourge felt, that those who have the means get away and go to Calcutta and elsewhere to save their lives; and this is within a few miles of the metropolis of India. Now why is the state of the country so deplorable. and why are the people suffering so much? The causes are given below:—The construction of the Eastern Bengal Railway across the drainage-flow with insufficient waterway intercepts the free drainage of the country. The construction of the Calcutta Water-works blocks materially, though partially, the several culverts along the Barrackpore Trunk Road. The subsequent construction of the Bengal Central Railway also intercepts the drainage. The construction of several municipal roads with insufficient waterway crossing the village drainage channels, the silting up of drains along the main roads in consequence of their not being periodically cleared out, and, finally, the choking up of the different road culverts, have obstructed the rainfall over the country from finding its way out into its natural outlets, and the rainfall is thus almost wholly absorbed in the subsoil of the villages. These obstructions and want of a flow have fully and completely silted up the main outlet channel Datia khal, and at present there is no trace of the khal itself, for the khal is now under cultivation, while 30 years before it was a deep khal draining the whole tract of the country. For want of any outlet, the whole of the rainfall, 60 to 70 inches, is absorbed by the land, and the consequence is the outbreak of virulent epidemic fever. Want of good drinking-water and foul tanks aggravate these sufferings. Thirty years before, or when there were no obstructions to the drainage, the people had almost no fever. Twenty years before the unhealthiness began to appear, and the people suffered from fever now and then. The Datia khal then began to silt up, and the people began to get fever more frequently. When the Datia khal was fully silted up, the country became the hot-bed of malaria. If this state continues a little longer, a "Goldsmith" will be required to describe the "deserted village."

3. Some of the Commissioners may doubt my theory that the cause of the epidemic malaria is obstruction to the drainage and not climatic influence. For their information I would cite some scientific authorities. Dr. W. Braithwaite, in his "Retrospect of Medicine," says: "it is an established fact that the presence of vegetable matter is by no means necessary for the production of malarious disease." "Ample proof of this is cited by Dr. Watson in his lectures and by Mr. Martine in his work on Tropical Climates." The former adopts the plain conclusion that for producing malaria it appears to be requisite that there should be a surface capable of absorbing moisture, and that this surface should be flooded and soaked with water and then dried, and the higher the temperature and quicker the drying process, the more virulent is the poison that is evolved. Again, "there is reason to believe that the flooding of a porous earthy surface with water, and the subsequent drying of that surface under a certain degree of heat, constitute the sole or main conditions of the generation of the poison." I need not say that the conditions requisite, according to the above opinion, for the production of malaria, are to be met with in Baranagore Municipality in a superabundant degree. I would also quote the Government Resolution, dated the 10th November 1881: "The recurrence of this fever in a severe epidemic form, two seasons in succession, seems to point to some local cause distinct from climatic influence. The Lieutenant-Governor finds that there is a very general impression that the unhealthiness of the district is due to obstructions to its natural drainage. That this cause is operating generally to produce fever throughout the country, the Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt whatever, and he has never lost an opportunity of impressing upon District Officers and Municipal and Road Committees the great importance of doing, or causing to be done, whatever may be possible to remove this fruitful source of disease."

Have the Municipal Commissioners ever done, or ever attempted to do, anything to remove the obstruction to the natural drainage of the country referred to in the Government Resolution? Had they worked as practical men, something might have been done to alleviate the sufferings of their fellow-brethren and neighbours. What an annual expenditure of a few hundred rupees, properly and judiciously spent, would have done some years ago, would now cost lakhs to bring about, for it would take that sum to restore the country to the state it was in 30 years ago. It is due, I am afraid, to the ignorance and neglect of the Commissioners that the country has been brought to this state. But what can be expected of a Board which is constituted of pleaders and school-masters? If the Board had been constituted of engineers, doctors and practical men of the world, the state of the country would not have been so deplorable. The decided and determined opposition of the Commissioners to the construction of the most desirable work, the Datia khal sluice, proposed by the only engineer member of the Board, Rai Prosonno Coomar Banerjee, Bahadur, is solely to be attributed to the ignorance of the Commissioners in all matters of sanitation and sanitary engineering.

4. Now that the whole country has been brought to such a critical state, it is simply impossible for this municipality to carry out any systematic and effective measures for the improvement of the place. It will be necessary to secure the co-operation of the contiguous and neighbouring municipalities, such as South Barrackpore, North and South Dum-Dum, and Chitpur. As I know that the other four municipalities are now suffering in the same way and from the same cause, one system of drainage will benefit all the five municipalities. But I am not sanguine enough to believe that the Municipal Boards would ever combine to do what is needed. The only way to effect any improvement is to lay the proposal before Government and get the principal works done by Government aid and under Government supervision.

5. The remedial measures that I think necessary are serially given below:—

(a) A system of drainage comprising the excavation of the Datia khal from Dukhinsur to the head of the north Salt Lake, with sluice and regulators, subsidiary and arterial channels leading to the above main from several groups. The protective embankment along the Salt Lake to prevent salt water entering the country.

(b) Systematic clearing of the village drains and drains along the main roads to drain into the outlets or subsidiary and arterial drains.

(c) Providing good reserved drinking-water tanks.

(d) Filling up or re-excavating foul tanks.

6. Proposal (a)—

This is the only proposal that cannot be carried out by the municipalities without Government aid and supervision. If simultaneous applications are made by the five municipalities, the Government may take the work in hand. The work would cost a considerable amount, which is beyond the means of the municipalities to meet. The area of the catchment-basin is about 35 square miles. The natural flow of the country is towards the Salt Lake. Any idea, therefore, to drain into the Hooghly will be futile. From my experience of drainage works, I know that the cost per square mile varies from Rs. 5,000 to Rs. 10,000 including establishment, &c. But in this case I take Rs. 15,000 per square mile to meet the subsidiary and arterial drains, numbers of bridges, cost of valuable land, bund along the Salt Lake, and the maintenance charge. Now, taking Rs. 15,000 per square mile, 35 square miles at Rs. 15,000 per square mile = Rs. 5,25,000.

This includes cost of establishment, tools and plant, and all other charges; also the maintenance charge for maintaining this drainage system by Government. But as the railways have materially obstructed the drainage, they ought to construct their own bridges and culverts.

	Rs.
Two bridges for the main, including temporary diversion, at Rs. 20,000 each	40,000
Five bridges for subsidiary drains at Rs. 5,000 each ...	25,000
Seven culverts at Rs. 1,000 each	7,000
	72,000
Say Rs. 75,000.
Deducting this from	5,25,000
	75,000

The District Roads Fund ought to pay a contribution for bridges over their roads, and taking that amount, Rs. 25,000, the balance is Rs. 4,25,000.

Now how to meet this expenditure is the question. I would suggest the provisions of the Bengal Drainage Act (Act VI of 1880) be enforced, and the amount recovered from all the lands within the whole catchment area. The total amount of bighas within the catchment area is 35 × 1,920 = 67,200, or say 67,000 bighas. Then the cost per bigha would be $\frac{4,25,000}{67,000}$, say 6—8, and this amount payable within three years once for all will not be considered a hardship, and I think will be gladly paid for the permanent benefit. The paddy lands out of the limit of the municipalities will be greatly benefited by timely irrigation and drainage, and they are included in the taxable estimate. The construction of the supply sluice at Dukhinsur would not only meet the exigencies of drainage, but would also irrigate and bring fresh water within easy reach for both cattle and men, who have at present nothing but brackish water to use.

II.

DARJEELING,
The 13th October 1891.

MY DEAR RISLEY,

Yours of 6th about the drainage and water-supply question.

In the first place I agree in the contention that drainage is more wanted as a rule in Bengal than water-supply schemes, especially as an efficient system of drainage can hardly help doing some good to the tanks which are the ordinary sources of drinking water supply in Bengal. Water-supply schemes come next, probably, before even roads, and if legislation is necessary, as seems to be the case, I think it should be faced. My own idea is that it would be possible to do a great deal more under the present Drainage Act. There are many natives, such as Babu D. R. Mookerjee (whose note you sent me) who are quite alive to the necessity of drainage schemes, and I should think by a judicious selection it would not be difficult to appoint under section 4 of the Act a set of Commissioners who would take up heartily any sound scheme, which need not at all be confined to one municipality or district.

Take, for instance, this Baranagore Municipality. It is connected with several others, and any drainage scheme, to be effective, must be comprehensive. Why should not the Lieutenant-Governor appoint a set of Commissioners, of whom one might be the Magistrate and one an engineer fit to work the scheme out professionally? He should be able to give his whole time to it, and therefore the extra work to the Magistrate need not probably be any great tax on his time. I see no provision for payment to any of the Commissioners as such, but Government might lend an officer, and I think it would be worth while doing so.

I suggest this, not because I would object to your proposal to legislate, if necessary. I would certainly do so, if the existing Act is insufficient, about which you have better opinions than mine; and if a general Act is required, it would probably be well, as you propose, to combine drainage and water-supply schemes; but if I am right in thinking we can do what is required under the existing Drainage Act, then it is worth consideration whether it would not be better to pass a special Act now for the particular water-supply scheme which has started this proposal to legislate, and not a general one.

I believe there are many such Acts passed in England for special works to be carried out by companies formed for the purpose, or by corporations; and the experience of the working of a special Act would probably allow of a more carefully considered general Act being passed afterwards if necessary.

I must say, as His Honour knows, I am in favour of the larger scheme of water-supply for the Howrah side, even if it be a compulsory one; but unless there are objections, which I do not see, I would legislate for the one scheme only at present.

Yours sincerely,
J. M. MCNEILE.

Dated Calcutta, the 15th October 1891.

Demi-official from—The HON'BLE SIR HENRY HARRISON, KT.,
To—H. H. RISLEY, ESQ., C.S., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Municipal Dept.

YOUR confidential demi-official of the 6th October.

Legislation inevitable.

(1) If anything is done, I think legislation is absolutely necessary.

(2) At the same time I submit that it is incorrect as well as injudicious to bring into prominence the compulsory character of it. What is primarily needed is "enabling" legislation. As you point out in your note, "the law as it stands provides no machinery for joint action of this sort," and the maximum limit of 6 per cent. will prove embarrassing. On the other hand, the municipal law already recognises the principal of Government control and coercion in the case of confirmed recalcitrance. Would it not, therefore, be more fair, as well as more conciliatory, to assume—qua legislature—that the municipalities will do their duty when put into a position to co-operate, and to treat the compulsory clauses, which of course must not be omitted, as the legitimate application of the present principle of "control" to the new sections?

But should be treated as "enabling" rather than as compulsory.

Suggested outline of new sections.

I would suggest that the preamble to the Bill should run somewhat in this way—

Whereas it is found desirable that certain municipalities, especially those adjacent to Calcutta, should act conjointly to provide a supply of water for domestic purposes and to introduce a system of drainage, and whereas the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, makes no provision for such joint action, and provides no machinery which enables one municipality to compel the co-operation of another for their joint benefit, or to provide for an equitable apportionment of the cost of construction and annual maintenance of such drainage or water works among the municipalities benefited, and for the recovery of the same, the following sections are enacted with the object of removing this disability and enabling such projects to be successfully carried out.

I would then prescribe that—

(a) Any municipality interested in the proposed project, or (b) The Commissioner of the Division, or (c) The Sanitary Board, may propose a drainage or water-supply project for the joint benefit of two or more municipalities.

Such project, if not proposed by the Sanitary Board, shall be referred to the Sanitary Board for opinion.

The Sanitary Board shall, if they approve of the project generally, inform the municipalities concerned of its receipt and postpone action for one month to enable any municipality to object to the project ab initio. At the termination of the month, the Sanitary Board shall consider any objection lodged as above, and if they are still of opinion that the project will be beneficial and within the means of the municipalities to be benefited, shall report their opinion to the Local Government, and ask for sanction to a survey and the preparation of detailed plans and estimates.

If the Local Government sanctions the survey and preparation of estimates, the cost thereof shall be advanced by Government, and shall be part of the cost of the project to be eventually apportioned among the municipalities interested.

On receipt of such survey and estimates the Sanitary Board shall send a copy to each of the municipalities concerned, and call upon them within one month to appoint two representatives to discuss the project with the Sanitary Board. Such representatives shall have full power to bind their municipalities so far as concerns the project under consideration.

If any municipality fails to appoint, the Commissioner of the Division shall appoint persons to represent the defaulting municipality.

The representatives shall discuss the project and vote for its acceptance, modification, or rejection, and the votes of the majority shall bind the minority. The Sanitary Board to be present at the discussions, but not to vote.

The project, whether modified or not, shall, when accepted, be reported to the Local Government for approval, together with such apportionment of the expenditure among the municipalities concerned, which to the Board may seem equitable.

On receipt of such report, the Local Government may pass orders approving of the project and proposed apportionment, or may reject the same, or may return it for reconsideration and modification.

If the Government approves, project will be at once carried, and the municipalities be bound to contribute as apportioned.

If project returned for modification, the same representatives will reconsider it and report again as before.

The limits of 6 per cent. and 5 per cent. prescribed by section 279 of Act III (B.C.) of 1884 shall not apply to any water-rate apportioned under the provisions of this (the new) Act.

Application of control sections.

Up to this stage the provisions would be purely enabling. I have not provided for every detail, but the effect would be to enable the municipalities to combine and settle their differences under the arbitration of the Sanitary Board, and with the approval of the Government.

Then I would apply the control sections 59 to 66 in some such way as this—

It shall be the duty of every municipality interested in a project of which a survey and estimates have been prepared under this Act, to accept such project (with reasonable modifications, if necessary), provided it will be beneficial to such municipality, and the cost thereof will be reasonable and such as the rate-payers can properly be called upon to pay; and refusal to accept such project, or its modification in some material point, may be deemed, at the discretion of the Local Government, a default in the performance of a duty under section 64, and if the project be not accepted within the period fixed by the Local Government, the Local Government may either appoint the Magistrate of the district to represent the municipality which defaults for the purpose of this project, or may take action for the supersession of the municipality under section 65.

This seems to me to give all the powers necessary to enable Government to coerce recalcitrant municipalities, and I submit that it is better to apply the existing sections of the present Act in this way, than to treat the new legislation as a mere compulsory Act.

Drainage question.

You appear to attach great importance to the drainage of these municipalities, and therefore, as one who has had special experience of the fever at Baraset, Kishnaghur, Burdwan, Midnapur, and the suburbs of Calcutta, and has always taken an interest in it, you will not, I daresay, object to my recording a few remarks.

Fever due to water-logging, but water-logging not due to any appreciable extent to railways or water-works.

That the feverishness of the last 30 years is due to water-logging of the soil, as the late Raja Digumber Mitter contended, is, I think, exceedingly probable, almost certain; but that this water-logging is due to such local causes as the East Indian Railway and Eastern Bengal Railway, or the Calcutta water-pipes, or even materially increased by them, is, I think, very improbable. Being filled with educated office men who live in these riparian towns, the fever there has caused more outcry than elsewhere, but there is no evidence whatsoever that it has been worse there than in other places far removed from railways and water-pipes. What could have been worse than its ravages in Baraset in 1862, Kishnaghur 1863-64, Burdwan 1869? Yet Baraset had no railway till 20 years after the epidemic. Kishnaghur has no railway still. Burdwan had a railway 15 years before the fever broke out. In Midnapore its ravages in the Daspur thána were as bad as anywhere else, and no railway has ever approached that part of the district, or change of any kind been made for decades before in the roads and embankments. It is very natural that people who suffer from the fever should look out for local causes, but it would be a great mistake to encourage the idea that the general unhealthiness of the districts round Calcutta during the last 30 years is due to local causes. My own impression is that it is due to a gradual and continuous deterioration in the drainage conditions of these districts, due partly to the rivers being kept within their beds, which are thereby gradually raised while the general level of the country remains unraised, partly to continuous deposit at the mouths of all the rivers, which backs up the drainage and assists in obstructing it. It is a fact which can easily be verified, that all the channels which formerly served as the drainage channels of this tract of country have silted up or become much less serviceable than formerly. The evil has, I think, been accentuated by over-population, as the fever has always been worst in densely-populated tracts.

Subsoil drainage would, I have little doubt, be a perfect remedy, as it has proved in Calcutta; but I fear the mere surface drainage of these tracts, though it may do some good, will be disappointing in its results.

I think I am right in saying that the Central Bengal fever has not extended to the tracts reached by the spill flood of the Ganges and Megna, and if so, that seems to show that when the alluvial formation of the country is allowed to go on in the normal way, this special fever does not appear—though of course alluvial tracts are always and in all places more or less feverish—but that it appears in the country where the rivers are kept within their beds by embankments, and the free spill of the rivers is restrained. The fever appears almost everywhere in a very virulent form, and rages as an epidemic for two or three seasons, after which the affected tract is permanently more feverish than formerly, and the subsoil water found to be nearer the surface.

This is precisely what has happend to the riparian municipalities above Calcutta, and to most places in the interior in precisely the same way.

Dated Camp Manickgunge, the 2nd November 1891.

Demi-official from—A. Forbes, Esq., Commissioner of the Dacca Division,
To—The Offg. Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

Your demi-official of 6th ultimo, about legislating to compel municipalities to provide for water-supply and drainage.

I am quite in favour of legislation in the direction proposed. But the difference between the case of isolated municipalities and that of groups of two or more adjoining municipalities must be borne in mind. In the case of the latter, legislation is much needed owing to the impossibility of ever getting adjoining municipalities to take useful combined action suo motu. I think that you will find that among such groups the scheme will meet with general support. They are anxious enough to combine and share expenses, but they cannot work together, or trust each other, and they know it. The proposed legislation will step in exactly where it is wanted, to bring conflicting interests together, and I have no doubt that, for this reason, it will be welcomed by many of the best men among the natives.

In the case of isolated municipalities,. however, there will not be the same excuse fot legislating, and the measure will smack more of zabardasti. I am rather afraid, too, that ir might be apt to dry up sources of private liberality in the matter of water-works if it were known that Government is pretty sure to step in and force the Municipal Commissioners to supply the want. Drainage is a different matter in this respect. We do not hear of private persons coming forward to endow drainage schemes, and compulsion in this matter is perhaps more necessary in the isolated municipalities than in the matter of water-supply. However, I do not object to isolated municipalities being included within the scope of the new Act, and it might be as well to take the opportunity of our having to legislate for the others to provide for them as well; but I merely wish to point out the fact that the need is not so great, or the excuse so good, in their case, as in that of the groups.

I think, too, that the scheme will have to be worked on different lines in these two cases (viz., isolated municipalities and groups). I think that where more than a single municipality is concerned, the Act will have to go farther than you propose, and that it will be absolutely necessary for Government to arrange for the carrying out of the scheme. Your section 7 will do well enough where there is only one municipality concerned. In this case, perhaps, as good a way as any of clinching matters would be to enact that failure to carry out the work within a certain time should be held to be a "default" within the meaning of section 61 of the Municipal Act. This would bring into play existing law, and thus help people to accept the view that the new Act is not altogether an innovation, but rather a provision of a declaratory nature as regards isolated municipalities. As regards groups, we do not require to wrap up the pill, as we have a self-evident reason for taking action which everyone will understand.

But I do not think that section 7 will meet these group cases. I am afraid that a joint-committee of Commissioners from the different municipalities concerned (this, I infer, is what is meant) would result in bickerings and misunderstandings, and lead to all sorts of complications and difficulties. It is hopeless to attempt to secure harmony in cases of this kind.

Even in the case of two leading municipalities like Calcutta and the old Suburban Municipality, with Harrison as Chairman of the one and myself of the other, we seldom could agree on important disputed points. We were fairly contentious ourselves, and our committees were more so. Any common work, such as use of night-soil depôts, extension of filtered water to the suburbs, &c., was only a constant source of irritation with no practical result until the two towns became one, under a single administration. Every smallest detail will be the subject of a pitched fight. Each municipality will be constantly trying to overreach the others, and nobody will be satisfied. I am afraid that even after a scheme has been carried out to completion, it will still be dangerous to leave many of the matters referred to in sections 289 to 296 to be dealt with by a joint-committee composed only of Commissioners belonging to the municipalities concerned. There will be differences of opinion about pressure, size of ferrules, and other matters arising out of the conflicting interests of the different bodies represented on the committee. They will, none of them, trust each other, although they will all be ready to trust Government to deal fairly between them. The joint-committee must therefore be practically under Government control. It might consist of two persons elected by the Municipal Commissioners of each municipality, and of an equal number of persons appointed by Government, besides a Government appointed Chairman. I would also suggest that the District Magistrate or Magistrates (if more than one) should be on the preliminary committee provided for in section 2 of your Act; and the Divisional Commissioner might also be allowed his say.

These, however, are details which no doubt will be duly considered when their turn comes. For the present it is enough to say that there can be no doubt as to the necessity of legislation in the direction you have proposed. There is one matter, however, in which I would suggest a reconsideration of your proposals. I think that, in consideration of the action by municipalities being compulsory, the cost of survey, estimates, and plan should be borne by Government. This will not be a very heavy concession, but it will be thought a great deal of—much more than it is intrinsically worth. It will be looked upon as a proof of Government's sincerity and absence of all self-interest and thoughtlessness in pushing any particular scheme. I feel certain that this concession would go far towards making the rest of the Act acceptable.

In reply to your letter dated the 6th October last, enclosing a copy of the notes on the water-supply of Howrah, and certain questions allied therewith, and asking for my opinion on the proposal to undertake special legislation in order to compel municipalities to make provision for improved water-supply and drainage, which I regret that I have delayed so long in answering, I beg to say that it appears to me that the best course would be to amend the provisions of section 38 of Act II (B.C.) of 1888, sections 131 and 132 of Act III (B.C.) of 1885, and sections 65 and 66 of Act III (B.C.) of 1884, and those sections relating to the duties of the Calcutta Commissioners as regards drainage and water-works, sections 37 (3), 37 (5) (b) and 37 (4) of Act II (B.C.) of 1888, and section 69 (1) (2) (4) of Act III (B.C.) of 1884, whereby municipal funds in the mufassal may, subject to such rules and restrictions as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe, be applied within the municipality to the construction of drains, the supply of water, and other works of public utility calculated to promote the health, comfort, or convenience of the inhabitants; and section 79 of Act III (B.C.) of 1885, whereby District Boards may take measures for the construction and maintenance of any means and appliances for improving the supply of drinking-water or for providing or improving drainage, so that each Act might be complete in itself as regards the drainage and water-works provisions. It is a legal or rather a constitutional principle that powers given to public functionaries or others for public purposes or the public benefit are always to be exercised when the occasion arises. In R. V. Hastings (Mayor) 1 D and R 48, it was laid down that words of permission in an Act of Parliament, when tending to promote the general benefit, are always held to be compulsory. When a public power for the public benefit is conferred in enabling terms, a duty is implicitly imposed to exercise it whenever occasion arises. These terms are then in effect invariably invested with a compulsory force (see Maxwell on the interpretation of Statutes, second edition, pages 295-308), and therefore the word "may" in the enactments referred to is mandatory and not permissive; but, notwithstanding, I think the word "shall" should be used when no discretion is intended to be given. As regards the power of a District Board to join with any other District Board or any Municipal authority, see section 30 of Act III (B.C.) of 1885, and as to the contribution by one municipality towards expenses incurred in any other municipality or elsewhere see section 70 of Act III (B.C.) of 1884, and further legislative powers are, I believe, in contemplation. As regards these enactments some modification may be necessary.

As to the question what principles legislation, if unavoidable, should follow, and what form it should take, I should feel myself much more competent to express an opinion after making myself more familiar than I am at present with the practical administration of Local and Municipal Government in England, and with that end in view I have sent for Bazalgette and Humphrey's Local and Municipal Government, which is not contained in the Bar Library, wherein are scarcely any text-books dealing with the subject which are not antiquated and practically useless.

Dated Calcutta, the 12th December 1891.

Demi-official from—SURGEON MAJOR W. H. GREGG,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

YOUR confidential demi-official of the 6th October last, asking for my opinion on the proposal to undertake special legislation in order to compel municipalities to make provision for improved water-supply and drainage.

I think there can be no question that special legislation is necessary, for without it the Sanitary Board is absolutely helpless to enforce sanitary improvements in municipalities. All it can do, as matters are at present, is to advise local bodies what to do: but the advice given is seldom, if ever, given effect to, the excuse invariably made being that "there are no funds, and the Commissioners are not prepared to borrow money," and then the project, over which the members of the Sanitary Board have spent much time and thought, is pigeon-holed. It is very discouraging to us to have our labour thus set aside "for consideration at a more convenient season" which, however, in the case of municipalities, never seems to come. As things stand at present, we cannot even get municipalities, without a great deal of trouble in some cases, and often not even then, to incur the comparatively small cost of preliminary surveys without which it is impossible to get up schemes of improvement. From observations I have made, and the opinions I have heard expressed in the course of my tours of inspection, I am afraid there will at first be much opposition to the proposed compulsion; but I think the balance of the best educated native opinion will be on our side.

With regard to the proposal to supply Howrah with filtered water from a point of the river opposite Etchapur, I am sorry I cannot make a comparison between the analyses of the water drawn by the Sanitary Engineer and myself in April and May 1891 with that taken by Dr. Macnamara in 1863, because there is no detailed record of Dr. Macnamara's analyses In fact no record at all seems to exist besides the summary contained in Dr. Macnamara's letter No. 17 of the 11th August 1863, to the Chairman of the Town of Calcutta, which is not sufficient to enable me to make a comparison with the analyses made by us. Dr. Macnamara's Chemical Assistant, however, who is still connected with the Chemical Examiner's office, states that from his personal knowledge he is able to say that the sanitary condition of the river Hooghly above Etchapore has greatly improved since Dr. Macnamara's analyses were made, and there is no doubt that this is the case; because the night-soil (which is the worst kind of impurity that can find its way into water) of the municipalities above Calcutta, which used in Dr. Macnamara's time to be thrown into the river, is now trenched, and greater care is exercised in preventing carcasses of animals, &c., from being thrown into the river.

With regard to the impurities that still exist in the Hooghly opposite Etchapore, the existence of chlorine is regarded by some as dangerous. I wish to point out that there is no harmful action in chlorine itself; it is only an index of impurity when it has its origin in sewage There are three sources from which chlorine may come, viz.—

1. From salt-bearing strata, which is quite harmless and inoffensive.
2. From sea water, which is objectionable only on account of the unpleasant taste associated with a small admixture of sea water with river water, but is not otherwise hurtful.
3. From sewage impurities. As already stated, it is from this source that the existence of chlorine as an important index of impurity is valuable, as water contaminated with sewage frequently contains the germs of many forms of disease.

The fact, however, that the water opposite Etchapore contains chlorine mostly during spring tides at high-water seems to indicate that it is salt-water rather than sewage that communicates the taint. If this is so, and I believe it is, the taint is not fatal. Therefore, although I am unable as a sanitary officer to recommend the water on account of the existence of the large quantity of chlorine in it, I am of opinion that it may with safety be used for human consumption, especially after the amount of filtration it will undergo before it is consumed.

With regard to the 27 lakhs project, the Engineer to the Sanitary Board reports as follows; but I still think that no attempt should be made to compel the municipalities north of Bally to join in the scheme:—

"In reply to the enquiry of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor as to what reduction it is possible in the scheme put forward by the Sanitary Board for supplying Howrah and the municipalities on the right of the Hooghly south of Chandernagore with a filtered water-supply at an approximate cost of 27½ lakhs, it may be stated that the size of the main can be easily reduced, if it is thought advisable to only give a supply according to the present population, taking 10 gallons a head for Howrah and 5 gallons for the other municipalities. By doing this a saving of about 4½ lakhs can be effected, and the scheme would then cost about 23 lakhs, Howrah getting water under a pressure sufficient to allow of a house service, while in the other municipalities every one would have to pump up his own supply from small service reservoirs placed in the line of pipes.

If pressure is not to be given to Howrah, then it would be necessary to increase the size of the mains in the town, and since the pipes are the most expensive items in a water-works scheme, the cost of distribution would be increased ; but, on the other hand, the cost of pumps and reservoirs would be saved, or on the whole scheme a saving of about Rs. 90,000 would be effected ; the original cost of the two schemes being thus practically the same, but the annual maintenance charges would be considerably reduced (Rs. 4,000 a year)."

VII.

Note on the general questions raised by Mr. Risley in connection with the water-supply of Howrah.

I THINK Mr. Risley has shown conclusively that legislation is necessary before a general scheme of water-supply affecting several municipalities can be introduced. Section 70 of the existing law enables one municipality to contribute towards the cost of a work executed in another, but the consent of two-thirds of the Commissioners in writing is necessary, and I am not aware of any provision for the decision of questions regarding the burdens to be imposed on each contributing municipality. Under the present law, then, unless all the municipalities interested concur in all respects, it does not appear possible to carry out a joint scheme. Even if it be left to the local bodies to decide whether there is to be a scheme or not, the law as it now stands is inadequate to decide such disputes as may very readily arise apart from any attempt at obstruction for its own sake, or from mere misapprehension.

I think it will therefore be only in very exceptional cases that the law now in force will be worked, and even that will have to be modified in some points, notably the provision requiring the consent of two-thirds of the Commissioners.

I concur in thinking that a separate Bill should be introduced, but have some doubts whether it would not be better to remove Part VII from the present Act and embody it with the necessary modifications in the Bill. We should then have a consolidated measure including the whole subject.

It appears to me that the question of drainage might with perfect propriety be taken up simultaneously and included in the same project of legislation ; but I doubt whether the inclusion of drainage will " gild the pill of compulsory water-supply." I fear that compulsory drainage at local cost will itself be another and not less nauseous pill. There is certainly a general cry for drainage, but the common hope and desire is that Government will provide the funds. I do not think that the Bill will be favourably received, when it is understood that the result may be heavy local taxation against the wish of the inhabitants. There would probably be a great outcry against any suggestion that the amount of this taxation should not be limited, except by the Lieutenant-Governor's decision. There will, I think, be much opposition to a proposal to raise the limits for water rates in a very marked degree above those now in force ; but perhaps this will be ultimately the best thing to do. Possibly the right plan would be to mention no limit in the first place, and then come down to, say, 8 per cent. and 6 per cent. instead of the present rates of 6 and 5 per cent.

I think the general ideas contained in Mr. Risley's proposals are right, but the provision for objections is scarcely sufficient ; opportunities should be given for examination of the details of a scheme by those interested, and as a rule a much longer time than one month should be allowed for objections.

It would be well to obtain some really good native opinions ; I mean the opinions of some who sympathize with the objects of the proposed legislation, and at the same time will be in a position to point out the strength and the weakness of the opposition which is likely to be encountered. This opposition, so far as I can judge, will be serious, and the question is whether it is worth while to raise it. Personally I think it is, if there is to be any workable law on the subject. In practice I suppose that the consent of the Government of India would be taken before any very important work of drainage or water-supply were undertaken against the wishes of the local inhabitants. But would this be regarded by the people as a sufficient safeguard ?

Dated Dacca, the 24th December 1891.

Demi-official from—L. HARE, Esq., Magistrate of Dacca,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

YOUR Confidential letter, dated 6th October 1891, asking my opinion on the proposal to undertake special legislation to compel municipalities to make provision for improved water-supply and drainage.

2. I think legislation will be required in order to get combined schemes carried out, and even in municipalities standing alone, now that Government has given over the initiative of municipal works by allowing elective Chairmen, no doubt it will be increasingly difficult to initiate and carry through big schemes without some legislative power.

3. Any Act passed for this purpose should provide power to compel the District Board to execute such drainage works as have been rendered necessary by works already executed by them. That is, it should give power to compel them to put such bridges and culverts and other works as are found necessary in its own roads. Also there might be power to compel the opening out of drainage channels which had silted up.

The erection of bunds and obstructions for fishing purposes in drainage channels might also be made an offence. The Railway Act, I think, sufficiently provides for works being executed by a Railway Company when directed by an order of Government. But if not, then additional power should be taken.

4. Further, I should like to have the principle established that the local area included in any scheme must pay its own sanitary improvement. Under the Drainage Act a plot of land is not allowed to stand out, but all the land benefited by the scheme must pay; and similarly I would tax the whole of an area covered by a scheme. I do not of course mean to bar Provincial and District Board help, but primarily the people of the area affected should pay. I have proposed in my notes on the Municipal Amendment Act that the municipality should be allowed to retain possession of reclaimed land, and to repay themselves the cost of the reclamation from the rents of such lands. If this were possible, many improvements could be carried out which the municipality cannot undertake if they have to bear all the expense, and a private person takes all the resultant profit. The municipality also would not, even if they could, order a necessary work of reclamation to be done, if it entailed very great expense on a private person. It may sometimes be hard on an owner to make him spend a large sum of money on his private land, even if this is necessary for the public good: but it is only right that he shall not be allowed to stand in the way of public improvements, or to take all the profit of such improvements to himself.

5. I think any legislation in the direction proposed should extend to areas under the District Board as well as to Municipalities. Mr. Cotton proposed to impose an extra cess for educational and sanitary purposes, and no doubt this would also be necessary. But I do not think a general District Sanitary Cess should bear the cost, or at all events not the main cost, of village sanitary works. The cost should, I think, be principally borne by the area affected by the scheme, something in the same way as the Drainage Act provides for raising the cost on the land affected. Of course, before you could make the District Boards compellable to carry out sanitary works, it would be necessary to give them powers to raise funds, and perhaps some sort of consent, by a fair proportion of the population concerned; it should also be made a condition. But if the people benefited are not made to bear the whole or a large portion of the expense, there will be great favouritism in the expenditure of funds. Any general funds available might well be employed first upon the works for which the largest proportion of the expense was locally contributed.

6. However, these matters are not exactly what you have asked me about. I imagine, if you wish to legislate, you ought to be able to point to failure to get certain municipalities jointly interested in a scheme to meet and co-operate willingly, and until the attempt has been made to do this unsuccessfully, you will be told that legislation has not been shown to be necessary.

IX.

Dated Burdwan, the 29th December 1891.

From—Babu Nalinaksha Basu, Chairman, Burdwan Municipality,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

With reference to your demi-official letter, without date, forwarding a copy of the notes on the water-supply of Howrah and certain allied questions for an expression of opinion on them, I have the honour to state that I fully agree with you that legislation on the subject of water-supply and drainage is unavoidable. If we are to depend on the voluntary action of the municipalities, we may as well sit idle for a quarter of a century more. My experience in Local Self-Government has taught me that it is difficult to induce all of those that are connected with it to take an intelligent interest in sanitary matters, and to exercise the powers they possess; and looking at the local apathy and active opposition by which introduction of sanitary improvements has oftentimes been thwarted, it is, in my humble opinion, essentially necessary to adopt means to compel such municipalities as are able to defray the necessary costs to construct water works for the adequate and wholesome supply of water for the inhabitants living within their limits. I am fully aware that such legislation as is now contemplated is not desirable, because it tends to lessen the sense of responsibility, and to repress the exercise of intelligence on the part of administrative bodies; but I am bound to say that, unless such measures are adopted by legislative enactments, no improvement in the matter of water-supply and drainage can be effected for a long time to come, that is, until there is a wider diffusion of knowledge concerning the laws of health and more general recognition of individual responsibility in relation to them. It is an acknowledged fact that "ignorance and apathy are the great enemies of all reforms—ignorance of evil effects and the means of averting them; apathy from a sense of personal helplessness." True it is that many of our countrymen have been awakened to their duties in connection with sanitary reforms, and have been evincing great interest in discussing means to effect them: but I regret very much to say that the great majority of the people display utter ignorance on the subject, and do not even bestow a careful thought over it.

That the quality of water we drink exercises a powerful effect upon our health is admitted by all: but the admission does little more than reflect a popular impression to which practical effect is seldom given. For example, to decide upon a change of residence from one place to another, how rarely is a moment's consideration bestowed by our countrymen to the difference there may be in the character of the water-supply, though it may be the gravest circumstance affecting health connected with the change. One who has thought over the subject of water-supply in Bengal, and has experience as to the supply, would unhesitatingly come to the conclusion that, except in places where water-works have been constructed, the supply is either deficient in quantity or inferior in quality, and indeed in good many places people are compelled to use water which is impregnated with organic and vegetable matter.

As regards drainage, I have to say that it a well known fact that the drainage of almost all the towns of Lower Bengal is defective, and that half the diseases from which we suffer can safely be attributed to the defective drainage of the place we live in. A proper system of drainage is as much a necessity as is an abundant supply of good potable water. I beg to annex hereto an extract from the administration report of the Burdwan Municipality submitted by me for the year 1888-89. From the extract you will see that the malady known as "the Burdwan fever" was very much fostered by defective drainage and polluted water-supply.

For the above reasons, I think the Government should not hesitate any longer to legislate for compelling municipalities, which are likely to be able to provide costs, to construct water-works, and to provide a proper system of drainage for the benefit of the towns within their charge.

Having shown that legislation is inevitable, I shall now endeavour to answer the second question, viz., what principles the legislation should follow, and what form should it take. I have carefully gone through the suggestions made by you, and I fully agree with you that there should be a separate Act laying down the machinery for imposing a water-supply and a drainage scheme upon recalcitrant municipalities.

In my opinion the draft of the compulsory sections as made by you would do very well, but I have much to say on the provisions of Part VII of the Municipal Act. This part has been in force in the Burdwan Municipality for upwards of six years, and we have derived considerable experience as to how the provisions contained therein have worked; but as I have not been asked to give my opinion on the provisions thereof, I refrain from doing so. I hope, however, that before the present Municipal Act is amended, an opportunity would be given to me to make my observations on the present provisions with a view to suggest amendments.

As regards the percentage of water-rate mentioned in section 279. I have simply to remark that it is absolutely necessary to raise the present limit, because we find that even if we levy the maximum water-rate authorized by the above section, we do not get a sufficient amount to meet the expenditure incurred in maintaining the water-works and in providing a sinking fund for the liquidation of the debt contracted for the construction of the works. In the last official year our income from the water-rate, levied at 5 per cent., was Rs 14,913, whereas the expenditure on water-works amounted to Rs. 19,444, and the result was that we had to pay Rs. 4,531 from the general funds to the detriment of other important works. The reason why we could not realize water-rate at 6 per cent. from any holding was that great difficulty was experienced in deciding what houses were situated on streets supplied with water, and what houses were on streets not supplied with water. There may be several lines of houses between two streets, of which one is supplied with water and the other not; and it is difficult to say how many lines of these houses are to be considered to be on the street which is supplied with water. Moreover, the section has not laid down that the decision of the Municipal Commissioners will be final on the question; consequently any one whose house is not situated immediately on the street supplied with water pipes may bring a civil suit against the municipality for attempting to levy 6 per cent. water-rate from him. So, in order to avoid litigation and trouble, the Municipal Commissioners of Burdwan were obliged to levy an uniform rate of water-tax from all holdings situated within the water-rate area.

As regards what scheme should be adopted, I have very little to say. Much depends on the opinion of experts, and on the means the municipalities concerned have or likely to have under their disposal. In Europe at the present day sanitation is the great topic for discussion. A well-known authority says: "We live in an age of sanitary restlessness; never has there been so much solicitude about drain and dust, about the air we breath, and the water we drink. Never have there been so many sanitary schoolmasters in the world." So it is not surprising to find that the public feeling in Europeis in favour of having a high standard of purity of water, and to make every possible effort to get for drinking and domestic purpose absolutely pure water. But is it possible to get such water? Scientists reply No to the question. They say absolutely pure water is not to be found in a natural state either on the face or in the crust of the earth. In descending from the clouds, it carries down impurities from the air through which it passes. In flowing over or penetrating the surface of the earth it gathers, in its course, foreign matters of mineral, vegetable and animal origin.

For the above reasons we must be content with getting the best water available, taking into our consideration the means we have at our command. I beg to reproduce below the summing up of an authority on water-works on the question. He says: "In selecting a source of supply for a town or district, attention should not exclusively be confined to the attainment of a perfect standard of purity. The source that approaches most closely to absolute purity is not necessarily the most suitable in all cases. The conditions of the place to be supplied, the character of the industrial operations carried on, the habits of the people, and the proximity or sufficiency of other available sources, must all be taken into consideration. It may often happen that a second rate water will be better for some places than a first rate water, by reason of being more plentiful or better adapted to the special wants of the community, or less liable to future contamination. But no difficulty should be allowed to interfere with providing a liberal supply of wholesome water for the domestic uses of every town or district; freedom from sewage pollution cannot be too strictly insisted upon."

Extract from the Annual Administration Report of the year 1888-89.

As regards the etiology of the fever much has been said, much has been written, and many theories have been put forward, but I regret to say that the original cause of the disease, or rather the poison which causes the disease, seems to be enveloped in mystery. In my humble opinion malarious fever is due to a certain poison which, when it gets into the human system predisposed to receive it, produces the fever. Dr. Gregg, the present Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, in his Circular No. 151, dated the 18th January 1889, has quoted several authorities which go to establish that malarial fever is the result of a certain poison. He states "that Tomassi Crudeli and Klebs have found a germ in cases of malarial fever which they assert to be met with in the soil and air of malarial districts, and can be demonstrated in the blood of affected patients." Those who have experience of the fever styled as "Burdwan fever," and have watched its progress towards, and advent in, Burdwan, and who have carefully studied the discussion held on this subject, will feel inclined to come to the conclusion that the disease wrongly called the Burdwan fever was not of indigenous growth of this place, but was imported from other districts. I have already shown that, as far as it is known, the disease originally broke out at Jessore, then it extended to Nadia, and from there it went to the 24-Parganas and Hooghly, and from the latter district it came to Burdwan. It is a noteworthy fact that in its progress from Jessore to the several districts it followed the principal roads or means of inter-communications. Now the question for consideration is how the disease was brought here, and whether any of the local causes contributed towards the introduction of the disease here. I can take it to be granted that the two principal media of communicating a poison are water and air, and that malarious infection can be acquired through both air and water is proved by the opinion of one of the greatest sanitarians of the present age, Dr. Vandyke Carter of Bombay, and it is exceedingly probable that the poison was imported here by one of the two above modes of conveyance. Burdwan, before the outbreak of the foul malady, was a very healthy place, and was looked upon as a sanitarium of Bengal; the water of the Banka was considered a panacea for all maladies. It has a large number of tanks, a few of which are considerably large, but the rest are very small and shallow ones. Previously the people used to get their water-supply from these tanks, which were not exclusively reserved for drinking purposes. Before the construction of the railway and the Damuda embankments, the river Damuda used to be overflowed annually, and the flood-water used to entirely wash away the organic and vegetable impurities which were deposited in the tanks and replenished them with the river water. The annual flood also flushed the lands of the town, and was therefore considered as a great purifying agency. The flood-water as well as the excess rain-water of the northern portion of the town used to be drained swiftly through the northern fields, and the excess rain-water of the southern side easily and quickly found its way to the river itself; but since the construction of the above embankments, the impurities of the tanks have not been thoroughly washed away, and they have not been replenished with fresh river water; the land of the town has not been flushed and purified; and the excess rain-water of portions of the town does not pass away, but remain confined between the two embankments, and the result is that the tanks have become receptacles of decomposed animal and vegetable matter and portions of the town water-logged. The effect produced by the above state of things is well known. The water-logged condition of the land causes sub-soil moisture, which, under a powerful sun, induces a vigorous evolution of injurious vapour which, saturating the atmosphere, makes it unhealthy. The effluvia arising from the noxious and filthy tanks with which the town abounds adds to the unhealthiness of the atmosphere. The sub-soil moisture which causes dampness of the soil on which we live, and the use of water impregnated with organic and vegetable matter, cannot but undermine a constitution, however strong it might be. In my humble opinion the people of Burdwan could not enjoy immunity from the injurious effects of the above causes, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that their health was being imperceptibly, but gradually, undermined by them.

Etiology of the Burdwan fever.

In 1866 a direful calamity in the shape of famine, the effect of which no doubt seriously told upon the health of its inhabitants, visited Burdwan, weakened their constitution, and prepared it to receive the malarious virus either by contagion or infection. From the time when malarious fever was raging at Hooghly and 24-Parganas, fever-stricken persons came in large number from time to time to this town for change of air. These people, as well as the malarious affected persons who came here for trade from the above districts, and as well as the Burdwan people who had gone to those districts and caught the fever, imported the poison here. As the affected people increased in great number, they by their exhalations contaminated the atmosphere, and by their excrements polluted the water. As the air and the water had not been in their natural pure condition when the virus was brought, it found them to be very favourable to its propagation and development So like wildfire the fell disease broke out in all directions of the town and lasted with unabated strength for more than three years.

Some are of opinion that the malarious fever wears itself out or the people become proof against it, but there are many who are of a different opinion. Experience proves that when the local predisposing or aggravating causes are removed, and when the air and water are less contaminated, the fever abates. In Burdwan, when its population was thinned by the death and by removal of a large number of its inhabitants, the fever abated, and when arrangements were made for the supply of Damuda water for the prevention of promiscuous defœcation, for the clearance of its jungles, and for draining the town properly, the disease became gradually weaker, and since the construction of the water-works, which has been supplying the Damuda filtered water, the disease has almost disappeared. The Municipal Commissioners have made up their mind to provide the town with a proper system of drainage, and as soon as they are able to do so and fill up the filthy and noxious ponds which are innumerable in their number, they hope to be able to restore the town to its former health.

Dated Bhagalpur, the 30th December 1891.

Demi-official from—C. C. QUINN, Esq., Offg. Commr. of the Bhagalpur Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I AM in favour of the compulsory legislation suggested in your note on the water-supply and drainage of municipalities.

2. I think that the duty of municipalities to make necessary provision under these heads must be admitted, and that Government should be empowered to enforce the obligation, and this being so, the procedure which you propose seems well adapted to secure the object in view.

3. The principle that there are certain duties obligatory on municipalities, and that Government may require their performance, is already recognized in the present Bengal Municipal Act. See the first clause of section 69 and sections 64 and 65. The maintenance and repair of existing drains are among the obligations of Municipal Commissioners. As the Act now stands, the construction of new drains and the supply of water being permissive, I think that the more extended duty of providing generally for the drainage of the municipality and for the supply of wholesome drinking-water to the residents therein might very suitably be added to the obligatory part of the section when the Act is revised. It does not of course follow that the Commissioners of every municipality should be bound to construct and maintain water-works. It would in many cases be quite sufficient to provide or set aside wells or reservoirs, and to adopt such measures as will prevent their being contaminated. The obligation must naturally be limited by the means of the municipality, and it would be quite beyond the resources of petty municipalities to establish or maintain water-works. If this be understood, the general obligation will, I think, be accepted without demur.

If section 69 be modified as suggested, the proposed compulsory sections will be quite in accordance with the Act.

4. Section 76 also involves the interference of Government through its officers in municipal expenditure. Under that section the Commissioner of the Division can make any alteration that he may think proper in the annual estimates prepared under section 72, and in this way he, as representing Government, has a voice in deciding on what objects the money at the disposal of the Commissioners shall be expended.

5. The proposed legislation will carry out the intention of section 64, and will only go a step further in rendering the intervention of Government effective by making provision for the ways and means This can even now, I think, be done in a circuitous way by superseding the Commissioners and vesting their powers in persons appointed by Government, as the persons so appointed could, I presume, increase the assessment or, with the approval of Government, levy a water-rate.

I therefore think that your proposal, though it introduces a new procedure, does not involve any novel principle, and that it can be fully justified. Under it the funds are in the first instance found by Government, and in this respect the rigour of the existing procedure is mitigated.

6. I quite agree with you in the opinion that the proposed legislation should provide for drainage as well as for a water supply, both because, in my opinion, a proper system of drainage is in many cases more essential than a scheme for the supply of water, and if combined with good sanitary arrangements, may render the construction of water-works unnecessary, and also because the necessity of providing drainage is more generally admitted, and it will, as you point out, lessen the opposition to your proposal if it be made not only a ground, but a main ground, for legislative action.

I would put the chief objects to which Municipal Commissioners are bound to devote their attention in the following order :—

(1) Roads,
(2) Drainage and conservancy,
(3) Water-supply ;

and in introducing legislation, I think that drainage should be kept well to the front.

7. There will no doubt be some opposition to the proposed legislation, but I do not think that it will be serious. Municipal Commissioners are often averse from increasing taxation of their own motion, and fear the unpopularity which may have to be incurred by doing so, and they are sometimes pledged by election promises to oppose any increase I think that in many instances they will be glad to secure the result to be gained by increased taxation, provided they can throw the responsibility on Government as regards the means.

8. I think you are mistaken in the view that the law, as it stands, provides no machinery for joint action on the part of several municipalities. See section 70 of the Bengal Municipal Act. In this respect also the principle involved in the proposed legislation is, I believe, in accord with the present law.

9. I have to apologise for the delay in submitting this opinion. The matter had entirely escaped my memory, when I got your reminder.

Dated Howrah, the 30th December 1891.

From—Babu Nara Singha Datta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

With reference to your favour of the 20th October, and the subsequent reminder of the 16th instant, on the water-supply and drainage schemes for Howrah and other riparian municipalities, I have the honour to submit the following :—

The utility of a water-supply recognised since 1878.

So far back as 1878, the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah recognised the necessity of having a water-supply for their town, and in their proceeding of the 20th June 1878, I find the following note:—

"The native members said that they were quite sure that the introduction of a water-supply would greatly be appreciated by the native population, and that they would most willingly pay almost any tax for the purpose."

Since 1878 the following schemes have been suggested to, and some of them discussed by, the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah:—

Saraswati scheme by Mr. A. J. Hughes.

I. Scheme of Mr. A. J. Hughes for supplying water from Damudar, delivered into Sarasvati by the Eden Canal.

Rishra scheme by Mr. A. J. Hughes.

II. Scheme by Mr. A. J. Hughes for supplying water from the Hooghly at Rishra, three miles below Pulta.

This scheme was for a daily supply of 1,000,000 gallons of water at an estimated cost of Rs. 13,48,200.

Talla scheme by Mr. A. J. Hughes.

III. Scheme by Mr. A. J. Hughes for supplying water from the Calcutta main at Talla, and thence by a separate main viâ the Hooghly Bridge to a raised reservoir at New Market, Howrah. It was estimated that the distribution at Howrah, including service reservoir, will cost Rs. 6,00,000, the Howrah Municipality paying to the Calcutta Corporation at the rate of annas two per thousand gallons of water delivered into the reservoir.

Talla scheme by Mr. J. Kimber.

IV. Scheme by Mr. J. Kimber, the Engineer to the Corporation of Calcutta, for the supply of water from Calcutta at an estimated cost of Rs. 9,00,000.

Echapore scheme by Messrs. Walsh, Lovett and Company

V. Scheme by Messrs. Walsh, Lovett and Company for supplying water from the Hooghly river at Echapore, between Ghoosery and Bally, and about 4 miles north of the Hooghly Bridge. The cost was estimated at Rs. 8,03,406.

Calcutta scheme by Mr. G. C. Stawell.

VI. Scheme by Mr. G. C. Stawell, Engineer to the Bengal Sanitary Board, for the supply of 1,000,000 gallons of water daily from Calcutta at an estimated cost of Rs. 8,87,250.

Baidyabati scheme by Mr. G. C. Stawell.

VII. Scheme by Mr. G. C. Stawell for supplying Howrah and other riparian municipalities from the Hooghly, from a point above Baidyabati, at an estimated cost of Rs. 25,69,330.

Local supply scheme by Mr. H. I. Harrington.

VIII. Scheme by Mr. H. B. Harrington, styled the "local supply scheme," proposed to take water from the Hooghly opposite the town of Howrah at an estimated cost of Rs. 3,83,584.

Saraswarti scheme condemned.

Of these several schemes, the first has since been condemned by Mr. A. J. Hughes himself, and Dr. W. H. Gregg, the Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, on account of the filthy nature of the water of the Sarasvarti, and the certainty that the water-supply from the source would not hereafter meet the demand.

Rishra, Echapore, Baidyabati, and Howrah schemes objectionable.

The schemes, II, V, VII, and VIII, i.e., schemes to draw water from the Hooghly at Rishra, Echapore, Baidyabati, and Howrah are objectionable on the following grounds:—

(1) The water at these places is brackish, i.e., mixed with salt, for nearly three months during the year.

(2) That it contains sewage.

(3) That the Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, who examined the water at the various points between Calcutta and Pulta, found it inadvisable to take water from any of the points the several schemes contemplate drawing water from.

(4) That Dr. Macnamara's analyses establish "that the supply should not be taken lower down the river than Pulta."

The other schemes III, IV, and VI, i.e, those which propose to take water from the Calcutta main at Talla, are objectionable on the following grounds:—

Calcutta and Talla schemes inconvenient.

(1) That it is not convenient to the Corporation of Calcutta to supply water to this town.

(2) That it is high time that Howrah should have an independent scheme of its own, rather than depend on the will and pleasure of the Corporation of Calcutta.

(3) That on account of the closing of the Hooghly Bridge, twice or thrice during the week, there will be uncertainty of supply.

These schemes, I also understand, have been given up on account of the Corporation of Calcutta refusing to accept the proposal.

Insufficient allowance per head.

All the foregoing schemes are objectionable on the ground that they do not make sufficient allowance per head of the population.

Provision for the supply of at least 15 gallons per head.

Any scheme for the supply of water must provide for the supply of at least 15 gallons per head of population.

Estimate of approximate averages.

GENERAL.

Domestic Purposes.

Drinking	1	gallon.
Cooking	1	„
Washing persons	5	gallons.
Do. utensils
Do. floors, &c.
Animals and carriages	1	gallon.

Exceptional.

Domestic uses—
Water-closets and baths	2	gallons.
Public buildings, hospitals, and public baths ...	2	„
Public uses—
Road watering	$2\frac{2}{3}$	„
Fires	$\frac{1}{3}$	gallon.
Total ...	15

This list does not include the supply of water for animals or for washing carriages where such animals or carriages are kept for sale or hire, or a supply for any trade, manufacture, or business or watering gardens, or private roads, or for any ornamental or mechanical purpose.

Traders, works, and gardens are not included in the list (vide section 288 of Act III of 1884.)

Allowance of 25 gallons per head advocated.

It will require at least 25 gallons per head of population to provide all the necessary requirements of a town.

I have allowed $2\frac{2}{3}$ gallons per head of population for road watering. The watering of 50 miles of roadway twice daily, calculated at the rate of 400 gallons for every 1,000 square yard of road, watered twice a day, will require 350,000 gallons of water, or $2\frac{2}{3}$ gallons per head of population consisting of 125,000 persons.

Road-watering requires $2\frac{2}{3}$ gallons per head.

At present this municipality is not in a position to water more than 25 miles of roads; so the expenditure on the head of road-watering would not at present exceed $1\frac{2}{3}$ gallons per head of population.

Twenty-five miles of road watered twice daily at present.

Under the circumstances, I am of opinion that the larger rate of supply estimated for should be adopted, especially provision is required to be made for a rapidly increasing town.

Provision should be made for larger rate of supply.

The Calcutta Corporation allows 30 gallons per head, and I wish that this municipality would have been in a position to have such a perfect scheme.

Calcutta allows 30 gallons per head.

In preparing the above estimate, I have in view the several purposes for which the water can be supplied under Part VII of Act III of 1884, and I should have provided for wastage, which I think can be very easily prevented, in the case of street hydrants, by the vigilance of the police and municipal officers, and, if necessary, by prosecuting persons under section 299 of Act III (B.C.) of 1884, and in the case of house connections by attaching meters to the water pipes of houses at the cost of the owners, and charging them for any expenditure beyond the usual rate of supply per head, as well as prosecuting the occupier or owner under section 298 of Act III (B.C.) of 1884. In order to compel the owner or occupier to pay for the meter, it will be necessary to amend section 295 by expunging the words "at their expense" and inserting the words "at the expense of the owner and occupier." Moreover, it is quite possible, in the case of street hydrants, to avoid such wastages by making the water flow into small reservoirs covered over by iron gratings, from which the watering carts can draw water.

Water should not be taken from any part below Pulta.

Having regard to the opinion of the Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, expressed in 1864, and that of Dr. Macnamara, I will be very much reluctant to accept any scheme which would propose to draw water from a place below the point opposite Pulta. I am therefore of opinion that a scheme to draw water from a point opposite Pulta will be preferred, provided it can give the town of Howrah an unfailing supply of as good and pure water as the residents of the metropolis are getting.

The proposed scheme for supplying Howrah and municipalities south of Chandernagore, i.e., Bhudressur, Baidyabati, Serampore, Kotrung, Utterpara and Bally, will just meet the requirements of these towns, if it provides for the supply of at least 15 gallons of water per head of population.

This scheme will cost, I understand, Rs. 27,55,185.

High pressure is necessary; gravitation would not answer the purpose.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor considers that it is quite possible to reduce this cost if the supply of water be by gravitation rather than by high pressure, and if one pumps his own supply.

With due deference to His Honour's opinion, I beg to submit that no scheme can be perfect unless it is worked at high pressure. Then, if the high pressure be dispensed with, the reduction in the cost, I think, would not be an appreciable one, or at least such as would compensate the inconvenience of pumping one's own supply. Moreover, there cannot be house connections unless it is worked at high pressure.

Can the municipality pay for such a scheme.

Now the most important question which crops up is, is this municipality in a fit state to meet the heavy expenditure which it must necessarily incur in carrying out the project. This municipality, I understand, will have to contribute about twenty lakhs of rupees. It was estimated that this municipality will have to pay annually Rs. 1,42,234 towards the maintenance, interest, and sinking fund. According to the law as it stands at present, the Commissioners can levy only 6 per cent. on the annual value of the holdings in streets supplied with water, and 5 per cent. in streets not so supplied. It is feared that the water-rate must be considerably raised before one can expect the carrying out of the scheme.

Amendment of section 279 suggested.

I suggest that section 279 be amended, and the rates mentioned therein be raised by 1 per cent.

The Legislature very properly provided two different rates for holdings in streets supplied with water and those not so supplied. It would be inequitable to levy an uniform rate of 6 per cent. on all the holdings, whether they are situated in streets supplied with water or not.

The amended section would empower the Commissioners to levy a rate of 7 per cent. in streets supplied with water, and 6 per cent. in streets not so supplied, if it be found absolutely necessary to do so. By fixing the two different rates in such a way, that their yield will be equivalent to that of 6 per cent. rate on all the holdings, the Commissioners can realize an annual income of Rs. 1,20,420.

Government contribution prayed for.

The balance, viz., Rs. 21,814, may be obviated if the Government will kindly make a suitable contribution towards the costs of the combined riparian scheme.

Why assistance of Government absolutely necessary.

Mr. C. E. Buckland in 1883, when Magistrate and Chairman of Howrah, said "that Howrah is in a position of geographical difficulty in obtaining water-supply, and requires therefore special assistance at the hands of the Government."

Contribution towards the Burdwan water-works.

In the case of Burdwan water-works, the Government has contributed Rs. 50,000, being its ¼th cost.

Contribution towards the Suburban water-works.

I am told that the Government has paid Rs. 1,70,000 for the water-supply for the Suburban Municipality.

Government aid absolutely necessary in order to have filtered water in the town.

Unless the Government favours this town with a suitable contribution, we cannot realize the long expected boon of filtered water even in our principal streets.

Exemption of police charges prayed for in order to meet the balance of the annual water-supply charges.

My earnest prayer is, therefore, that the Government would kindly either grant a suitable contribution, or exempt this municipality from the payment of their share of police charges, amounting to Rs. 11,191, or say Rs. 11,500, which can be properly spent on water-supply.

All the municipalities in Bengal, with the exception of Howrah and Suburban Municipalities, have been exempted from the payment of the police charges. I leave it to you to consider whether it is not very hard to saddle this municipality with this item of heavy expenditure, when the means at their command are hardly sufficient to meet the growing demands for the sanitation of the town.

Howrah used to pay ⅗ths police charges before 1883-84.

Before 1883-84 this municipality used to pay ⅗ths of the police charges. From the Administration Report for 1883-84, I find that this municipality had to pay Rs. 34,456-14-9, being the ⅗ths share of the police charges, amounting to Rs. 45,942-9-0.

By the passing of Act IV (B.C.) of 1884, the Howrah and the Suburban Municipalities have been exempted from the payment of half the police charges. They now pay ¼th of the police charges, ¾ths of such charges being paid by the Government.

Exempted from the payment of half of the police charges by Act IV of 1884.

At about the time of the passing of the enactment aforesaid, the Government ordered this and the Suburban Municipalities that they should set apart the amount of police charges remitted for the water-supply. Thus accordingly the Municipal Commissioners of Howrah are bound to allot annually Rs. 22,382 on the head of water-supply from the General Fund.

Exempted on condition that the police charges remitted to be spent on water-supply.

Moreover, the cost of road watering will be minimised as soon as we have water-supply in the streets. Under this head, too, I think the Commissioners of Howrah can very easily expect to make a saving of half, if not ⅔rds, of the total expense.

Water-supply would effect a saving in the cost of road watering.

At present the Commissioners of Howrah use 23 carts drawn by ponies, besides entertaining the services of a number of bhistees, coolies, and peons to water the streets. I have already mentioned before that they water only 25 miles of roads

At present 23 water carts are entertained for road watering.

According to the observations made in the European towns, it has been found that a cart holding 220 gallons of water can water 2½ miles of road twice a day over the full width, drawing water from the hydrants placed at the distance of 272 yards apart. On these data, this municipality will not require more than 12 carts, with which they can water 30 miles of roads. Thus there will be a saving of at least half the cost incurred on this head.

Twelve carts only will be required when the water-supply scheme is executed.

From the Administration Report for 1890-91, I find that the expenditure on this head was Rs. 9,188. As soon as the water scheme is carried out there will be a saving of at least Rs. 4,594 which can also be utilised in making up the difference of the annual water-supply charges.

Water-supply will effect a saving of Rs. 4,594, on the head of road-watering.

In case the Government be not inclined to relieve the Commissioners of Howrah from the payment of their share of the police charges which they are paying, or make suitable contribution towards the water-supply, then the Commissioners will be compelled to pay Rs. 22,381, less Rs 4,594—that is to say, Rs. 17,787—from the General Fund, which were hitherto before spent in other useful works connected with the sanitation of the town.

The deficiency of the annual water-supply charges can be made up from the General Fund, and the saving of the expenditure of road-watering.

If this considerable sum of money be taken from the General Fund and appropriated in payment of the balance of the water-supply charges, no doubt the sanitation of the town would suffer in certain respects; but nevertheless the Commissioners are under an obligation to pay the same for the water-supply. Personally speaking I would not hesitate to set apart this amount for the water-supply, as I would wade through knee-deep in mud, provided I have an abundant supply of absolutely pure water. The utility of such a supply is recognised by my countrymen, who would most willingly suffer any inconvenience if they can in return get a supply of pure water.

Minor inconveniences must give way to water supply.

Having regard to the anxious care taken by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and the contributions made by the Government towards the costs of the water-works of other towns, I am emboldened to believe that the deficiency in the annual water-supply charges will be made up either by exempting this municipality from the payment of their share of the police charges, or by making a suitable contribution.

Bally is similarly situated.

The Municipality of Bally is also in a similar position as this municipality.

In the orders regarding the separation of Bally from the Municipality of Howrah, the then Lieutenant-Governor said that he will be prepared to relieve the town from the payment of police charges, provided the Commissioners agree to join hereafter with this municipality in a scheme for water-supply if called upon by the Lieutenant-Governor, and upon such terms as he may think fit.

Bally bound to join with Howrah in a water-supply scheme.

Bally exempted from the payment of police charge.

Afterwards the whole of the police charges has been remitted to the Bally Municipality.

In 1883-84 the Bally Municipality paid Rs. 3,414 as its share of the police charges.

This amount will very nearly pay off the interest on the money which will be required for meeting their share of the cost of water-supply. Consequently, I think this municipality too can easily pay the annual water-supply charges by levying a 6 per cent. rate on all the holdings in the town, and setting apart the aforesaid, which they used to pay before 1883-84. for the police charges. The Bally Municipality cannot refuse to join in the scheme under His Honour's consideration, even if the rate be required to be raised. From the foregoing state of things, I think the deficiency in the annual charges can be made up without raising the rate beyond 6 per cent., even if it be considered necessary to raise the tax I am for it, as nothing is more essential to the health and well-being of a community than an abundant supply of pure water.

The remitted police charge can advantageously be applied for the payment of water-supply charges.

Inadequacy of water in the town.

The inadequacy of water-supply in this town is well known. There is not a single big and good tank in the town. The tanks that there are have all silted up, and the paucity of rains have made the water of such tanks filthy and unfit for human consumption. Then again the water of the Hooghly has been so polluted by the influx of sewage and of refuse from the manufactories along the banks, that its water cannot be used for household purposes with any degree of safety. The River Hooghly receives more or less the drainage of the numerous towns situated on its banks. Moreover, the water of the river becomes brackish nearly three months during the year.

It is not safe to use river water.

These facts would be quite sufficient to induce the Government to force upon the riparian municipalities a combined scheme for the supply of filtered water at any cost, to be recovered from them by a rate even of 7 per cent. Moreover, this rate will not be a permanent one. As soon as the loans are paid off, it can be reduced to 5 per cent., which will be sufficient to meet the costs of the improvements which must necessarily be carried out to keep pace with the growing demands of such towns.

Riparian municipalities should be forced to carry out a combined water-supply scheme even on payment of 7 per cent. rate.

To carry out such a scheme, it is absolutely necessary for the Government to pass an enactment, which would empower the Government to compel the several riparian towns to execute any sanctioned scheme, or to execute it by advancing money from the public fund, and realize the same from the several riparian municipalities in proportion to the gross annual value of their holdings to the cost of the pumping works, the reservoirs, and filtering, and also to the maintenance thereof. The Howrah Municipality should bear the cost of the main pipe from south of Bally, and the other municipalities should bear the cost of so much of the main as will conduct their water to them.

Compulsory legislation necessary.

I have not got the details of this combined riparian scheme, consequently I cannot give any opinion on them.

The drainage of the town of Howrah is in a very deplorable condition. Formerly attempts were made to drain the town by outfalls sloping towards the Hooghly; some of these outfalls to the east and north of the East Indian Railway premises have been made pucca. Such pucca drains have no doubt met the wants of a very small area of the town. These drains have now been found objectionable, as the flowage from them foul the water of the river. The Port Commissioners are now trying to have them blocked up in order to guard against the nuisance. It has been suggested by the Sanitary Commissioner in his last inspection report that the town should be drained to the west, instead of eastward into the river Hooghly, in order to meet the objection of the Port Commissioners against contamination of the river. To divert these drains towards the west across the railway premises is a question of an expenditure of a considerable amount of money which the municipality is not in a position to meet, nor can it expect to carry out with the limited means at its command. Moreover, to divert these drains to the west, it will create another difficulty, as there is no other way of draining the town and the country surrounding, except by having a number of outfall drains sloping towards and connecting with the Howrah khal, which runs at a distance of about 3 miles from the town, and falling into the Hooghly on the north by a mouth called Bally khal, and on the south below Botanical Gardens.

Drainage very defective.

Drainage towards the Howrah khal advocated.

The drains on the west of the Grand Trunk Road are all kutcha, and they used to flow into the paddy-fields which are now mostly raised and made garden; consequently they are now obstructed. The East Indian Railway has also in certain places obstructed the drainage of the town. To keep these kutcha drains clean, it has been found expedient to compel the owners of the houses to have cesspools in their premises to receive the filthy flowage either from the kitchen, privy or the stables, &c. The disposal of the cook-room water and the liquid sewage would necessitate the multiplication of cesspools to such an extent as to render the removal of their contents a burden too heavy to meet from its present income.

Cesspools are necessary evils.

At present this municipality have got about 50 sewage carts which, working both morning and evening, are not sufficient to take away the contents of all the cesspools daily. To clean the existing cesspools of the town, it will require the entertainment of at least 100 sewage carts, the expenses of which the present conservancy cess is not sufficient to meet. Cesspools are in themselves source of nuisance, unless they are daily cleaned and tarred at least once a week.

Cleaning of cesspools would cost more than what the Municipality can afford to pay.

The most urgent requirement of the town, therefore, is undoubtedly a general system of surface drainage flowing into the Howrah khal, which, to confer a maximum benefit, should be undertaken at the same time as the water-supply. In fact, unconnected with a proper drainage, it may safely be stated that the supply of water will decidedly be a curse, as it will increase the contents of the kutcha drains which, having no fall or outlet, will be a source of nuisance and fatal diseases.

General system of drainage is necessary for the town.

It should go hand-in-hand with water supply.

Here also there is a necessity of legislation for a single or combined system of drainage to compel a municipality or a number of riparian municipalities to carry out certain schemes for the effective drainage of its or their towns.

Special legislation necessary for drainage.

I have gone through the draft enactments, and I think it is just adapted for the purpose and should be passed as soon as possible in order to have the two much needed boons, viz., water-supply and drainage, it a necessary for the sanitation of the town.

Draft enactment is adopted for this and other municipalities.

I would think that a provision similar to that in section 22 of Act VI of 1880 (Bengal Drainage Act), for the execution of the works from the public fund, should be made in the draft enactment. I suggest the following.

Execution of work from the public fund.

The cost of the execution of the works specified in such sanctioned schemes, plans and estimates, or any portion thereof, may, under the orders of the Lieutenant-Governor, subject to the sanction of the Governor-General in Council, be ordered to be advanced from the public fund, and shall be recovered as it were a loan to the municipality or municipalities concerned under the Loans Act of 1879.

I also think that it will be necessary to add the following to section 8:—"And such remuneration will be considered part of the costs of the execution of the works aforesaid."

Remuneration paid to the officer executing the work should be considered as costs of such work.

In the enactment there is no provisions as to how the cost of the execution of a general system of drainage will be realized.

There is no provision in the Bengal Municipal Act III of 1884 to levy any tax for such drainage, nor is it expedient to saddle the ratepayers with an additional taxation. It is impossible for the Municipality to execute such works with the limited means at their command. Under the circumstances, I do not see any other alternative than to accept the suggestion of Babu Dakhinaranjan Mukerjee.

Suggestion of Babu Dakhinaranjan is the only alternative which should be adopted for realising the costs of drainage.

To carry out this suggestion, it will be necessary to embody in the enactment provisions similar to those in the Bengal Drainage Act for the realization of costs with interest, apportionment amongst the several tenure-holders, owners, and occupiers. There should be provision to the effect that the cost of the sanctioned scheme, plan, and estimates for a general system of drainage, together with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, will be realized from the owners of lands and buildings affected by the works according to the gross annual valuation of such lands and buildings in so many annual instalments.

Provision should be made in the enactment for the realization of the costs of drainage.

XII.

Dated Camp Dwarhatta, the 5th January 1892.

Demi-official from—H. G. Cooke, Esq., Magistrate of Hooghly,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I am not aware that I can add anything to the facts that are already within the knowledge of the Government on the subject of the attitude of the municipalities towards a water-supply scheme. The majority of the municipalities, which were to be embraced in the original Howrah project, belong to this district; the opinions of the various bodies of the Commissioners were collected, and though some of these bodies recorded their approval of the scheme in the abstract, I believe there was no case in which certain practical difficulties were not pointed out as insurmountable; this I take it was a polite way of refusing to have anything to do with the project. I entertain no doubt whatever that every municipality in this district is dead against a filtered water-supply, and that such a project will be hotly opposed both at the legislative stage and whenever the law is put in force. Should the proposal become law, His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor is not without hope that the best opinion will be on the side of the proposal. This may be so in the case of a very few, especially in Serampore, where the advantage derived from the hydrant erected for the benefit of the public of two jute mill-owners have altogether redeemed the condition of two of the foulest bustees in the town, which, from being the most unhealthy quarters in the Municipality, have recently enjoyed immunity during a severe cholera epidemic which visited every other part of the town. A few there may be who will read the lesson that this teaches, or who have learnt it elsewhere; but the overwhelming majority will be against the measure.

Their opposition, however, will be easily worn out, and provided the proposal is one that is economically practicable, I should press the project and disregard opposition; but before doing this, it would be well to face the facts, and be quite sure that the proposal is financially sound. Before dealing, however, with its financial aspect, I will allude briefly to the only other argument that can be brought against the project, that is, that it is not necessary on sanitary grounds, as the unfiltered water of the river is good enough already, and is used for drinking purposes by all. I am not satisfied that this is true, but it is universally alleged by persons of every class that Hooghly water and none other is drunk in all municipalities

A statement to this effect I think occurs in every Municipal and Sanitary report of the district, and though I have more than once expressed my doubt as to its truth, I have done so chiefly on surmise, on my personal observation of the number of persons who carry water from the river, and on my knowledge of the disinclination of the people to walk ten steps where five can be made to suffice. It may be that religious considerations enter into the question, and that every Hindu in the town takes the river water, as it is undoubtedly sacred; in such case I think it may be argued with great plausibility that the river water is good enough when unfiltered, and the improvement produced by filtration would be very dearly bought at the price of a double tax on the value of holdings.

It should be remembered that the river is far purer north of Howrah, and that the further up-stream you go the purer the river is. A native gentleman only the other day assured me that there was a perceptible difference in the taste of the water at Serampore as compared with its taste at Hooghly, and that, though this was not noticed by his family residing at Serampore, the water at the last-named place tasted salt to him after a stay at Hooghly.

It is a sanitary question whether the water at present available for the inhabitants of the places north of Bally is so bad as to require filtration: at any rate the water-supply at such places should be judged on its own merits, and not on the results of experiments made down stream. This is one of the main arguments that will be directed against the project, that it is unnecessary. I am not aware how far its necessity on sanitary grounds is established by statistics having special reference to the up-stream municipalities: it would be well to be prepared with such statistics.

The other main argument consists of the poverty of the people. This argument is often heard in the mouths of the people, who are by no means poor, but who represent themselves to be so: it practically means that both rich and poor alike are opposed to increased taxation.

As a matter of fact, there is little or no poverty in the riparian municipalities; the educated classes are in their degree as prosperous as the working classes; swarms of middle class men are brought to Calcutta daily by the East Indian Railway, and every one of these is in the enjoyment of a competency, and the salaries of many should place them in affluent circumstances. I do not suppose any region outside Calcutta contains more well-to-do men of the middle class on pay varying from Rs. 50 to Rs. 200; above these are the medical and legal profession, which are very strongly represented, and whose members enjoy incomes of Rs 200 and upwards. So much for the middle class, the class which makes its voice of complaint heard loudest, though generally it has more to be thankful for than any other class.

The prosperity of the working classes is no less conspicuous, thanks to European enterprise in this district and adjoining districts.

The lowest paid adult male workman on the mill can make Rs. 7, the skilled hands can make Rs. 20 to Rs. 30 a month. This for India means extraordinary prosperity and high wages, so that it may be asserted that, if any place outside of the metropolis contains a population able to afford expensive sanitary luxuries, the riparian urban area in this district is the place: but the question of whether these prosperous workmen can afford filtered waterworks is not yet disposed of. They are rich enough for their primitive conception of life, but whether they are rich enough to pay for a very expensive luxury is another matter. In a recent inquiry that I made about the incidence of the latrine tax in the Serampore Municipality, I found that the vast majority of the rate-payers were paying Rs. 1-8 a year as latrine tax, whilst many of them paid as little as 7 annas a quarter house-tax. If we assume that the poorest person who pays tax at all pays 7 annas a quarter of Rs. 1-12 a year house tax, plus Rs. 1-8 a year latrine tax or Rs. 3-4 for both taxes, and that such person's income is Rs. 7 a month, the question is, is such a man capable of bearing an additional Rs. 1-12 a year water-rate? thereby bringing up his total payments to the municipality to Rs. 5.

I cannot but think that five-sevenths of a month's pay is a large contribution to local objects, the advantages of which are by no means evident to the payer. If a highly paid officer of Government were asked to pay Rs 1,500 a year on a monthly salary of Rs. 2,100, I think he would complain: but it will be admitted that relatively the poor man feels a tax imposed more than the rich, the same rates between tax and income being observed in both cases While on the subject of latrine-tax, I may mention that this tax has recently been introduced or extended in more than one municipality; it is a tax carrying a heavy minimum. I find that it used to be made a condition of its introduction that 2 annas a month was the minimum—Government No. 724-of 23rd August 1881. As I have said, the introduction of such a tax nearly doubled the tax of the lowest class of assessee; to Rs. 1-12 and Rs. 1-8 was added; if now a further Rs. 1-12 be added, the tax will have nearly trebled in a short time in some cases.

I am far from being sentimental over the wrongs of the people, but I am bound to say that I view with some misgivings the prospect held out by the proposed additional rate; it will fall heavily on the least prosperous classes, and would afford solid ground for the adverse criticism of Government.

If I understand the note aright, it is intended to make use of drainage as a stalking horse for water-supply, as municipalities are more favourable to drainage than to water-supply. I am not aware that the municipalities favour additional taxation even for surface drainage, which is the only kind of drainage that I have ever found under contemplation. In the two instances in which great efforts are contemplated, viz., in Serampore and Uttarpara, loans are to be incurred, but no additional tax is levied. I do not think that any one could possibly be misled by such gilding of the pill. There is no real analogy between the Drainage Act VI (B.C.) of 1880, and the sort of drainage provisions that are under contemplation. I have seen a good deal of the literature in connection with drainage projects under VI (B.C.) of 1880: the primary object of works under this Act as well as under the Embankment Act was to put money into the pockets of certain persons whose property, it was believed, would be benefited. Doubtless some plausible remarks were made about the sanitary virtue of the projects, but it was on its economic success that each such project was to stand or fall. The present proposals for compulsory drainage of towns, far from putting money into any one's pocket, will take money out of the pockets of all rate-payers. The drainage works under Act VI are not altogether satisfactory precedents for Government interfering as a public benefactor, and if alluded to, should be quoted rather as warnings than as examples.

XIII.

Dated 1st February 1892.

From—E. N. BAKER, Esq., Magistrate, 24-Parganas,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith the report called for in your confidential letter of the 6th October 1891, regarding the proposal to undertake special legislation in order to compel municipalities to make provision for improved water-supply and drainage.

2. His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, in the last paragraph of his note of the 18th September 1891, writes as follows:—"As for drainage, the drainage of a town, i.e., of its storm-water sewage, is one thing, and the drainage of a water-logged country is another. I doubt if there is much enthusiasm about the former." This distinction is, I venture to think, of material importance, and it seems to have been somewhat lost sight of in the scheme of legislation proposed. The supply of filtered water is, practically speaking, a purely municipal question. There can be no question of giving such a supply to any tract of country not included within a municipality or cantonment. But the drainage of water-logged areas is a matter of far wider concern. Water-logged tracts of country are, no doubt, found within municipal limits. But they are more numerous and far more extensive in rural areas, and they affect the health of a much larger population in the latter than in the former. Attention is invited to the note, dated 31st March 1879 (a copy of which is before Government) prepared by Mr. Whitfield, Executive Engineer, Northern Drainage and Embankment Division, in which he shows that there is a very large tract of country in the southern half of the 24-Parganas district, exceeding 260 square miles in area, of which the drainage is obstructed. Scarcely any part of this lies within municipal limits. I also forward herewith a copy of an interesting note submitted by the late District Engineer of the 24-Parganas, dated 27th February 1879, in which he urges the necessity of taking measures to improve the drainage of the entire Barrackpore sub-division and of the southern portion of Baraset. Here, again, the greater part of the area dealt with is non-municipal. If, therefore, Government is prepared to undertake legislation to facilitate the execution of drainage works on an extensive scale, it is not expedient to limit its operation to municipal areas. The Act should apply to all localities where drainage is required in the interest of the public health, whether they fall within or without municipal limits.

3. Municipal boundaries are commonly determined on what may be called administrative grounds, with no particular reference to the requirements of drainage. It can scarcely ever happen, therefore, that the area covered by a satisfactory drainage scheme can coincide with the boundaries of a municipality. An engineer, in preparing a scheme for a group of municipalities, would be almost always compelled either to include some non-municipal area, or to exclude some municipal area, or both. It would be easy to multiply examples of this. Thus, the scheme put forward by Mr. Dakhinaranjan Mukerji provides for the drainage of 35 square miles of country, while the total area of the five municipalities with which he deals is only 21¼ square miles. It will be seen that this gentleman proposes to make the non-municipal area liable to contribute towards the expenses of his scheme equally with the municipal portion. Again, the scheme prepared by the Sanitary Board for the same five municipalities and Dum-Dum Cantonment excludes about two-thirds of the area of North Dum-Dum (the drainage of which flows eastward to the Nikari Khal and Nowai Nuddee). It also excludes, in practice, a considerable part of the Cossipore Municipality which is already efficiently drained. On the other hand, it includes an area of paddy land between Nowpara and Belgharia which is not within the limits of any municipality.

		Square miles.
South Barrackpore	...	6
North Dum-Dum	...	6
South Dum-Dum	...	..
Baranagore	...	6¼
Cossipore-Chitpur	.	3¾
Total	...	21¼

4. I venture to think, therefore, that the Act should be made applicable to rural areas, both because the drainage of these is in even greater need of improvement than that of municipalities, and also because, if it is excluded from them, its operation will be hampered even within municipal limits.

5. As the law stands at present, the powers of a Municipality or a District Board to carry out drainage works on a substantial scale are limited. The Local Self-Government Act makes no provision for such works. The Municipal Act III (B.C.) of 1884, in respect of drainage, deals only with what His Honour has called the "drainage of a town, i.e., its storm-water and sewage." It nowhere contemplates the drainage of an extensive water-logged area for the improvement of the public health. Neither Act provides any machinery for raising funds for such a work. Any work of this nature which a District Board or a Municipality might undertake under the present law must be paid for out of its ordinary revenues, and no part of the cost can be recovered from those whose property was benefited by the work. The absence of any regular provisions for co-operation or for raising funds and recovering them from the localities benefited, and the little prominence given in the Acts of 1884 and 1885 to the subject of drainage, go a long way to explain the inaction of District Boards and Municipalities in the past. If these omissions are supplied, I venture to think that a good deal may be effected by a voluntary action. From what I have seen of the District Board of the 24-Parganas, I think it would readily accept a well-considered scheme of drainage, provided it did not impose too heavy a burden on its finances.

5. Assuming, therefore, that Government would wish to afford local authorities an opportunity for voluntary action in the first instance, and to exercise compulsion only in the event of their default, I venture to think that the scheme of legislation, set forth in your note, should be modified so as to give less prominence to the provisions for compulsion, and more prominence to those which confer powers on the local authorities to act of their own motion, and that it should include the power to recover the whole or a part of the cost from the persons benefited. Subject to this modification, the principle of the proposed legislation seems excellent, and I am in the belief that it will meet with a considerable measure of public support.

6. I give below an outline of the proposed law as it would be if this modification were introduced. It will be observed that no reference is made to water-supply in the voluntary sections. The reason for this is that water-supply is essentially a municipal question, and that (as is explained in your note) the existing provisions of Part VII of the Municipal Act, coupled with the new provisions of the amending Bill, relating to joint action by a group of municipal bodies, afford the necessary facilities for voluntary action in this respect.

In the compulsory sections water-supply is included; but here also I venture to think that we should avoid giving it undue prominence—

1. "Local authority" should be defined to include a Municipality, a District Board, and a Cantonment Committee.

2. Whenever it seems desirable to a local authority that drainage works should be carried out in any tract of country for the improvement of the public health, it may either itself prepare a scheme for such works, or may ask the Local Government to appoint an officer to prepare such a scheme. The cost of preparing the scheme, with the necessary plans, estimates, and specifications, may be advanced from public funds, and shall, if the work is eventually carried out, be deemed to be a part of the cost of construction.

3. The scheme, when prepared, shall be submitted to the Sanitary Board, and the Sanitary Board may either approve it, or may modify it, or may prepare a revised scheme in place of it.

4. The scheme when finally approved by the Sanitary Board (together with any remarks which the local authority may desire to make in the event of any modification being made by the Sanitary Board) shall then be submitted to the Local Government, and shall be by it approved, modified, or recast.

5. When the scheme has been finally* approved by the Local Government, the latter may either direct the local authority to carry it out or may appoint an officer to do so.

* Provision shall be made for publication and for considering objections.

6. The cost of carrying out the work may be advanced from the public funds, and shall be recovered from the local authorities as if it were a loan under the Land Acquisition Act of 1879, all the provisions of which shall apply to it.

7. Any two or more local authorities may unite in preparing a scheme, or in applying to the Local Government to appoint an officer to prepare a scheme, for the drainage of any tract of country which lies within their local jurisdictions, and all the above provisions of the Act shall apply to such a joint scheme. In such a case the scheme shall provide for the division of the estimated cost of the work between the local authorities concerned in proportion to the benefits accruing to them respectively. The orders of the Local Government in respect of such division shall be final.

8. If any two or more local authorities are unable to agree among themselves as to the preparation of a joint scheme, or as to the submission of a joint application, any one or more of such local authorities may apply to the District Magistrate (or to the Commissioner of the Division if the local authorities are in more districts than one); and the District Magistrate or Commissioner, after hearing any representation which the other local authorities may desire to make, may, if he thinks fit, make an application to the Local Government to appoint an officer to prepare the scheme. Such application shall be deemed† to have been made jointly by all the local authorities concerned, and shall be binding upon them for all the purposes of the Act.

† Provision should be made for an appeal by a local authority dissatisfied with the Magistrate's order.

9. Whenever it appears expedient to the Lieutenant-Governor to require the Commissioners of any Municipality, or any Cantonment Committee, or any two or more of such Commissioners or Committees, acting conjointly, to provide a supply of water for domestic purposes, or to require any local authority, or any two or more local authorities acting conjointly, to carry out drainage works for the improvement of the public health in any tract of country within their local jurisdictions, he may appoint an officer to prepare a scheme and estimates of the cost of such works. Such appointment shall be deemed to have been made under section 2 or section 7 of the Act, and all the provisions of the Act for carrying out and maintaining the work and recovering the cost of it from the local authorities concerned shall apply.

Subject to the provisions of the next succeeding section, the provisions of Part VII, section 279 to section 307, Act III (B.C.) of 1884, shall, so far as may be practicable, apply to any water-supply that may be provided under this Act.

10. When any work has been undertaken under this Act, it shall be lawful for any local authority on which any portion of the cost of construction may fall, to recover the whole or any part of such portion of the cost, together with any interest that may be payable thereon, by the levy of a rate in the manner hereafter provided.

11. In the case of a District Board, the said rate shall be assessed on the owners of all estates, tenures, and holdings, and of all mines and other immoveable property, situated within the area benefited by the works, in proportion to the amount of Road and Public Works cesses payable under Act IX (B.C.) of 1880, and shall be levied and collected by the Collector jointly with the said cesses:

Provided that the amount of the rate assessed in any one year, exclusive of the cost of collection, shall not exceed the amount of the instalment (together with interest) payable to Government in each year on account of the cost of construction.

12. In the case of a municipality or cantonment, the rate shall be levied by the local authority on the owners and occupiers of holdings throughout the whole or any part of the said municipality or cantonment in like manner as if it were a rate on holdings under section 85 (b) of the Bengal Municipal Act, and all the provisions of the said Act relating to the assessment and collection of the rate on holdings shall apply to such rate:

Provided that the amount of the rate assessed in any one year, exclusive of the cost of collection, shall not exceed the amount of the instalment with interest payable to Government in such year on account of the cost of construction.

13. The rate levied under the last preceding section shall be in addition to any water-rate that may be imposed under section 297 of the Municipal Act on account of the maintenance of any water-supply provided under this Act.

Dated Bankipore, the 8th February 1892.

Demi-official from—W. H. KING, Esq.,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

THE following is a copy of the reply which I sent to your demi-official of October last, on the subject of the water-supply of Howrah and certain allied questions:—

"I am convinced that some measure of this kind would prove a great boon to the public, and should be brought into existence as soon as a convenient opportunity occurs for such legislation. The foul condition of the drains in many municipalities is too well known to need description. That the people are alive to the inconvenience of this state of the drains is apparent from the occasional attempts made at improvement by constructing masonry drains which may be found scattered in short disconnected lengths within the areas of the larger municipalities, and I am sure the extension of these drains would be greatly appreciated. Under the existing conditions of administration, however, I fear there is little chance of anything being done beyond a continuance of the system of making these isolated bits of drains. This is so, because a complete scheme of drainage is a subject which involves a large expenditure, and Municipal Commissioners generally are timid in committing themselves to that.

"The individual looks to the Wards Commissioners to improve the drains; the Wards Commissioners perhaps ask the general body of Commissioners in meeting for funds; the general body, perceiving the demands for the whole town to amount in the aggregate to a complete drainage scheme, find themselves face to face with a problem very dissimilar from those smaller ones which they have been accustomed to consider and dispose of; the scheme appears to them a mountain which is beyond their power to climb, and this, in effect, is held to be sufficient reason for not taking up the complete scheme; but, as Municipal Commissioners, something must be done in the sanitary branch of their duties, and therefore a masonry drain here, and a masonry drain there, is made as circumstances permit. There is a distinct loss of efficiency in this manner of proceeding, and the people do not reap the full benefit of the money so expended. As a rule, these drains are no part of a general scheme; they are not adjusted as to level, nor as to capacity to serve the largest area possible; they have no outfalls properly so called, but generally terminate on a tank, or excavation which they defile; they remove obnoxious matter from one place to another, but do not carry it right away where it would be innocuous. This system will continue, I opine, as long as it is left undisturbed, the inertia of the municipal body will keep it steadily in its present course, and if we would produce a change of motion, some external force must be applied.

"I think, therefore, that legislation in the matter is necessary to assist Municipal Commissioners in making the best use of the funds at their disposal for such work, and the first section of your draft seems to me to provide what is needed, viz., the power to require the preparation of a scheme, and a statement of the way and means by which this is to be accomplished. A complete scheme having been prepared and approved of by authority, I believe there will be little real opposition to the small amount of taxation necessary to enable the work to be carried out. A great deal may be done in the way of educating municipalities by judiciously selecting as the first patients those in which it is known there will be little or no opposition.

"With regard to water-supply, which is even more important, the difficulty confronting Municipal Commissioners is proportionately greater, for, besides involving generally large amounts of expenditure, all the details of such projects are quite unfamiliar, and the idea of constructing water-works does not find so ready a reception; there are also many prejuddices which operate in the direction of preventing individual Municipal Commissioners from actively supporting measures of this kind. These prejudices are not very deep-rooted, and would yield and adapt themselves without much difficulty to a new condition of things, but so long as this new condition is not a fait accompli, they are strong enough to be a serious obstruction. For these reasons, I think if improvement be desired in the methods of water-supply, it will only be brought about by legislation of the kind proposed."

XV.

Note on Water-supply and Drainage.

His Honour—

The question of undertaking some sort of compulsory legislation for the purpose of introducing schemes of improved water-supply and drainage into Bengal municipal towns was brought forward in connection with the Howrah water-supply in my note of 7th September 1891. The reasons for recommending legislation are stated on page 2(A). The note was circulated demi-officially to certain selected officers, whose opinions are abstracted in the précis below. There seems to be a general agreement of opinion that special legislation is necessary, but it is thought that the draft suggested in my note would bring into unnecessary prominence the compulsory character of it. This criticism is, I think, a sound one. We have control sections in the existing Municipal Act, and it would clearly be better to devise some procedure for bringing them into play than to invent a new form of compulsion.

Referring again to the note, it will be seen (page 4B) that in order not to retard the amendment of the Municipal Act, it was proposed to confine the special Act to providing the machinery for imposing a water-supply or drainage scheme upon recalcitrant municipalities, the water-supply sections of the Municipal Act being embodied by reference. The anticipation that the amended Municipal Act would be carried during the winter session of Council has, however, not been realised, and this leaves us free to consider the water-supply and drainage question on its merits, without reference to the progress of the Municipal Act.

I think the attempt to combine water-supply and drainage in a single Act should be abandoned. The object of treating the two subjects together is stated on page 3 of the note (C), but opinion generally is against this plan, and there is a further objection to it that it would stand in the way of a project referred to later on for dealing with the drainage of water-logged and malarial tracts in the mufassal. I propose then to deal separately with the two following subjects—

I. Municipal water-supply.
II. Mufassal drainage.

I. As to municipal water-supply, I think the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Water-Works Act I of 1891 may properly be taken as a model, except perhaps as regards the right to house connexions which tends to enhance the cost of a scheme. It contains 50 sections against the 28* in our Municipal Act, and is altogether more modern in character. For instance, it fixes† the water-rate at 7½ per cent. on annual value, and provides for the exemption of houses or lands beyond a certain radius, to be fixed by the Local Government for each municipality from the nearest stand-pipe. This is better than our section 279, which fixes two alternative rates of 6 and 5 per cent. according to position. We have seen that the 6 per cent. limit absolutely blocks the Howrah water-supply scheme approved by the Sanitary Board; and the Chairman of the Burdwan Municipality represents (page 3 of his letter of 29th December) that the rate allowed by the Act is inadequate to meet the Burdwan expenditure on water-supply, and that difficulties are met with in working the two rates allowed. He further intimates that if opportunity were given him, he has a good deal to say about the working of the water-supply provisions generally. I may add that section 279 seems to me defective by reason of the reference to streets. It contemplates a municipality arranged in regular streets, as Calcutta is for the most part. The section, in fact, was taken from the Calcutta Municipal Act, Bengal Act IV of 1876, and it naturally takes no account of the fact that large portions of many mufassal municipalities can hardly be said to have any streets. Houses and fields are mixed up in such a way as to make the street test inapplicable. People may be close to a stand-pipe and yet not in a street supplied by it: on the other hand, they may be so far away that it is a hardship to charge them 5 per cent. If I remember right, there have been difficulties in Bhágalpur in working the 5 per cent. scale, and the method of total exemption sanctioned by the North-Western Provinces Act has had to be introduced in a rough kind of way by excluding certain párás or mahallas from the water-supply sections.

Since this was written, I have heard from Mr. Grierson that the Howrah Municipality have passed, and are sending up a 12-lakh scheme. This of course would be well within the 6 per cent.

I suggest, then, for the Lieutenant-Governor's consideration—

(a) that the water-supply sections of Bengal Act III of 1884 be struck out;
(b) that a Water-supply Act on the lines of the North-Western Provinces Act I of 1891 be passed in their place as a separate Act, opportunity being given for a full expression of opinion as to the modifications required with reference to Bengal conditions, and the experience gained in Bhágalpur, Burdwan, and Dacca during the last few years.

This, however, will not of itself meet the difficulty of inducing municipalities to combine, in order to carry out a joint-scheme of water-supply. It should be observed here that the view in the North-Western Provinces appears to be that the control sections (62, 63 of Act XV of 1883) are strong enough to enable the Government to compel a municipality to carry out a water-supply scheme, vide Mr. Smeaton's letter of 25th November. If this is so, then no compulsory provisions at all are required, for our control sections, 64, 65, 66, were borrowed from the North-Western Provinces Act, and, as comparison will show, materially strengthened in the borrowing. Still, I am not sure that, under our law as it stands, the case of a group of municipalities could be dealt with, and I suspect Mr. Smeaton was thinking only of single municipalities. I doubt, indeed, whether anything like our petty riparian municipalities on either banks of the Hooghly exists in the North-Western Provinces at all.

On the whole, then, I conclude that some compulsory provisions covering the case of a group of municipalities should be added to the Water-supply Act. In drafting such sections, I would follow in the main the lines suggested by Sir H. Harrison in his letter of 15th October, endeavouring at the same time to simplify the procedure as much as possible.

Although our control sections are not, I think, comprehensive enough to enable us to compel a group of municipalities to combine for a water-supply project, they are, I think, strong enough for the purpose of dealing with individual municipalities. This is a point for legal opinion, but it is practically involved in the point discussed above. For, if it is admitted, as the authorities consulted do admit, that it is right that Government should have the power to compel a group of municipalities to combine for a water-supply scheme, it is clearly right that it should have the same power in respect of individual municipalities.

Under water-supply, then, the proposals now submitted may be summed up briefly as follows :—

(a) That a draft be prepared on the lines of the North-Western Provinces Act.

(b) That compulsory sections be added to it covering the case of groups of municipalities interested in a project of water-supply, and extending to the case of individual municipalities, if, on further inquiry, it is found that the control sections of the existing Act do not enable us to deal with them adequately.

(c) That the water-supply sections of the Municipal Act be repealed.

II. Secondly, there is the question of rural drainage undertaken, not, as under the Bengal Drainage Act VI of 1880, with the object of reclaiming land promising a possible set-off in increased rental, but in order to make a particular area or tract of country more healthy. Such tract might include one or more municipalities as in the case of the Barahanagar (Baranagore) scheme, or it might be purely rural. In cases of this kind, I doubt whether compulsion can properly be resorted to except under conditions which would justify the passing of a special Act for the area concerned. But considering the outcry there is about the prevalence of malarial fever, I think it is a question whether some legal machinery should not be provided for the purpose, of such a nature that it would only come into action at the instance of the people affected. If, for example, in a tract suffering from malaria a certain number of people moved the Magistrate to take action, he might, in consultation with the Sanitary Board, get out a rough estimate without survey, and might then take votes on the question whether the scheme should be proceeded with. If a certain majority was obtained, surveys and estimates would then be made, and a further vote might be taken when the cost had been ascertained. In the event of the scheme being carried out, the cost would be recovered in the form of a rateable addition to the road and public works cesses of the area.

I can myself see no more difficulty in getting people to vote on a question of that sort than there would be in getting them to vote for Union Committees, which is already provided for in the rules under Bengal Act III of 1885.* But if the voting element is thought to be impracticable, the decision in the matter might be left to the District Board, it being assumed that they represent the people, and can therefore be trusted to decide on the project and to assess the rate. An outside limit of so much per rupee on the annual rental of the area would have to be fixed.

* Collier's edition, page 86.

This, of course, is a very rough sketch of the possible outlines of legislation for rural drainage. The subject is one which might perhaps be suitably discussed in a conference of representative gentlemen.

Inspection report of the Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal on the Jessore Municipality.

I INSPECTED the Jessore Municipality in January 1891, but I did not then write a report of my inspection, as I wished to consult the Engineer-member of the Sanitary Board regarding the drainage. The Engineer to the Board having visited the town and laid his report before the Board, I again inspected Jessore in February 1892. A rough sketch of the Municipality is annexed.

Constitution of municipality, population, income and expenditure.—Jessore is the administrative hed-quarters of the district of that name, and is situated towards the centre of the district, south-west of the river Bhyrab. The town was constituted a Municipality in 1864 under the provisions of Act III (B.C.) of 1864, and is now governed by Act III (B.C.) of 1884. The Municipal Board consists of 18 Commissioners, of whom two-thirds or 12 are elected by the rate-payers, and one-third or 6 are appointed by the Government. The population within municipal limits is 8,306, of whom 4,646 are Hindus, 3,458 Muhammadans, 182 Christians, and 20 belong to other races. The income of the Municipality during the twelve months preceding my second visit was Rs. 14,166, including an opening balance of Rs. 466. The expenditure during the same period amounted to Rs. 14,456, of which Rs. 11,828 was spent on sanitation as follows :—

(b)	Drainage	356	0	0
(c)	Water-supply	441	0	0
(d)	Construction and improvement, &c., of roads ...	2,577	0	0
(e)	Public latrines	391	0	0
(f)	Private „	1,865	0	0
(g)	Disposal of the dead	11	0	0
(h)	Markets and slaughter-houses	.....
(i)	Vaccination	30	0	0
(j)	Maintenance of hospitals and treatment of sick ...	2,774	0	0
(k)	Buildings for sanitary purposes	.....

Excluding items (d) and (j), which can scarcely be classed as sanitary expenditure, Rs. 6,477 was spent on sanitation proper. This is a fair amount for a small municipality like Jessore, but a very large percentage of the total expenditure is absorbed in paying the monthly salaries of the permanent conservancy establishment of the town, which leaves a comparatively small amount for expenditure on drainage and water-supply—the most important sanitary requirements of the town.

Drainage.—The climate of Jessore has the notoriety of being unhealthy, the cause being the want of a proper system of drainage, for which, however, the Municipal Commissioners are not so much to blame as would at first sight appear, as they have had unavoidable natural causes to contend against.

The whole of the Jessore district is intersected by a number of rivers which carry the water of the Ganges on the north to the sea on the south. In many instances these rivers have silted up, and once large rivers are now dead streams, which it is practically impossible to resuscitate. It may be interesting here to quote a few passages from a paper recently read by Mr. J. Fergusson before the Geological Society in London on recent changes in the delta of the Ganges. After showing how changes in these dead rivers occur, and why they leave their old beds and take new courses, he aptly remarks that "the course of nature in this matter can no more be interfered with than a pendulum 39 inches in length can be made to beat once in two seconds of itself. It can be forced to do so for a time by the application of machinery, but directly the pressure is removed, it will rapidly return to its normal beat. So it is with these rivers. It is their office to raise the delta by the deposition of silt, and each river flows in a given course, until it has completed its work, when it either changes its direction or dies, and a new river is opened out elsewhere. The application of various expedients may retard the operation of natural laws for a time, but eventually nature will effect her end." The cause of the changes above referred to is this: "A river runs in a given course, gradually elevating its bed and the country near it to or above the level of the rest of the adjacent delta, until one of two things happens, namely, either the river overflows into a lower tract of country and commences to raise the new tract, or if that part of the delta is practically levelled up and completed, the river is gradually choked up by its own sediment and dies, and a new river is opened out in some other part of the delta where the land is lower and requires raising." The Jessore rivers have followed the latter course. The delta in Nadia and Western Jessore has been raised and practically completed, and by the gradual deposition of silt the line of drainage, which was formerly from north-west to south-east is now from north-east to south. In other words, the work that had to be performed by the Bhyrab, the Cobaduck, the Nobogunga and the Mysore chitra has been completed, and the rivers have died. In their place the little Elankhali khal has opened out into the great Madhumati and the Gorai has enlarged, and the formative energy has been carried at one bound from the west of the Jessore district to the east of it. It is thus useless to attempt opening out the Bhyrab. The drainage should now, following the natural slope of the country, be diverted away from the Bhyrab to a direction in which the fall will be easier. But although the Bhyrab cannot be improved, the obstructions in it, caused by fishing weirs, &c., might with advantage be removed. The proposal to bund up the river and turn it into a lake is in my opinion highly objectionable from a sanitary point of view. The lake if formed would not only raise the level of the sub-soil water, thus causing an increase of malarial fever, but would soon be filled with noxious water-plants and become a source of greater nuisance than ever, as experience has shown in Burdwan and other towns where the experiment has been tried: an increase of malarial fever has been the result, and in each case the bunds have had to be removed. What is wanted at Jessore is a simple and efficient drainage scheme, and, as a first step in this direction, the Commissioners might improve the surface drainage by clearing the old drains to the south of the town which originally carried the greater portion of the drainage. These have been gradually filling up, and are now almost obliterated. The drains leading into the river drain only a very small portion of the Municipality along the river bank. These should be connected with the drains to the south of the town and flushed with river water during the rains. I was informed that serious obstruction to drainage had been caused by insufficient waterway in the railway embankment. The matter will be considered by the Sanitary Board when preparing a drainage scheme for the town, which will be done as soon as the necessary preliminary surveys and levels are taken—a work that should be put in hand without delay in communication with the Engineer to the Board. See the circulars which have recently been issued by the Board to municipalities on the subject of preparing preliminary surveys. If the Municipality has not sufficient funds for a proper drainage scheme, the Commissioners should raise a loan from Government for the purpose. Jessore will never be a healthy place until it is provided with a proper drainage system.

Water-supply.—In former years when the Bhyrab was a flowing river fed by the Ganges, it supplied the inhabitants of Jessore with fairly good drinking water, but as it now contains only the water of bheels and swamps, which of course is unwholesome, the people have to depend on tanks and wells for their supply of drinking-water. There are, if I am correctly informed, only four municipal tanks and one silted up well, all quite insufficient for the requirements of the town. Private tanks are therefore largely resorted to, and as these are almost without exception thickly overgrown with noxious vegetation, the water is foul. The Municipal Commissioners, realizing the insufficiency and impurity of the present water-supply, propose to raise a loan of Rs. 15,000 from Government for the purpose of excavating and re-excavating tanks and improving the water-supply generally. The scheme has my hearty approval and support.

Conservancy.—No improvement in this respect appears to have been made since Jessore was inspected in January 1888 by Dr. Lidderdale, whose useful and practical suggestions have been unheeded. Considering, however, the limited income of the Municipality and the many important sanitary objects, especially in the matter of drainage and water-supply, which ought to be attended to as soon as possible, I cannot recommend the Commissioners to increase the present conservancy establishment. But they might see that proper supervision and control is exercised over the existing subordinate staff. A great deal of improvement can also be effected by strictly enforcing the provisions of the Municipal Act which relate to conservancy, and thus making the people do their part of the duty.

There are now only three public latrines within the Municipality. Four years ago when my predecessor, Dr. Lidderdale, inspected the town, there were five. It is not explained why there are fewer of these most necessary contrivances now. The statements made in the inspection memorandum book that the present number of public latrines meets the requirements of the people, as about half the population of the town have private privies of their own, cannot be accepted, as it is impossible that only three public latrines can suffice for 4,000 persons. Two or three more public latrines are required, and should be provided in suitable places as soon as possible. The provisions of Part IX of the Municipal Act being in force, private latrines are under the control and supervision of the Municipal Commissioners. These latrines seem to be fairly well-cleaned and their contents properly trenched. I was glad also to observe that the night-soil grounds are cultivated.

Disposal of the dead.—The present arrangement for cremation and burial are fairly satisfactory, and the burial-grounds and burning ghâts appear to get some supervision. In the Muhammadan burial-grounds, however, bodies are not interred in regular lines as they should be.

Vaccination.—The provisions of the Compulsory Vaccination Act, V (B.C.) of 1880, are in force in this Municipality, and the progress of vaccination is fairly satisfactory.

Note by the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal on Sanitation.

I HAVE been asked to write a note on Sanitation or Public Hygiene for the benefit of the members of the Conference which is to be held at Belvedere on the 18th July for the purpose of discussing this subject with special reference to water-supply, drainage and conservancy in their bearing on the health of the people of Bengal.

Theoretically, Sanitation or Public Hygiene is a most important matter to discuss, for upon it depends all the powers—moral, intellectual and physical— of a people. But, as a practical measure, in which every member of an executive administration should feel a vital interest, it is of even greater importance, and it is this practical side of the question principally that I understand the Conference has been called together to consider, though of course the general and indirect benefits to be derived from good sanitation will also be taken into consideration. Notwithstanding the indifference still displayed by the public at large in reference to sanitation, I may safely assert that during the past four or five years there has sprung up a thoughtfulness about the necessity and value of hygienic measures, which is encouraging; but I regret to say that the majority of municipal and other local bodies have not yet learned to appreciate the duty devolving upon them to be careful of the health of the people committed to their charge. It is to be feared also that a very small proportion even of the educated people of Bengal fully realise the fearful waste of life which annually takes place in these provinces from preventible disease, directly resulting from the violation of the most elementary principles of sanitation. The epidemics of cholera, fevers, and small-pox, which sweep over the province and lay indiscriminately their tribute of death, are too often attributed to the climate, or to local conditions of nature, which it is argued must be endured, because they cannot be cured. It is not recognised that the conditions of life and the want of sanitary arrangements have to a great extent prepared the way for these pestilences. It is not only a very great mistake, but unfair to blame the climate and the so-called local conditions of nature for the excessive mortality. One has only to look at other countries which were at one time almost, if not quite, as unhealthy as Bengal now is to see the enormous benefits in the shape of improved health of communities, lengthened duration of life, and increased individual comfort which the people of those countries at the present day are reaping from improved sanitation. If similar sanitary principles were as generally adopted in this country, there is not the least doubt that mortality and suffering would be greatly reduced.

I have already alluded to the indifference and ignorance which prevail in the majority of municipalities on even the most elementary principles of sanitation. In the course of my tours of inspection, I am frequently asked the question—"What is sanitation, and what do you mean by public hygiene?" The simplest reply to such a question is that sanitation or public hygiene is the science and art of preserving health, that is, of obtaining the most perfect action of body and mind during as long a period as is consistent with the laws of life. In other words, it aims at rendering growth more perfect, decay less rapid, life more vigorous, and death more remote. By the light of our present enlarged knowledge, we are enabled to ascertain the essential principles requisite to secure or promote these desired ends, and they may be enumerated as follows. Differences of opinion may exist as to the exact relative order of their importance, but that is a detail—

(1) Accurate registration of vital statistics.
(2) Pure water.
(3) Good drainage.
(4) Pure air.
(5) Adequate conservancy arrangements.
(6) Vaccination.

I mention these principles, not with any idea of discussing them in any elaborate detail, as that would be altogether beyond the limits of Members' patience and the time at their disposal, but merely for the purpose of fixing them as standards before us. I may, however, be permitted to give a brief kaleidoscopic sketch of a few of the particular advantages to be derived from each of the above mentioned essentials to a healthy life.

Accurate Registration of Vital Statistics.

Registration accurately performed fulfils many useful purposes; we need, however, only consider it here as far as it concerns sanitation. In this respect it furnishes to medical and sanitary science information of the highest value concerning the public health, as by means of registration efficiently conducted, the sanitary authorities of any locality are informed of the prevalence of preventible disease, and are thus enabled to take the necessary measures for the protection of the public health. Moreover, registration reports, taken in connection with the census, yield statistical results which throw light upon the casual conditions under which prevailing diseases occur, and thereby prove an invaluable contribution to the science of preventive medicine. Registration, however, to be of value, must be conducted according to certain general principles, which apply to all statistics: the data collected must be uniform and accurate as regards quality, and they must be complete as regards quantity; and to be useful as guides for sanitary measures, the registration returns must not only be complete and accurate, but they must reach the sanitary authorities whom they are destined to enlighten with the least possible delay. Prompt information is no less necessary than prompt action in such matters.

Pure Water.

The supply of wholesome water in sufficient quantity is a fundamental sanitary necessity: without it injury to health inevitably arises, either simply from deficiency of quantity, or more frequently from the presence of impurities. In all sanitary investigations the question of the water-supply is one of the first and most important points of enquiry, and, as far as my experience goes, it is deficient, impure, and polluted to a more or less serious extent in nearly every town in Bengal. I have no hesitation in attributing cholera, many forms of fever, dysentery, and diarrhœa, and other diseases which prevail in our towns, principally to the water-supply which, for the most part, even in towns situated on the banks of rivers, is obtained from tanks and wells, the water of which is too frequently little better than diluted sewage, abounding in animal and vegetable life, every shower of rain washing filth into it, whilst the clothes and cooking utensils cleaned in it contribute their modicum of filth. Every one who has any experience of Bengal will know that even in the vicinity of Calcutta there are tanks and wells of this description, in which the inhabitants of the surrounding houses bathe and wash their garments and cooking utensils, and from which their drinking vessels are filled with a liquid that is poison! There is no doubt whatever that an improved, and, if possible, filtered water-supply is one of the greatest sanitary requirements of Bengal towns, and not till it is provided can we hope for an improved standard of health. The consideration of this subject naturally leads to that of another, viz., how bodies of water after serving their purpose are to be dealt with, and removed. The answer very soon suggests itself—in a regular system of drainage which is as important as a pure water-supply. As this subject is also closely connected with purity of air and conservancy arrangements, I propose to deal with all three together.

Drainage, Air, and Conservancy Arrangements.

I do not suppose any one needs to be reminded that the breathing of air rendered impure from any cause is hurtful, and that the highest degree of health is only possible when to other conditions is added that of a proper supply of pure air. Well, then, this is only to be obtained by—

(1) The construction in crowded localities of roads which act as air shafts, and of sufficiently ventilated dwelling-houses;

(2) Adequate conservancy arrangements, by which I mean the regular cleansing of latrines, including the proper disposal of their contents, and the regular and prompt removal of the refuse around houses and from the public streets; and

(3) A regular system of drainage to carry away surplus water, and prevent its stagnation in the soil.

The latter is a great necessity in Bengal towns, most of which are at present water-logged, which is undoubtedly the chief cause of the prevalence of fever, as polluted water is one of the chief causes of cholera. The two are closely allied, and should, whenever possible, be considered together. The health and death-rate of Calcutta and other large Indian towns—in fact, I may safely say of all parts of the civilised world, before and after the introduction of an improved water-supply and a regular system of drainage, furnish striking proofs of the enormous influence exerted by such conditions as those of soil and water on the health of a town population, and of the true economy of expenditure, however heavy it may seem at first, on works of a permanent nature, which have for their object the improvement of these two essential principles of sanitation. With such experience before them as I have pointed out, Municipal Commissioners should have no hesitation in doing all they can to achieve the same result in their municipalities, even though they may at first meet with some local opposition. They owe it in fact to the increasing population under their protection to provide them with pure drinking-water and good drainage, and they have now every facility for doing so, either separately or in conjunction with other municipalities. There is a Government loan fund from which they can borrow money at a cheap rate; a Sanitary Board constituted as shown in the margin to advise them in matters connected with the sanitary improvement of their towns, and a specially selected Sanitary Engineer provided by the Government to assist them gratis in drawing up schemes for the approval of the Board, and afterwards to inspect the works also at the Government expense, to see that they are being properly carried out. In future, however, I think it would be convenient if the Chairman and a Commissioner selected by the municipality concerned were personally associated with the Board when an important project is being considered. Perhaps these gentlemen could arrange to be present at the meeting of the Board at which the project is to be discussed, in order, on the one hand, to help the Board with their local experience and ideas in arriving at a right decision, and on the other to receive and have explained to them the suggestions of the experienced members of the Board. An interchange of ideas in such a way would be of the utmost advantage to all parties concerned, and would probably save a great deal of correspondence which might otherwise be necessary, and it would also facilitate the carrying out of the projects. Municipalities should on no account attempt to carry out important projects, involving engineering questions, without the professional advice of the Sanitary Board, as a waste of money and injury to health are often caused by defective sanitary works constructed upon wrong principles. "Economy in sanitation" is a term which includes the application of sound principles to sanitary works, the method of executing such works economically and efficiently, and the saving of labour and expense.

Vaccination.

There is just one other matter I should like to touch on before closing this note, and that is, vaccination—a very important branch of sanitation, regarding which there seems to be some misapprehension in the minds of Municipal Commissioners, which probably accounts for the indifference with which so many of them regard the subject. It is now acknowledged throughout the civilized world that vaccination is the only true prophylactic against the dreadful, often fatal, and generally disfiguring disease of small-pox. "If that is so," I am often asked, "how is it that vaccinated persons sometimes get the disease?"—simply because they allow the efficacy of their primary vaccination to wear off, and are not re-vaccinated. I have seldom known a re-vaccinated person to get small-pox, and in every case, in my experience, where vaccinated persons have contracted the disease, it was discovered either that they were not properly vaccinated originally, or that many years had elapsed since they were vaccinated. It is unreasonable to expect vaccination in one's infancy to be a life-long protection, but re-vaccination is practically a complete protection against small-pox, and it should, in my opinion, be repeated every five years. Seven years is generally believed to be the interval which may safely be allowed to elapse before accepting re-vaccination, but I am a believer in the more frequent acceptance of the prophylactic, especially in crowded localities. As evidence of the thorough protection which periodical re-vaccination affords, I have only to refer to the complete absence of small-pox among the nurses and servants of small-pox hospitals. There is a Government Animal Vaccination Depôt at Calcutta, and another at Darjeeling, from which good, fresh, and reliable bovine lymph can be had on application in almost unlimited quantities at all seasons of the year, so that municipalities have no excuse for neglecting vaccination, which I hope they will now realize is a most important branch of their duties, and do all in their power to carry it on vigorously.

In conclusion, it only remains for me to impress upon Municipal Commissioners, and on all toilers in the vast though profitable fields of hygiene, the great importance of being thorough in all we do—not half-hearted, nor uncertain in our work. Success will then assuredly reward our efforts.

I find I have written a longer note than I intended, but the subject is of such great importance to municipalities and the Sanitary Department that, as I progressed, it became evident that it could not in justice to either be disposed of in a few lines.

Sanitary Commissioner, Bengal.

Note.

In matters legislative, on principle it is fair to admit much attention is due to opinion of those that are most affected by legislation. In this direction the tendency of the Government is and ought to be accentuated in the same proportion as the Government finds the people qualified with the degree of wholesome deliberative faculty necessary for the occasion. In connection with municipal legislation and similar enactments bearing on recognised public and popular bodies, the ruling powers cannot be too careful in shaping the course of law to the attitude of mind of those for whom law is made. It is very possible all legislation in this direction may be subject to jealous and pronounced criticism.

2. The subject, however, which His Honour has been pleased to refer to the consideration of this Conference lays claim to especial attention and exception on account of the various local and inherent causes involving difficulties of complex nature. Compulsory legislation of the kind suggested in the note of Mr. Risley is, in my opinion, very badly needed in Bengal. In making this assertion, which may seem unduly broad to some leaders of public opinion, I distinctly wish to be understood I have not lost sight of liberal principles of legislation, but have made the statement having duly weighed the intelligence and requirements of the people in connection with municipal enterprises. I have worked for nine years as Vice-Chairman of the Municipality of Patna, and tried in my own humble sphere of activity to introduce those institutions of sanitation that are permissive under the existing Act, but found myself in the most important measures bereft of the support of the majority of the Commissioners. This, I take the liberty to express, I attribute partly to the want of efficiency in the Commissioners and partly to individual but fatal instances of like and dislike. Under the existing law and social condition, no Municipal Board, I make bold to say, can be free from inefficiency. The reason is obvious. Two-thirds of the Commissioners are representatives of the people, and have always the majority on their side. Theoretically, it is best the people should be in the majority, but it is in the practice that one finds himself utterly disappointed. A place on the Municipal Board confers marked civic honour, and it is natural canvassing is carried on promises and favours more calculated to win over the voters than guard the purity of election. It is notorious success in election is in too many cases secured by pledges of exemption and reduction of municipal charges made liberally to voters. This in itself is a corruption which defies all attempt at improvement, as substantial improvement must always entail expenses. People must pay higher for higher standard of comforts.

But coming to the specific question of drainage and water-supply, one is at once confronted with absolute necessity and no luxury. Here the question does not stand between degrees of comfort, but hopelessly confines itself to inflexible and bare necessity, telling in deadly severity on the life, health, and hence on the occupation and prosperity of the people.

It is possible the low degree of intelligence of the masses and the want of sense of duty or of moral courage in the more select do not recognise the importance of the measure. When a people find explanation of epidemics and foul disease in visitation of Providence and not in physical conditions, it is no wonder they should treat all expense incurred to improve sanitation as money wasted. But will such a state of affairs sanction the silence of Legislature on the ground that the people may not, or perhaps will not, approve of the measure? Not by any means. Where the people cannot lead they must be led. Constitutionally this measure is valid, and morally it is a duty yet to be performed. The miserable state to which our towns are reduced on account of canals, embankments, railways, and other obstruction to natural drainage positively defies description. Humanity claims higher respect and dictates the introduction of compulsory legislation in the direction proposed. It is expected both measures will occasion an enhanced charge on the tax-payer, but it is also certain that the virulent epidemics will cease to visit our towns. The pale, haggard looks of the citizens will assume healthier expression, and they will find the extra tax a light burden in the increased amount and opportunity of work. The social bearings of our people are undergoing changes with the changes of time, and it is meet legislation should step in and accelerate or moderate as best suited to the occasion. This is an occasion where advance is absolutely necessary. The primitive mode of living is dead and dying out, the more modern is invoked, and in the face of this drainage and water-works, the two first safeguards of public health, there is little else to command immediate attention. Permissive legislation has been given a fair trial. The experiment has been made. It has failed. The people do not sufficiently appreciate the application of scientific research to the conduct of daily life. The Government then must take the lead and carry the torch of enlightenment where darkness prevails.

As regards groups of municipalities, I quite agree with Mr Forbes that a joint committee of Commissioners from the different municipalities concerned will lead to misunderstandings, and that therefore if a joint committee is appointed, it must be practically under Government control. I agree with his suggestion that the joint committee should be composed of two persons elected by the Municipal Commissioners of each municipality and of equal number of persons appointed by Government, with the District Magistrate or a Government-appointed Chairman to preside.

SYUD FUZL IMAM,
Vice-Chairman, Patna Municipality.

Note on the scarcity of water in Bengal.

In dealing with this subject, it is important to ascertain at the outset the cause which produces scarcity of water in this country, for if we can succeed in tracing the cause, there will remain little or no difficulty in finding out measures for its redress.

In my opinion the present scarcity of water in the country may be traced to—

Changes in the physical condition of the country affecting its rainfall. It has been tested by experience, and the theory is now admitted by scientific men, that the presence of large forests in a country is conducive to heavy rainfall, whereas their absence produces the contrary effect. The Government fully recognize this theory, and have already proved its accuracy by several experiments in different parts of the country. Hence we find that in tracts under the Forest Department, and in Darjeeling, endeavours are being made by the authorities for planting large trees

One hundred years ago, Bengal abounded with forests and dense jungles, these have mostly been cleared in many places for the purpose of cultivation, and the result is a comparative decrease of rainfall in those parts which caused a large number of tanks to be dried up, with the inevitable result of scarcity of water in the country.

With the decrease of rainfall, the volume of rain water which formerly fell and blessed the country has now been considerably affected.

Another cause of the present scarcity of water seems to be, that whereas in former times the Ganges or, as it is locally named Pudma, Dhalleswari, Kirtinasa, Meghna, &c., and their numerous tributaries, used to be overflooded during the rainy seasons, and to carry into and discharge on both sides of these streams large volumes of water for the benefit of the country through which they flowed. The streams named do not now bring the same quantity of water, nor are they overflooded in the rainy seasons as before. It appears that this may be owing to the circumstance that, while in old times the Ganges used to bring down almost its entire volume of waters into the streams named above, before it empties itself into the Bay of Bengal the river now from Hardwar, its source down to Bihár, supplies a considerable portion of its waters for irrigation purposes, and which are diverted into the numerous canals opened by the Government for the purpose. Thus the streams below Bihár, which used to receive their supply from the Ganges are no longer overflooded, nor do they receive the same large quantity of water from the parent stock as before.

The Government have opened extensive irrigation works in the N. W. and Bihár provinces; the number of canals dug, many of which are as large as natural rivulets, must necessarily divert a very large quantity of water for the benefit of cultivation, and it may be noted that, while the cultivators of those parts are benefited on payment of heavy rates for the use of the water we have been deprived of the natural advantages which, but for the diversion, we could have still enjoyed.

Besides the two causes mentioned above, the scarcity of water may be partly due to another natural cause. It is a geographical truth that whereas in the N. W. Provinces and in North Bengal the land is elevated, that of South and Central Bengal is extremely low, and that the washing of sand, clay, &c., to it during the rainy seasons have the effect of not only rendering the low lands comparatively high, but these have likewise silted up the numerous small streams, canals, bhils and tanks which once abounded in the lower and central Bengal Provinces The first two causes may be removed, but it is impossible to find a remedy for the third.

The closing up of the natural water passages by railway embankments may be considered another cause of the present scarcity of water, but as much has been written on the subject, it is not necessary to dwell on it beyond alluding to its existence.

Of the local causes, which are also supposed to contribute to this scarcity, I would mention only a few which in my opinion seem important.

The practice of digging large tanks from motives of piety and public utility, has from time immemorial obtained in the country, and evidences of this still exist in the numerous large tanks to be found in all parts of Bengal, though silted up and in an extremely dilapidated condition. The principle of productive public works was scarcely known in those days, and the people had the advantage of using drinking-water free of cost.

Since the advent of the British Raj, the zamindars and the well-to do middle class gentlemen, through motives of satisfying the Government, now spend large sums on such public works as the opening of roads, water-works, &c., and necessarily neglect even to restore or efficiently to maintain the existing tanks, which formerly supplied drinking-water to the people.

It is natural that the zamindars and others should follow the example set by the Government of the country, and that the motives of religion and of commemorating memories must be replaced by the new principle of productive public works, such as construction of railways, dispensaries, schools, public roads, and town-halls, which find favour with the authorities. The money hitherto contributed by them for tanks, dhurumsallas, &c., now goes towards the works of public utility, enumerated above.

In the by-gone days, the rate of wages for labour was very cheap. In the Rajshah district, say a hundred years ago, the daily allowance of one anna per head was considered sufficient remuneration, and the labourers did their work of digging tanks, &c., most gladly. In those times the zamindars possessed the power of trying both civil and criminal cases: they had the power too of confining guilty persons in their own jails Evidences are not wanting that the zamindars made use of the convict labour for digging tanks, &c. We learn from old men still living that the ramparts surrounding the palace of the Nattore Raj were built by convicts. Besides, it is an undeniable fact, that whenever a zamindar commenced a useful public work, such as digging tanks, the raiyats volunteered their services gratis, and were quite content with the day's meal. This was known as the imprest labour system, and the practice continued to be in vogue 20 years before.

The zamindars felt little or no loss even if they had to make a gift of 100 bighas of land, but the value of lands has now been so much enhanced that it is difficult for a cultivator to get a cottah of jote-land from the zamindars. The eagerness now shown by the raiyats to obtain land is equal to the interest taken of it by the zamindars, and it follows that now-a-days the zamindars must feel it hard to spare 10 bighas of land fit for cultivation for the purpose of a tank.

Another cause which helped to bring about the scarcity of water is that in former times the relation between zamindars and raiyats used to be friendly: we are told that some of the zamindars shed tears on the bare mention to them of scarcity of water in the country, and they lost no time to order tanks to be dug for the removal of the grievance. We are, however, pained to find that at the present moment this happy relation between the zamindari and raiyati classes is completely changed for the worse. Are we to attribute this change to the shortcomings of the zamindars or those of the raiyats, or is it to be accounted for by the present system of education, which excludes morality from its curriculum, and which is acquired as a means for pecuniary gain, or are we to trace its cause to the numerous laws and Acts ostensibly enacted by the Government for maintaining friendly relations between the two classes. The tendency, however, is towards an appreciable increase in the strained relationship between the two. At present the zamindar in some quarters is even debarred from collecting his dues from the raiyats without the aid of the courts, and consequently it is but reasonable to suppose that he can scarcely recognize the propriety of his moral obligation to the raiyats for provision of water.

In those days the zamindars used to reside in their own estates; but now, as a matter of fact, most of them spend the best part of the year in Darjeeling, Simla, or Calcutta. A few, again, live in the sadar stations of the zilla for motives either of escaping from the worry of mufassal disputes or for the purpose of carrying on litigation. It must, therefore, be impossible for them to possess a correct knowledge of the miserable condition of their raiyats in the mufassal, and consequently in places where the relation between the zamindars and the raiyats is even friendly, no provision for supply of water in times of scarcity is thought of, far less made. As regards the zamindars of the old class who reside in their own estates, although strained relationship does not generally exist between them and their raiyats, still no redress may be expected from them. Unfortunately most of this class of landholders are so much reduced in circumstances on account of family disputes that they are incapable to maintain in proper order even the tanks attached to their own dwelling-houses, far less attend to the wants of the outside public.

Merchants, pleaders, mukhtears, &c., who have acquired zamindaries, are so much engrossed in the work of survey, assessments, and otherwise to find out ways and means for increasing their income, that they hardly have the time or inclination to think of their obligation to the raiyats for supply of water.

Again, those well-to-do zamindars who, from motives of securing the good opinion of the Government, or for creating a name, have to spend large sums towards special works of public utility started by, or under the auspices of the authorities, cannot afford, even if willing, to relieve the distress of the people nearer home.

In the good old days, besides the Rajas and zamindars, the merchant class also used to contribute large sums for tanks. These persons did the work from pure motives of piety; but as great changes have now taken place in religious opinions and faiths, instances of such good works as the opening of tanks by this class show a downward tendency. This may also be considered as partly due to the modern system of education, and partly to the reduced circumstances of the men; still a great many of the tanks now excavted in the mufassal are provided for by this class.

There was another method of providing water-supply. The people used to raise money among themselves for digging tanks where wanted, those unable to offer pecuniary aid volunteered their labour instead, and thus by the united efforts of the raiyats, both rich and poor, many a want in this direction was supplied. The tanks thus excavated became the common property of the people. If enquiry be made, many tanks dug in this manner are still to be found in parts of Dinajpur, Malda and Rangpur. The practice even now obtains in a few remote parts of the mufassal, but it has generally disappeared from the country, and the cause seems to be that the zamindars are not willing to give lands free of cost for such works as they did before.

I have thus far tried to trace the causes why tanks are not now dug as in the good old times, and would now proceed to state my reasons why the existing tanks are not properly maintained or re-excavated where necessary.

Most of the causes enumerated in the preceding pages, and which contribute towards the decrease in the number of new tanks, likewise apply to the maintenance and restoration of the old ones. As constant disputes among the co-sharers of a zamindari brings on ruin to the house, so neglect in the proper maintenance of tanks fosters the growth of rank weeds in them which spoil the water.

In my opinion the workmen generally employed in this country for digging tanks do not possess the necessary qualifications of trained men, they consider their work done if after excavating a few feet of earth, water is found, and it may not be out of place to say that this material fault in digging tanks renders the tanks unserviceable within a very short time.

The slopes and embankments of tanks should be so constructed as to allow no rain-water-washings into the tanks. In places where the earth is hard, the slope ought to be two or three feet to a height of one foot, but as a matter of fact in such circumstances, in most parts of our country, the slope is one foot to a height of two or three feet, and consequently the outpour of rain makes considerable injury to the tanks. After the earthwork is completed, the embankments of the tanks ought to be sodded with grass.

In digging tanks care should always be taken to examine and avoid low lands, whence rain water may fall into the tanks. Then again no provision is made in this country for the receipt into and discharge from the tanks water if necessary. The construction of pipe-drains for water passages on either side of the tanks for the purpose is almost unknown in the country.

All these causes contribute to the silting up of the tanks within a very short time.

Again it is the practice to plant fruit and other trees on the embankments of the tanks. It is true that these plants, vegetables, &c., grow well on account of the superior quality of the soil, but when these trees grow up to large sizes, the falling of the leaves into the tanks generally spoils the water.

It is also necessary that sufficient open space be left on all the sides of the tanks. Most of our countrymen even do not consider it necessary to make adequate provision for the supply of sufficient light and air so indispensable for the preservation of good water, and it is needless to say that the result is to render the tanks almost useless.

Again, before commencing the work of excavation, no preliminary examination in respect to the quality of the soil such as could yield good water is made. The old Sanskrit books abound in laying down rules and instructions on the subject of examining the soil, and the nature of the earth before commencement of tanks, and it appears that the few large tanks which are still to be seen were excavated on this principle, and after due survey and test of the soil being made. Some of these old tanks, though existing for ages, still retain good drinking water.

The non-observance of these wholesome precautions in digging tanks now-a-days accounts for the tanks becoming useless within a short time.

Tanks dug after the adoption of all precautionary measures also become useless for want of proper maintenance.

In most parts of the mufassal several tanks, the water of which is used for drinking purposes, are likewise used for bathing, for washing of clothes, and for cleaning of cooking utensils, plates, &c., no scruples are even made to wash dirty clothes of little children in them. It would scarcely be inappropriate to say that the mufassal tanks are so many depositories for the refuge and washings of the villagers; heaps of used and broken cooking earthen plates and vessels are thrown into them, and every species of abominations find their resting place in these so-called tanks. In a few instances the embankments of the tanks are used as privies by the villagers, thus fouling the tank water and rendering it a fruitful source of disease all around. Perhaps it is not impossible to trace the cause of such abuse of the tanks. In former days there lived in the mufassal certain low caste people who used to do the work of methars. In process of time the growing demand for cultivation ejected them from their habitations, and caused them to remove and settle elsewhere There was therefore nobody in the villages to do the work of removing night-soil, &c., and this circumstance may be supposed to have given birth to the abominable practice of soiling tank water in the way stated above. Many of the high caste people in the mufassal, Brahmins and others, are on this account compelled to do the dirty work, and they unavoidably keep up kuncha privies adjoining their houses, the contents of which are during the rains washed into the tanks of their own dwelling-houses, and thus render the water useless even for the use of cattle. One might form an adequate idea of the magnitude of the present scarcity of water in Bengal, when it is stated that this solid water is made use of by men.

Under such circumstances, it is important to consider the steps that ought to be adopted for the purpose of removing the complaints so as to obtain a sufficient and constant supply of good drinking water.

Whenever the question of scarcity of water is discussed, one might naturally look up to the Government, the zamindars, the educated middle class gentlemen and the raiyats inhabiting the villages for its redress. But it must be admitted that the Government, though possessing the right and the means to prosecute works of relief, cannot afford the time and leisure to attend to them, it is the same with the zamindars and the middle class, and consequently if anything is to be done to remove the present scarcity of water, the work must be done at the cost of the raiyats for whose special benefit the remedial measures are to be adopted.

It is true that the zamindars are much reduced in circumstance, but still it cannot be said that they as a body are indifferent to the present distressful condition of the people. They regularly pay the public-works cess for the benefit of the people. If a poor law be introduced in the country as in England, and the authorities accept and assume the responsibilities of providing for the poor by the imposition of a cess on the zamindars for the same, surely such a step must exempt the zamindars from their liability further to assist the poor. And if after this the zamindars are charged with neglect for assisting the poor, will the charge be fair and reasonable? In fact the zamindars, in addition to the payment of public-works cess, occasionally contribute to the construction of special works of public utility, such as water-works, &c., and considering the paying capacities of the zamindars, it is absurd to expect that they can bear the entire cost required for removing the present distress, which must be very large indeed.

The educated middle class gentlemen have very little interest in the mufassal water supply, for most of them live in towns for the pursuit of their respective avocations, and they contribute towards the water-works of the places where they reside. It is not therefore to be wondered at that they are indifferent to such works in the mufassal, where they have no interest at all I am, however, glad to observe that the question has been taken up by the newspapers, both Vernacular and English. But I cannot ignore the fact that the responsibility for removing the scarcity of water in the mufassal still rests with the mufassal people themselves. The physician prescribes, but it is the patient who helps most in bringing about cures. It therefore follows that those who actually suffer from the present scarcity of water should bear the cost of remedial measures that may be adopted, but as I cannot forget that the condition of the mufassal people is again very miserable, it will be useless to expect any material help from them, for if they had the power, the evil would have either not happened, or been long before this redressed. I should still ask them to raise small sums from among themselves for such measures as may be considered necessary, for I am not aware of any other alternative measure likely to remove their immediate wants.

About four years ago, I suggested certain remedial measures for the prevention of scarcity of water in the mufassal, and these suggestions appeared in the Silpa and Krishi Patrika a vernacular paper published in Tahirpur. I reproduce them here. These are :—

To create a fund by raising subscriptions from among the villagers according to donor's capacity, or in the ratio of the rents payable by them. This fund to be named "The fund for water-supply." When more than half of the necessary amount for digging tanks or wells has been raised, application to be made to the Magistrate of the district for aid of a like sum from the District Board or in cases of its inability, the Government might make advances on small interest

If land could be had free of cost from the local zamindars, the sum of Rs. 400 or 005 may be considered sufficient for excavating a small tank. Where the tank is a common property, the zamindars may be induced to provide for the land. Where the zamindars may not be willing to supply land free of cost, an arrangement may be entered to make over to them the receipts from the fisheries of the tank, or the land may be taken from the zamindars on rent by the collective body of the people interested, when there need be no cause of complaint on both parts.

One bigha of rice or jute-growing land may fetch a maximum rent of Rs 3 per annum. A bigha of land, if rented at Rs. 5 by the people for the purpose of excavating a tank, will not affect the interest of the zamindars nor of the raiyats, for the fisheries at the lowest estimate are sure to yield Rs. 50 per annum against an annual rent of Rs. 5.

The advantages to be derived from excavating tanks as common properties of the villages are enumerated below :—

1. Where scarcity of water is felt, the people ought to forgot their party animosities, and to help in the good work for excavating tanks. They would thus learn to appreciate the advantages of unity which is most desirable and very necessary for the sanitary improvement of the village.

2. When the work of digging tanks is done from money contributed by the well-to-do class and labour of the poor, the property becomes common, and everybody feels an interest in the same.

3. The expenditure incurred for digging a tank may not exceed Rs. 500 to Rs. 700, but the whole of this sum goes to the people's pocket, because no imported labour is employed on the work, and the money does not find its way outside the locality where it is raised and disbursed.

A tank excavated at a cost of Rs. 500 or so on a plot of ground measuring 3 bighas would yield in the course of 5 years more than a moiety of the expenditure incurred on it from the produce of fruit trees, vegetables, &c., planted in the embankments of the tank; besides, after the lapse of four years, the sale of fishes is sure to give Rs. 40 to Rs. 50 per annum.

In conclusion, I should suppose that under any circumstance whatever it has become necessary that some tangible method should be devised, which could afford permanent relief to the poor people, who year after year suffer from scarcity of water, and that efforts be made to induce them to resort to the wholesome old system of raising money from among themselves, and that the money so raised be supplemented by grants of aid of a like sum from the District Boards. The zamindars may be asked to provide for land free, or at half its value or even at a fixed rent for the purpose, and I have reason to hope that if these suggestions are approved and given effect to, the affected parts of the country will soon be supplied with good many tanks. The punchayet of the localities where wells or tanks are excavated may be entrusted with their supervision and proper maintenance in addition to its duty of collecting chaukidari cess, and it may be supposed that by this simple arrangement the practice of soiling water will not have to be complained of. Need I say that the measure will not only be approved but hailed with joy. The people will bless the humane Government for its action, and the country will be permanently freed from the calamity of scarcity of water which in my humble opinion is the chief cause of the present insanitary condition in the mufassal.

LIBERALITY OF SRIMATI BAMA SUNDARY DEBEA TOWARDS THE CONSTRUCTION OF A BRIDGE OVER THE BRAHMAPUTRA AT NASIRABAD.

No. 1830L.S.G., dated Calcutta, the 22nd July 1892.

From—H. H. RISLEY, ESQ., C.I.E., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Municipal Deparment,

To—The Commissioner of the Dacca Division.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1485J., dated the 27th June 1892, in which you report, with reference to previous correspondence, that Srimati Bama Sundary Debea, zamindar of Bháwanipur, in the district of Mymensingh, has offered to contribute Rs. 2,000 towards the cost of constructing the proposed bridge over the river Brahmaputra at Nasirabad.

2. In reply, I am directed to say that the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to authorize the District Board of Mymensingh to accept the offer, and to request that you will be so good as to convey to Srimati Bama Sundary Debea an expression of His Honour's thanks for her public spirit and liberality. This letter will be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

DISTRESS IN BENGAL.

The 25th July, 1892.—Permission having been given by the Government of India to publish in the Calcutta Gazette the monthly reports submitted by this Government to the Government of India on the subject of the distress in certain parts of Bengal, the following reports are now published for general information.

W. MAUDE,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 159T—R., dated Darjeeling, the 15th May 1892.

From—C. E. BUCKLAND, Esq., Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal, Revenue Dept.,
To—The Secretary to the Govt. of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department.

IN continuation of my letter No. 1606Agri., dated the 21st April 1892, and in compliance with the request contained in your letter No. $\frac{201}{48}$, dated the 5th May 1892, I am directed to submit, for the information of the Government of India, a report on the condition of the distressed districts in this Province for the month of April.

2. During the month of April the rainfall in North Bengal has, on an average, amounted to nearly 4½ inches, or about two inches more than usual: in North Bihár about an inch, and in South Bihár about four-tenths have fallen, in all cases nearly normal amounts. In North Bengal all the districts have received fairly abundant rain: in North Bihár it has been mainly confined to the Purnea and North Bhágalpur districts, and in South Bihár to South Bhágalpur, Monghyr, and the Sonthal Parganas. The district observations of the month give the following returns for the districts mentioned:—

	Mean of district.	Normal mean.	Variation from mean.
	Inches.	Inches.	Inches.
Rajshahi	3·03	1·41	+ 1·62
Dinajpur	3·41	1·11	+ 2·30
Jalpaiguri and Kuch Bihár	3·71	4·34	— 0·63
Purnea and North Bhágalpur	2·32	1·34	+ 0·98
Darbhanga	0·40	0·69	— 0·29
Muzaffarpur	0·49	0·65	— 0·16
Champaran	0·14	0·77	— 0·63
Saran	0·05	0·25	— 0·20
Shahabad	0·04	0·16	— 0·12
Gaya	Nil	0·25	— 0·25
Patna	0·06	0·20	— 0·14
South Bhágalpur and Monghyr	0·77	0·51	+ 0·26

The prices of the principal food-grains as they stood on the 30th April in the districts chiefly affected are exhibited in the following statement, and the price of rice, as reported at the end of March, is added for purposes of comparison:—

		Rice.		Wheat.	Indian Corn.
		As reported on 31st March.	As reported on 30th April.
		S. c.	S. c.	S. c.	S. c.
North Bengal ...	Rajshahi ...	11 10	10 14	12 0	.....
	Dinajpur ...	12 0	11 0	10 13	.....
	Jalpaiguri ...	11 8	11 0	10 0	.....
North Bihár ...	Purnea ...	11 0	12 0	16 0	.....
	Darbhanga ...	12 0	12 5	14 4	17 0
	Muzaffarpur ...	12 8	11 3	12 0	17 7
	Champaran ...	13 0	11 8 to 12 0	.....	18 0
	Saran ...	11 8	11 14	13 8	18 0
South Bihár ...	Shahabad ...	12 0	11 0	13 8	.....
	Gaya ...	12 0	10 12	13 0	.....
	Patna ...	14 0	12 8	14 0	18 0
	Bhágalpur ...	11 6	11 8	12 10	.....
	Monghyr ...	10 8	12 0	12 9	16 0
	Sonthal Parganas	12 8	12 0	11 0	13 0

There is a general tendency to rise in price, but not markedly so: the Bhágalpur price is unchanged, and in Purnea and Darbhanga rice is somewhat cheaper than in March.

PATNA DIVISION.

3. Muzaffarpur.—The general condition of the district has hardly changed since the last report: the same tracts, to the extent of 835 square miles to the north and south-west of Muzaffarpur, as shown in the accompanying map, remain affected: a fall of 1·16 inches of rain on the 22nd in the northern half of the Sitamarhi sub-division has been very beneficial to cultivation, but the greater part of the district continues to suffer from drought: cholera has appeared in a sporadic form, causing the numbers of persons on the works to diminish. The daily average number of persons employed fell from 4,659 in the week ending the 23rd April to 4,086 in the week ending the 30th April, on which date 3,844 persons were on the relief works. The Commissioner, Mr. D. R. Lyall, conjectures that the demand for labour for weeding indigo has influenced these numbers. The Collector, Mr. A. Forbes, anticipates a steady increase in the numbers requiring work during May and June, perhaps even up to 12,000, but he has no apprehension of serious famine. There is ample work available for any number of persons likely to require employment: at present it is provided on fourteen roads and one tank: on the latter 383 were engaged out of the 4,086 persons at work on the 30th ultimo. The labour is well and usefully employed. The earthwork done has cost from Re. 1 to Re. 1·6 per thousand cubic feet: the amount cut and carried by each male labourer was nearly one hundred cubic feet per diem, and the average male wage about 1½ annas per diem. Since the 1st April the expenditure on relief works has amounted approximately (pending adjustment of advanced amounts) to Rs. 12,000, while Rs. 5,500 have been advanced as agricultural loans; none of the loans were for wells, tanks, or other irrigation works. No gratuitous relief is being distributed. Prices of food-grains have risen steadily though slightly: common rice being at 11·3 seers, and wheat at 12·4 seers, the rupee. The northern part of the district is more healthy than the southern: in the former the death-rate is still normal. In Lalganj, about ten miles from Hajipur, there is distress, but the high death-rate (55 per mille) is attributed to fever, cholera, and influenza; for the whole district the death-rate is stated to be 36 per mille per annum, which cannot be considered an abnormal rate. The information regarding the movements of trade is not very complete: there has been a certain amount of redistribution of food-grains within the district, and the Commissioner alludes to imports from the North-Western Provinces. Some china (panicum mileacium) will soon be in the market.

4. Darbhanga.—The area affected comprises 1,185 square miles, situated chiefly, as the enclosed map shows, to the east and south-east of the town of Darbhanga. A tract on the Nepal Frontier, from Benipatti and its neighbourhood, due north of Darbhanga, to Marookhia, to its north-east, is more or less seriously distressed. Slight rain has fallen during the month in several parts of the district, reviving the grazing grounds, facilitating the cultivation of mung (phaseolus mungo), china, and early rice, and replenishing the water-supply. Each shower, it might be said, has an immediate effect on the numbers of persons on the relief works, as will be seen by a reference to the Commissioner's letter No. 360G., dated the 2nd May 1892, which forms an enclosure to this report. From 3,733 persons on the works on the 30th March, the numbers have risen to 17,713 on the 30th April. The latest information is that the number of persons who have had recourse to the works was 25,114 on the 7th May. The demand for employment on the part of the labouring population is said to be very real and widespread in the suffering tracts, and is likely to continue until sufficient rain renders field work generally possible for the numerous class of landless labourers. The Collector has failed to give the required statistics as to quantity of work done and wages paid; but the Commissioner has carefully examined the rates, and has decided that they are not too high, and that the minimum wage as fixed in the Lieutenant-Governor's Resolution of 16th April is too low for present prices, and should be raised to the three-quarter rate: he reports that the average all-round wage earned has been an anna a day. The average number from the 16th to the 30th was 16,924, including women and children, distributed among 86 works, of which 54 were tanks and 32 roads. The distressed area has been divided into seven circles, and circle officers are being appointed, but the arrangements have not yet been completely organized. The Collector has issued detailed instructions to these officers, to take effect from the 1st of May. The expenditure on relief works brought to account during the month has amounted to Rs. 17,403, but the total sum advanced from the treasury up to the 30th April was Rs. 31,803. The stage of gratuitous relief has not yet been reached to any extent: less than Rs. 5 were distributed to 24 persons. These appear to have belonged to the class which subsists on charity in ordinary years, and private charity ought to be able to meet their wants. No agricultural loans have been granted during the month, though 6,753 persons have applied for Rs. 2,36,397, many of them probably with the object of making money out of Government in a time of administrative pressure. Instructions have been sent that no further delay should be made in giving out any such loans which it is thought desirable to give. The Collector has been allowed to use his discretion in exceeding the limit of Rs. 2 a bigha for seed grain, which the Lieutenant-Governor considered, after enquiries on his tour in North Bhágalpur, to be generally sufficient. Prices remain fairly stationary, in consequence, presumably, of the extensive importations and the activity of private enterprise. It is reported that 95,785 maunds were imported during the month into Darbhanga and adjacent stations, as compared with 43,828 maunds in April last year. The death-rate for the district for April is stated to be about 30 per annum, but these figures have not been completely received. The season is unhealthy, and in the Madhepur and Benipatti thánas there has been a considerable rise in the mortality. Both the Collector and Commissioner remonstrate against having no Civil Surgeon, and the Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the Government of India will soon send the promised increase to the medical staff of the province, for which he has so urgently applied. The finances of the District Board are at a low ebb, and are unable to meet the requirements of the month now current. The Lieutenant-Governor has sanctioned an advance of Rs. 30,000 to the funds of the District Board, subject to future adjustment, on the principle that District Boards should in years of drought and scarcity devote every possible rupee towards relief, abandoning for the time all works not of paramount necessity.

5. With regard to the Maharaja of Darbhanga, the Lieutenant-Governor thought it right to express a hope that he was doing all that is necessary to relieve distress in his villages. The Commissioner reports that he has seen the new Manager, Mr. H. Bell, who will co-operate with the Collector as far as possible. The Maharaja, it is said, has large stores of grain, but he does not think that the time has arrived to open them; he considers that help will be more required in the next two months: he will soon begin to give relief to his villagers.

6. Gaya.—The size of the affected area has not been stated, but the map shows it to be a tract of irregular shape on either side of the Grand Trunk Road, which runs through the south of the district from Barun on the Sone to Barhi in Hazáribágh. Two test works were opened in the Aurangabad subdivision and at Sherghati on the 21st and 26th April, but they failed to attract labourers, only 25 persons attending. The conditions of the employment offered were in one case too severe, the rate being not quite an anna per hundred cubic feet In the other case, two annas were offered, and in both the result was the same. The Commissioner has ordered another test work to be opened under the rules laid down in the Lieutenant-Governor's Resolution of 16th April. In this district there is an excellent system of catching the surface rain water and leading it by channels into shallow reservoirs held up by earthen embankments; under this system a large amount of earthwork is provided by the zamindars. There is, therefore, not the same dearth of employment in this district as elsewhere for those accustomed to labour. Distress is being felt among the classes not habituated to toil: the number of beggars has increased, and a tendency has been noticed among the poorer classes to abandon their helpless relatives and dependants. The only crops on the ground are sugarcane and china, from which no great addition to the food-supply can be expected. Prices have not risen to any material extent; no mention is made of movements of the trade in food-grains. The general health of the people has not hitherto suffered from the conditions of the season. Exclusive of cholera and small-pox, the death-rate in March and April has been 2·3 and 1·9 per mille, which are normal rates. Only Rs. 3,000 have been advanced on loans; the whole sum was for irrigation works.

7. There is happily little to be reported on the subject of famine and scarcity in respect of the other districts of the Division. No relief works have been opened, and none will be required if the season proves normal. In Patna no distress has appeared, but the prices of all food-grains have risen throughout the district. Shahabad also has hitherto enjoyed immunity from suffering, and the situation remains unchanged. While wheat is being exported to Calcutta, rice is being imported from Eastern Bengal and millets are coming from the North-Western Provinces. Small-pox and cholera are very prevalent. Champaran has benefited from the rain which fell on the 20th and 22nd, but more is wanted. No demand for work has manifested itself: exportation has caused a rise in the prices of food-grains. There is no change calling for special mention in Saran: the considerable importation of grain from the North-Western Provinces is the most remarkable fact reported, the quantities being sufficiently large to interfere with the passenger traffic on the railway. The public health is good.

The Commissioner reports that the rise in prices in most parts of the Division has brought them perilously near to famine rates; still the people generally, even in the worst parts, are in good condition, and there is no outward sign of distress. It is evident that private enterprise is equal to the occasion in importing food-grains where required, so that there has been no great fluctuations, and no panic anywhere Mr. Lyall repeats the opinion quoted in paragraph 2 of my letter No. 1606Agri., dated 21st April 1892, that no actual harm will be done if the rain holds off for another fortnight; the beneficial effect of the rain which has falllen has been marked in facilitating cultivation and reducing the expenditure on relief works, so that further showers are anxiously awaited.

Bhágalpur Division.

8. Monghyr.—The area affected extends over 1,066 square miles, with an estimated population of 216,000 persons. The Bakhtiarpur circle is the only one in this district: the areas less seriously affected are indicated in the map as lying to the south of the district and between Lakhisarai and Jamálpur: they do not, however, require any relief. The only work open was that on the Mansi road. The number of persons daily employed thereon was on an average 60, including the dependents of the labourers. Three tanks are about to be deepened as relief works near Chapraon. The returns show that the cost of earthwork has been Re. 1-6-0 per thousand cubic feet, the quantity done by each male labourer per diem only 40 cubic feet, and the wage per male not quite an anna a day. The officials in charge have hardly been as successful here as elsewhere in getting good work out of the labourers. Several private relief works are open, which are said to employ about 2,000 people daily: they consist chiefly of embankments and tanks—the Maharaja of Gidhor; Chaudhri Mahbub Ali of Bakhtiarpur; Mr. Christian of Chapraon; Babu Tarini Prasad of Bhágalpur, and Babu Komaleshwari Prasad of Monghyr, are mentioned as the principal actors in this praiseworthy movement. Gratuitous relief is being distributed to 237 persons, and 430 names are on the roll, but all of them do not appear regularly. Agricultural loans for the purchase of seed and cattle have been given to 141 persons to the extent of Rs. 2,335: none have been granted for irrigation works. Since the 1st April only Rs. 98 have been spent, according to the accounts, on relief works, and Rs. 161 on gratuitous relief. The export trade is active on the railway, chiefly in pulses, but it is not clear whether the figures indicate the trade of the affected area. The mango crop has not been a good one, but the other crops on the ground are promising, and prices remain unaltered. The death-rate per thousand has been 3·55 and 2·76 in March and April respectively: the former figure approaches an abnormal ratio.

9. The Maharaja of Gidhour has informed Government that he has set apart Rs. 25,000 for expenditure on works of different kinds, chiefly irrigation reservoirs, to afford relief to those of his tenants who may require it. The total number of labourers employed on these works during the month of April is stated to have been 38,399, and the total amount expended Rs. 3,947-15. The total number of labourers apparently means the numbers on the works each day added together, and not 38,399 different individuals. The Maharaja has intimated to Government that he is prepared to spend more money towards the relief of his tenantry if necessity arise.

10. Bhágalpur.—The area affected is 485 square miles with a population of about 283,000. The Collector, Mr. Wace, has not yet made any addition to this area, but he has received information of the existence of distress outside it. It will perhaps be necessary to extend relief operations to this portion. The reports received from the Subdivisional Officers of Supaul and Madhipura show that the condition of the people and the prospects of the crops in their respective subdivisions have improved. There has been a rainfall of ·71 of an inch in Madhipura and ·35 in Supaul. These falls have brought on the lowland late rice and mung previously sown in North Bhágalpur, and enabled the raiyats to extend the area sown broadcast. Sowings of bhadoi rice have also been pushed on in the Bangaon thána. In Supaul the arhar has yielded a ten anna outturn, and sugarcane is reported to be doing well. Public health continues good. The Collector reports the average death-rate for the last five years to have been 2·1 in March, 2·7 in April: this year, for the whole district it has been 3·1 in March, 2·8 in April: in the distressed tracts it has been 2·1 in March and 1·9 in April. There is very much less cholera prevalent than last year. A case of death apparently from starvation has been reported from Bangaon in the jurisdiction of the Supaul subdivision. The man seems to have come from near a relief centre, and to have passed some relief works in arriving at Bangaon. This case is under enquiry. The cattle are healthy and fodder has improved. During the first half of April the average number of persons on relief works was 5,900, and during the second half of the month the number was 8,000. The number, however, fell off for a few days when the rain facilitated agricutural work. There were 8,974 on the last day of April. The latest figures received are 9,551. In the Madhipura subdivision four of the twelve tanks on which works were being carried on were closed, as either deserted when the rain fell or not wanted. Of the 28 relief works open, 26 were tanks. The cost of the earthwork was Re. 1-12 per thousand cubic feet. The work done by the labourers was 39·5 cubic feet per male unit per diem, and the wages earned were one anna and one pie a day. These figures correspond pretty closely to those of Monghyr. The Maharaja of Sonbursa has had an average of 450 persons on tank work in the Madhipura subdivision, earning from 7 to 5 pice a day. In Supaul private agency is active. Fifteen tanks are in progress, two at the expense of the Darbhanga Raj: 1,550 persons have found work on seven of these tanks. It has been reported by the Sub-manager of the Darbhanga Raj that other relief works which the Maharaja contemplates are estimated to cost over Rs. 16,000. The centres for the distribution of gratuitous relief have all been fixed and officers appointed. The persons gratuitously relieved during the last week of April were 2,005 persons, namely, in Madhipura 220, and 1,785 in Supaul. The Collector apprehends that there has been some laxity of administration by his subordinates, and has proceeded to initiate improved supervision. On the 7th May the number was 1,714. Some progress was made in the distribution of agricultural loans in Supaul by the advance of Rs. 5,988 to 608 persons on the system of joint and several responsibility. In Madhipura only Rs. 100 were paid on this account.

11. Purnea.—The area affected in this district is 644 square miles, with a population of 261,000. There was a heavy fall of rain over the south of the affected tract on the night of the 11th April. This was followed by another fall on the evening of the 15th, and by heavy rain on the morning of the 18th. The rain has enabled ploughing and sowing to be vigorously carried on; indigo has received a great stimulus, and the only part where cultivation is still backward is the northern part of thána Amour. The part which still suffers from want of rain is shaded blue in the accompanying map. Prices are reported to be easier, as shown by the figures given in paragraph 2. About 3,000 maunds of paddy and rice have been imported from Nepal into the district, mostly in the Kishanganj subdivision. The numbers of persons on relief works diminished to a great extent during the period under report. On the 15th April there were 2,051 persons employed. On the 25th the number of persons on the works was 1,134: on the 7th May they had fallen to 795. Owing to the improved prospect resulting from the recent rains, two roads have already been closed; a third was to be closed at the end of April. After that date six roads only will remain open, and it is expected that others may soon be stopped. As long as any labourers remain, or till the beginning of the rains, the Collector, Mr. Vowell, proposes to keep one or two works open in the northern part of the Amour thána. The cost of earthwork has been higher here than in any other district, viz., Rs. 2-3-7 per thousand cubic feet. The amount done by each male labourer is only 51 cubic feet per diem, and the wages earned one anna and three-quarters per diem. During the month a large number of people were gratuitously relieved, although the numbers on the registers were constantly diminished by striking off the names of those who had become fit to work, or who for any other reason no longer required relief. The maximum of 1,249 persons was attained in the week ending the 8th April. On the 30th the number was 1,045, and on the 7th May 816. The cost of gratuitous relief from the beginning has amounted to Rs. 2,989-0-1, of which Rs. 2,000 have already been covered by local subscriptions. The death-rate continued high until the end of March, both in the affected thánas and in all parts of the Sadar subdivision. In Kadwa the death-rate for the first quarter of 1892 was 52 per mille per annum, but decreased in the month of March. In Amour the rate was 58 per mille per annum for the first quarter, and 69 per mille per annum for March 1892. Up to date Rs. 14,309 have been advanced in loans; of this sum Rs. 842 were issued in April: the loans for wells, tanks, and other irrigation works amount to Rs. 490.

12. The other districts of this division require little notice, and unless something unforeseen occurs Malda will not be mentioned again. Its condition is reported to be quite satisfactory. The rain that fell in the middle and end of the month has been very beneficial, and the sowing of bhadoi rice is in full progress. In the Sonthal Parganas the prospects of the crops are not very good and rain is badly wanted, but the Deputy Commissioner reports that there is no sign of actual distress.

Rajshahi Division.

13. Dinajpur.—As stated in previous reports, this is the only district in the Rajshahi Division in which there has been anything like distress. The part marked blue in the enclosed map shows the affected area, north of the railway and in the direction of Thakurgaon, extending over 1,030 square miles, with an estimated population of 447,000 persons. Since the last report the weather has been favourable, rain having fallen plentifully since the 1st April, and the prospects have much improved: they are, indeed, said to be as far as possible assured. Jute and bhadoi are coming up, and land is being prepared in places for the sowing of the winter rice. The total number of persons employed on relief works during the week ending the 30th April was 1,986 against 1,977 during the preceding week, while the number employed on the last day of the month was 1,594 against 1,140 on the last day of the previous month. Relief work is provided on roads only. There was no gratuitous relief distributed. The cost of earthwork was Rs. 1-12 per 1,000 cubic feet: the quantity of work done was 115 cubic feet per head per diem, and the wage earned was 3¼ annas per diem. High as this wage is, it is said to be only three-fourths of the wage customary in the Dinajpur and Rangpur districts. In ordinary years the residents of these districts refuse to do earthwork, so that the fact of their now accepting employment at a reduced rate is some indication that the assistance given is wanted. During the month Rs. 7,830 were spent on relief works, according to the accounts rendered, and advances to the extent of Rs. 2,928 were made under the Agricultural Loans Act; none of these advances were for wells, tanks, or other irrigation works. The number of deaths during March was 7,427 against 6,777 in the corresponding period of the previous year or 4·68 per cent. This is rather a high ratio, but it is said to have fallen in April to 3·31. The mortality is attributed, not to famine, but to influenza and fever. During his recent visit to this district the Lieutenant-Governor found nothing to call for his special attention in respect of famine relief; and he had only to give some orders to ensure the observance of system and economy.

14. For the remaining districts a few brief remarks will suffice. There is no cause for anxiety so far as Jalpaiguri is concerned. The price of rice has fallen throughout the district, and the people are busily engaged in cultivation. The bhadoi crops are nearly all sown, and a bumper crop is expected. A test-work was opened at Debiganj in the south of the district, and although at first 204 labourers came to the work, it had to be closed, as it was deserted as soon as the rates were fixed in accordance with the Famine Code. This affords evidence that relief is not needed. In Rangpur the prospects of the crops have been much improved by the recent rain, and a larger area than usual has been laid out with aus paddy and jute, which are doing well. It will be unnecessary to mention this district in future. The condition of the crops in Bogra also is good, and agricultural operations are in full activity everywhere. The test-works in this district were closed on the 9th April, and there has been no demand since for relief in this form. No further reports will be furnished for this district. The prospects in Rajshahi, Pabna, and Darjeeling are favourable, and there has never been any apprehension of scarcity, although in the Rajshahi district applications were frequently made for gratuitous relief. The Collector, Mr. Price, has been instructed to open a subscription for the relief of casual distress, and if he fails to raise funds from private charity, the Lieutenant-Governor will make a grant of money for the relief of distress should this be necessary.

Although the rainfall and temperature since the 1st April have been favourable to the crops, the tendency of prices is nevertheless to rise rather than to fall. The Commissioner, Mr. Nolan, attributes this fact to the failure of the rainfall in Bihár and in other parts of Bengal. He remarks that "the principal marts are all connected with the railway or river system of the country, and the wholesale price of rice at Calcutta ultimately governs the rates. As this rose very much during the fortnight (from Rs. 3-4 to Rs. 3-9-2 a maund) there could be no fall in the supplying districts." The Lieutenant-Governor agrees with the Commissioner.

15. The reports of the Commissioners of the three Divisions in which famine relief is being administered for the last half of April have been summarised in the above paragraphs, but a copy of each of them is submitted for reference if required. A copy of each of the scarcity maps of the districts of Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Gaya, Patna, Monghyr, Bhágalpur, Purnea, and Dinajpur is enclosed for the information of the Government of India. The shading in dark and light blue is in conformity with the instructions conveyed in paragraph 19 of the Resolution No. 1529, dated 16th April 1892, of this Government.

DARJEELING,
May 15th, 1892.

C. E. BUCKLAND,
Secretary.

No. 346T.—R., dated Darjeeling, the 15th June 1892.

From—C. E. BUCKLAND, ESQ., Secretary to the Government of Bengal,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Dept.

IN continuation of my letter No. 159T.—R., dated the 15th May 1892, I am directed to submit, for the information of the Government of India, a report on the condition of the distressed districts in Lower Bengal for the month of May 1892. The instructions contained in your letter, No. 1209—21, dated the 2nd June 1892, have been attended to in the subsequent paragraphs.

2. The prospects of the country have been generally improved by rainfall during the month, and employment in the fields has been more widely available; on the other hand, while the stocks of food have necessarily become reduced in some places, the improvement in the prospects may have induced merchants to open their stores elsewhere. Sufficient relief works have been provided where required, and the attention of the Government has been devoted to seeing that the orders issued, from time to time, were duly carried out in all essential details. The returns of the rainfall for the whole of the month are not yet ready, but the statement below, for the period from the 16th to 31st May, shows that in most cases less rain than usual fell during this important fortnight:—

The prices of the principal food-grains as they stood on the 31st May in the districts named are contained in the following statement, and show some minor fluctuations. In six districts the price of rice is lower than at the end of April, in one it is unchanged, and in seven it is higher; but the average of the whole is almost precisely the same:—

Patna Division.

3. Muzaffarpur.—No private individuals have assisted Government by opening any relief works in this district, but several planters have aided both in supervising relief works and also in the distribution of loans, and have undertaken to collect the principal and interest as they fall due. No poor-house has been required, nor has it been necessary yet to grant gratuitous relief in any shape whatever. The number of relief works open in this district during the last week of the month was 33, of which 24 were roads, 8 tanks and the quarrying of kunkur. The average number of labourers (i.e., adult male units) employed on these works during the same week was 11,121. The average cost of work per 1,000 cubic feet was Re. 1-4-11, and the quantity of work done per diem per male unit was 91 cubic feet, the average wage earned per diem per male unit being 1 anna $10\frac{9}{10}$ pies. The wage distributed has been too large, the Collector not having understood the instruction laid down in the Lieutenant-Governor's Famine Resolution of 16th April, that no labourer was to be allowed to work overtime or to receive a wage in excess of six pice per diem. The following statement shows the total imports into the district:—

	Mds.
Rice	2,509
Paddy	481
Wheat and barley	231
Indian Corn	1,312
Other food-grains	7,963

On the other hand, the exports were 1,684 maunds of oats and 2,281 maunds of oilseeds to Howrah, 224 maunds of other grains were exported from this district to Bettiah. The Officiating Collector (Mr. J. H. Bernard), on his recent tour to the east of the head-quarters of the district, did not see a single person who looked emaciated. Even the old men appeared well-fed, and none of the relief workers were found to be suffering from want of food. Rain fell during May in all the subdivisions of this district, the highest amount being in Sitamarhi, where it is said to have been over 3 inches; in the first half of June there have been some days of heavy rain. Agricultural operations have begun, considerably lessening the number of the cultivators on relief works. The condition of the people in the Sadar subdivision has not undergone any change, but the outlook is generally more hopeful, except towards the west, where, on the representations of the resident planters, it is proposed to open two more relief works in addition to those already in progress. The prospects and condition of the people in part of the Sitamarhi subdivision also are better: the southern part, however, has not improved. The numbers on relief works on the 28th May had fallen to 10,459, but the information of the 4th June showed 14,432 on the works. Prices on the whole are nearly stationary, but show a tendency to fall. Such information, as is available regarding food-stocks, tends to show that most of the cultivators have a store of seed for sowing, and that those who have no such reserve can borrow from their mahajans. There has been no death from starvation. About Rs. 12,000 have been advanced since the 1st of April, under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, and the total expenditure on relief works since that date, brought to account, has been Rs. 39,216 up to the 28th May. The death-rate for the month comprised in the first half of April and first half of May has been 52·5 per mille per annum, an abnormal ratio; but the details furnished by the Collector show that the death-rate is not attributed to the scarcity; the dryness of the season is ascribed as the cause of the cholera and fever prevalent to an unusual degree.

The weekly telegrams to the Government of India have shown the following numbers in receipt of relief:—

	Relief works.
3rd May	3,844
10th „	5,214
17th „	7,103
24th „	11,423
31st „	10,459
7th June	14,432

The half-monthly reports received by Government have furnished the following statistics regarding the relief works:—

Week of the month of May.	Average number of adult male relief workers, A and B.	Rate per 1,000 cubic feet.	Quantity of work per male unit.	Wage per male unit.	C. labourers and dependants (adult males).		Amount disbursed.
					Number.	Wage per male unit.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
		Rs. A. P.	Cubic feet.	Rs. A. P.		Rs. A. P.	Rs.
First	4,102	1 3 2	91	0 1 10	.....	.....	3,097
Second	5,706	1 4 10	99	0 2 2	10	0 0 10½	5,135
Third	9,461	1 4 7	97	0 1 9½	33	0 0 11	7,400
Fourth	11,121	1 4 11	91	0 1 10$\frac{5}{8}$	56	0 0 11	9,278

In this table and in the similar tables for other districts, the numbers of A, B and C labourers have been brought down to the common unit of an adult male by reckoning a woman, big child, and small child, at three-fourths, half, and one-fourth, of an adult male respectively. For gratuitous relief, a child is reckoned as half an adult, male or female.

4. Darbhanga.—The Maharaja of Darbhanga has opened four tanks in the Raj circle of Rahika, in which Benipati is situated, and he has instructed his sub-manager to attend to individual cases of distress. He has also promised Rs 500 a month for gratuitous relief, and has sent out four doctors to the affected tracts for the treatment of the sick. No distress or demand for labour has manifested itself in the villages belonging to the Narhan Estate. There has been no necessity for any village relief or for the establishment of a poor-house. The relief works in progress consist of 65 tanks and 90 roads. The Collector (Mr. G. Dalton) states that the highest number of workers, namely, 39,475, was attained on May 21st, but subsequently fell to 33,648 in consequence of good rain. He has not furnished the returns prescribed by this Government in a correct manner, but the following table is probably not far from the truth for the first fortnight, and fairly accurate for the second :—

Fortnight in May.	Average numbers of adult male relief workers, A and B.	Rate per 1,000 cubic feet.	Quantity of work per male unit.	Wage per male unit.	C. labourers and dependants (adult males).		Amount disbursed.	Gratuitous relief.		Average per head.

These rates of wage and earthwork are high, and the maximum prescribed by the Government Resolution, namely, six pice a day, has been exceeded. The Lieutenant-Governor is calling the serious attention of the Collector to this disregard of Government orders and of the forms prescribed. No particular change is recorded in the general condition of the people, but cholera is unusually prevalent in some places, and the year is otherwise an exceptionally unhealthy one. The death-rate for the month gives a mortality of 4·2 per mille, which is said to be double the average usually registered in the district; but the Collector reports that he has not been able to ascertain that any single death reported has been attributable to want of food, though doubtless the rate of mortality may be affected by severe sickness attacking constitutions already weakened by want of sufficient food. It is remarkable that the death-rate is highest where the scarcity is the least serious. During the last two weeks of the period under report the imports into the district diminished in amount, which may mean either that the demand is smaller than it was, or that the prospects of an early monsoon have diminished the hopes of the speculators in grain and inclined merchants to open their reserves. The Collector apprehends no danger of the land remaining uncultivated for lack of seed, as the raiyats can generally borrow seedlings on the security of their crops. The rainfall in this district, as in others, has been sufficient to allow of the resumption of agricultural operations. The rate of wages has not been altered since it was fixed by the Government Resolution of 16th April 1892. The figures reported to the Government of India by telegraph have been as follows:—

	Relief works.	Gratuitous relief.
3rd May	17,713	323
10th „	25,114	99
17th „	25,551	417

5. Gaya.—No works have been started and no relief has been found necessary in any portion of the district. The Collector (Mr. D. J. Macpherson) issued instructions for the opening of test relief works, but only seven men, two women, and four children attended—all Chamars—and refused the work on the terms offered. It is reported that there is no unusual dearth of employment, considering the season of the year, and that the people do not look famished or emaciated, but still a good deal of distress is felt in some parts of the district by petty cultivators not accustomed to severe manual labour, and is likely to be felt until the rain crops are harvested. So far private charity is meeting all the necessities of the situation, and the Mahant at Bodh Gaya is said to give alms to all applicants. The price of food-grains has gone down a little at district head-quarters, but generally risen slightly elsewhere. The death-rate in the district was 2·8 in April as compared with the normal registered rate of 1·8 per mille per annum. The increase is almost entirely due to cholera and small-pox. The sum of Rs. 4,200 has been advanced as loans, chiefly for improving irrigation facilities.

6. Champaran.—The Collector (Mr. W. D. Blyth) reported that he had ordered works to be started if necessary, where the rainfall has been insufficient, and the latest information contained in this Government's telegram of 7th June shows 605 persons on relief works, but it is hoped that the rain, which has since fallen somewhat heavily over the whole of the district, will obviate the necessity for recourse to any extensive relief measures. The people are now busily employed in preparing their lands and in sowing. The standing food crops have been much benefited, and indigo is doing well. No applications have been made for advances under the Loans Act for the purchase of grain. Cholera is said to prevail in an epidemic form throughout the district.

Bhágalpur Division.

7. Monghyr.—Private relief has been afforded by the Maharaja of Gidhour and other zamindars on various kinds of earthworks, employment being given, it is reported, to about 2,500 persons a day. Chaudhri Mahbub Ali, of Bakhtiarpur, is said to have given gratuitous relief to 1,540 persons in money and in grain. No poor-house has been required. The relief works open were a road and two tanks, the latter of which were started towards the close of the month, and were not in full working order. There has been some difficulty, which has not been thoroughly explained, about inducing people to come to relief works in this district, or when there to execute a proper task. Several works have been opened and afterwards closed again for want of applicants, and yet the reports indicated a rather severe distress in the Bakhtiarpur tract. At last the works opened in the end of May appear to have attracted a considerable number of people.

No change is recorded in the physical condition of the people. The public health is good. Two deaths from starvation were alleged by a newspaper correspondent to have occurred, but local enquiry has shown that one was an old widow of over 60, who had long been suffering from chronic illness, had been in regular receipt of gratuitous relief, and had gone to Chapraon to receive her dole. The other case was of a woman who was passing through on her way from Patna to Purnea. She stayed two or three days at Chapraon on her way, and was there fed by some relief-workers, but she made no application for relief. Gram, barley, and peas are taking the place of janera (holcus sorghum) and kurthi (dolichos biflorus) in the market. Importations may be taking place into the affected tract, but in the absence of a railway no statistics are available. The affected area has benefited from the showers that have fallen, but more rain is required for sowing on the high lands: the distress has become somewhat more severe: on the last day of the month 1,082 persons were on the relief works: no changes have been made in the rates of wages. During the half month Rs. 7,279 were advanced as loans for the purchase of seed-grain.

The Collector failed during the first fortnight to submit the prescribed report; consequently the figures in the following table are not complete:—

	Average numbers of adult male relief workers A and B	Rate per 1,000 cubic feet.	Quantity of work per male unit.	Wage per male unit.	C labourers and dependants (adult males.)		Amount disbursed	Gratuitous relief.

These figures, as already observed, do not represent good work or good organisation, and are under enquiry.

The figures in the weekly telegrams to the Government of India have been as follows:—

8. Bhágalpur.—Private relief has been afforded to a considerable extent in this district. The Maharaja of Darbhanga has had three tanks excavated, employing about 1,500 men. The Maharaja of Sonbursa has employed about 150 people, keeping nearly to Government rates of wages. A great many tanks have been excavated by private individuals, one gentlemen having spent as much as Rs. 3,000 on this object. As the Collector (Mr. H. R. H. Coxe) observes, such works are a boon to the labouring classes, but in the absence of any maximum wage they afford no test of distress. One zamindar has given Rs. 700 in aid of gratuitous relief, and another has given doles to about 100 persons. The distress has not been sufficiently severe to necessitate the establishment of poor-house relief. The Government relief works have consisted of roads, tanks, and one embankment. The public health is said to be entirely unaffected by the scarcity, and the people in distress have not taken to wandering about. The labourers on the works are almost entirely residents in the neighbouring villages, and there is no reason to believe that there was any real immigration of Monghyr coolies to the works in the Bhágalpur district. Enquiry has been made into the case of alleged starvation referred to in column 16 of statement A enclosed in my letter No. 159T.R., dated 15th May 1892. Nothing could be ascertained about the home of the deceased, or as to the condition of his relations, which would test the assertion that he died of hunger. The enquiry is inconclusive. The deceased was labouring from some disease, but was for some time under the special treatment of Mr. Christian, an indigo-planter of Bangaon, who has given great assistance in relief operations. There is no more reason to connect the death with the scarcity than with the disease or the treatment adopted in the case. The Collector considered that there is sufficient grain in the country to carry the people through until the next harvest. The fact that the increased demand for seed has not affected the price of grain tends to show that the stock is not insufficient. There is hardly any importation of grain into the affected tract: it appears to be limited to a few cart-loads. The rainfall in the north of the district will probably admit of the area on the Nepal frontier, hitherto reckoned as distressed, being regarded as free from further danger. Unfortunately the rain has been lighter in the most distressed part, Bangaon, than elsewhere. There is an increased demand for agricultural labour, and the necessity for relief works has diminished accordingly, though it is expected that gratuitous relief may be required until August. The latest information, which has been reported by telegraph, showed 10,405 persons on the relief works and 1,497 in receipt of gratuitous relief. No change has been made in the rates of wages, but the rate of earnings varies as the tanks are excavated to a greater depth. The labourers are said to form themselves into gangs for piece-work, whereby the exertions of the stronger supplement the defects of their weaker relations. To this practice no objection can be offered; on the contrary, it deserves encouragement: it is the great aim of good organisation to arrange for the strong and the weak to work together. The work done by each male unit, as shown in the table below, is extremely small, and this is probably due to the depth which the tank excavation has reached. The funds of the District Board are nearly exhausted, so that it has become necessary for Government to make advances subject to future adjustment.

The weekly telegrams to the Government of India have shown the following numbers in receipt of relief:—

9. Purnea.—No private relief has been given in this district, nor has it been requisite to establish a poor-house. The four roads on which work was provided were closed by the end of May as relief works. There has been no outbreak of any epidemic; the death-rate (for April) was somewhat high, but not abnormally so, and is attributed to the unhealthiness of the season: there have been no deaths from starvation. No mention is made of any failure of the food-stocks: nearly 4,000 maunds of grain were imported from Nepal during the month. The rainfall has been ample to restore the prospects of the district: all the crops are reported to be thriving, especially sugarcane: weeding affords plenty of occupation. There has been no change in the rate of wages. About Rs. 1,830 were advanced under the Loans Act during the last fortnight of the month, and in the present condition of the crops no further loans will be necessary. The list of recipients of gratuitous relief has been checked, and the number reduced to 245 persons. The statistics of the relief works are satisfactory, as follows:—

	Average number of adult male relief workers, A and B.	Rate per 1,000 cubic feet.	Quantity of work per male unit.	Wage per male unit.	C. labourers and dependants (adult males.)		Amount disbursed	Gratuitous relief.

but the list of recipients of gratuitous relief has again been checked, and the registered numbers are said by the Collector (Mr. C. H. Vowell) to have come down to 245.

Rajshahi Division.

10. Dinajpur.—No gratuitous relief has been given in this district, nor has it been necessary to establish a poor-house. The largest number of persons employed on piece-work was 2,487 on the 8th May, but it had fallen on the last day of the month to 384. The relief works open were ten roads and two tanks. The following table shows the figures for relief in the same form as has been used for other districts; but the calculations are more complicated here, because it was the custom to measure up and pay for work at comparatively long intervals, instead of daily or every other day, so that the payments made in the week did not represent the work done in the week. This practice would have been more pernicious if the numbers had been larger, and relief works are practically closed now in Dinajpur:—

	Average number of adult male relief workers, A and B.	Rate per 1,000 cubic feet.	Quantity of work per male unit.	Wage per male unit.	C. labourers and dependants (adult males.)		Amount disbursed.
					Number.	Wage per male unit.

These figures show a probable laxity in measurement and a wage much above that sanctioned by Government. Fortunately the people were too well off to be attracted even by this high rate of wage: if they had flocked on to the works in large numbers, more active measures would have been necessary to insist on obedience to orders. There has been no outbreak of epidemic disease; the death-rate (for April), which was not abnormally high, is attributed to climatic conditions, not to famine. There has been no failure of the food-stocks, and the prospects of the crops generally are reported to be good. There is no longer cause for anxiety. Applications for takavi advances have almost ceased: it is probable that the district will very soon resume its normal aspect, and that there will be no further need for relief works. The jotedars and other private persons are now affording employment to labourers on a daily wage of from 5 to 6 pice, with two meals. During the month of May Rs. 5,829 were advanced under the Agriculturists' Loans Act.

11. The reports of the Commissioners of the Patna, Bhágalpur, and Rajshahi Divisions have been summarized in this letter, as requested in paragraph 4 of your letter No. 941-21, dated the 11th May 1892, with respect to the affected districts of those divisions. A copy of each of these reports, with their enclosures, is submitted for reference. I am also, in compliance with Rule VII of the instructions conveyed by the Circular of the Government of India, No. 5—48, dated the 2nd March 1892, to enclose a copy of each of the scarcity maps of Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Monghyr, Bhágalpur, Purnea, and Dinajpur in which relief works have been open during the month of May.

DARJEELING,
The 15*th June* 1892.

C. E. BUCKLAND,
Secretary.

No. 2682Agri., dated Calcutta, the 15th July 1892.

From—W. MAUDE., Esq., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Revenue Dept.,
To—The Secretary to the Govt. of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department.

IN continuation of this Government's letter No. 346T—R, dated the 15th June 1892, I am directed to submit a report on the distressed areas of Bengal for the month of June 1892. In accordance with the instructions contained in the letter from the Government of India, in the Revenue and Agricultural Department, No. $\frac{1260}{21}$, dated the 2nd June 1892, the present report contains only a brief abstract of the main features of the position of affairs in the affected parts of the Province, and does not, as was the case in former reports, summarise the Commissioners' reports district by district.

2. General conditions and prospects of the affected areas.—The general condition of the affected areas has improved very materially owing to heavy rain both at the commencement and towards the close of the month under report.

The rainfall at the head-quarters of the affected districts in June is given below, compared with the normal rainfall for the month:—

Muzaffarpur.		Darbhanga		Monghyr.		Bhagalpur.		Purnea.		Dinajpur.
1892.	Normal.	1892.	Normal	1892.	Normal	1892.	Normal.	1892.	Normal.	1892.	Normal.
Inches. 8 39	Inches. 7·53	Inches. 7 80	Inches. 7 92	Inches. 5·32	Inches. 6·55	Inches. 5 20	Inches. 7·71	Inches. 8·36	Inches. 11 40	Inches. 13·22	Inches. 16·50

The middle of the month was marked by a slight break which caused some alarm, and would, if it had continued, have done great injury to the young bhadoi crops such as early rice, marwa (Eleusine corocana) and millets. As it is, these crops are well reported on except in the Jalpaiguri district, where it is feared they have suffered severely from excess of rain during the latter part of the month. In the other districts of the affected areas a 16-anna crop is expected. Agricultural operations have been going on briskly since the rain came, and employment in the fields has thus been given to labourers. The tract along the Nepaul frontier, in the Bhagalpur district, was struck out of the list of affected areas early in the month. The test works opened in Gaya and Champaran were also closed early in the month. Later on, after the rain in the latter part of the month, the Collector of Dinajpur ordered all the works in his district to be closed, on the assumption that few labourers would remain on them.

3. Prices.—Prices remained generally stationary during the month, but showed no tendency to fall, while there was a considerable local rise in the last part of the month in Dinajpur, owing, it is supposed, to the alarm caused by the temporary break in the rains.

4. Relief works.—Relief works were open throughout the month in the districts of Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Monghyr, Bhágalpur, and Dinajpur. As already reported to the Government of India in paragraph 9 of this Government's letter of the 15th June 1892, the relief works in the Purnea district were closed at the end of the month of May. It is expected that it will be possible to close the relief works in Muzaffarpur by the 15th of the month, and in other districts also before its close. The numbers of attendance on the relief works showed a general tendency to decrease at the close of the month, although in Bhágalpur and Dinajpur there was a slight increase during the last week. The figures for the first week in July since telegraphed to the Government of India show a very decided decrease: the total number on relief works throughout the Province on the 2nd July having been only 21,419 and on the 9th July 14,005. The numbers for the month under report are given in the Statement A annexed. The relief works consisted, as before, of road-making and tank excavation, but the latter kind of work has been interfered with by rain towards the end of the month, necessitating in some cases the closing of tanks and the opening of new roads as relief works in their stead.

5. Rates of wages.—A statement, which is appended, shows, in the same form as was used last month, the number of relief labourers reduced to terms of adult males, the average work done and wage earned by each, the cost of the work, the number of recipients of gratuitous relief in terms of adults, the average receipt of each and the total cost of the relief of distress during the month. The standard laid down is that each adult male should excavate and carry about 60 cubic feet of earth, and earn a maximum wage of 1½ annas. The cost of the earthwork, like the amount executed, must vary considerably with the lift and lead. C labourers who cannot be put to task work should earn about one anna per adult male, and gratuitous relief should cost about half an anna per adult. The variations from this standard noticeable in the statement are due to local causes, and proper notice has been taken of them.

6. Private relief and poor-house relief.—Private relief has been given to a considerable extent in the Darbhanga, Bhágalpur, and Monghyr districts, where the leading zamindars have done much to protect their own raiyats and to assist the general mass of sufferers by opening works on their estates. There has been no necessity to establish a poor-house in any of the affected tracts.

7. Food stocks and importation of grains.—The stock of food-grains is generally reported to be sufficient, and there is now no fear of scarcity of fodder or water. Nothing of importance has been reported with regard to the importation or exportation of grain in the affected parts.

8. Gratuitous relief.—Gratuitous relief has been continued in the Darbhanga, Monghyr, Bhágalpur and Purnea districts. The Maharaja of Darbhanga has subscribed Rs. 500 a month towards gratuitous relief, and a donation of Rs. 500 was received for the same object from Rai Gunga Pershad, who has also given loans of rice and private work to cultivators and labourers. The prescribed dole consists of half a seer of grain daily for an adult, or a quarter seer for a child; and it is generally composed half of rice and half of gram (cicer arietinum) or kurthi (dolichos biflorus) where available, and where kurthi is not available kerao (pisum arvense).

9. Death-rate and deaths from starvation.—There have been no reported deaths from starvation in any of the distressed areas during June. The death-rates for the affected parts are shown in column 15 of Statement A. It will be seen that the rate in the case of Muzaffarpur is as high as 6·27 for the month, or 72·32 per mille per annum. This very high rate is said to be attributable not so much to the scarcity as to the general unhealthiness of the season and to the prevalence of cholera and fever. It must be understood that instructions have been given not to attempt to report at the beginning of July the June death-rate, the statistics of which cannot be got in and accurately checked at so early a date, but to be content with reporting the death-rate of the preceding month, May. Some Collectors, however, have made up their figures specially for the month from 15th May to 15th June.

10. Loans.—Statement B shows the amounts advanced in loans under the Agriculturists' Loans Act and the Land Improvement Act up to date. The Collector of Muzaffarpur reports that the need for loans is now at an end, and it is now probable that there will be little need of further expenditure in this direction in any of the affected areas.

11. Maps.—The scarcity maps for the districts of Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Monghyr, Bhágalpur, and Dinajpur are enclosed herewith. The map for the Purnea district has been discontinued, as all relief works have been closed in that district.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

* Mean of 6 days.

Explanation.—Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the reading during the same period. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as percentage, saturated air being presented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The normal mean are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns of each station in the district, i.e. from total rainfall at the subdivisional stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of such stations. A rainy day is one for the week ending Saturday, the 23rd of July 1892.

Explanation.—... indicates that no rain has fallen. If the return for any day has not been received, the corresponding space is left blank. If any of the returns are wanting, the corresponding spaces in the total rainfall columns are left blank. With reference to the column of rainy days, the definition of a rainy day is when at least 0·1 inch of rain has fallen.

Calcutta, the 26th July 1892.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING 8 A.M., SATURDAY, THE 23RD OF JULY 1892.

At the close of the previous week the monsoon conditions over the Bay and over Bengal itself were very pronounced, and these conditions became even more strongly developed on the 17th, or the first day of the present week, when a further rather rapid fall of pressure over Bengal, which was largest at the northern stations, caused pressure to become about a seventh or an eighth of an inch below the normal at the central, eastern and northern stations, while over a large part of the Bay pressure was nearly normal. This low pressure over Bengal almost amounted to the existence of a barometric depression, and that such a depression was present in a feeble form was shown by the fact that there was a very distinct commencement of a cyclonic circulation of winds with a centre near Jessore. Hence on the 17th, baric gradients were very steep over Bengal and over the Bay, and a strong monsoon current continued to flow from the Bay over the province and towards the depression, and general rain was reported from almost all districts on this day, the falls being heavy in South-West Bengal, Chota Nagpur, and Bihár. On the 18th the area of low pressure had moved in a westerly direction and its centre was near Bankura, and the cyclonic circulation of winds accompanying it was rather more strongly developed. With this movement of the depression pressure had again fallen on the 18th over the south-western districts of the province, but over the northern and eastern districts and over the Bay pressure was rising rapidly, and hence baric gradients became even steeper on the 18th than they had been previously, and general and rather heavy rain was therefore again reported in all districts. On the 19th the feeble depression had again moved away in a westerly direction and had probably passed into the North-West Provinces, and though pressure had begun to rise moderately to rapidly at all except the extreme western stations of Bihár, where there was again a fall, yet baric gradients continued very steep, and a strong monsoon current was blowing over the Bay and over Bengal. Hence on the 19th also general heavy rain was reported, the rainfall being particularly heavy over Bihár and parts of Chota Nagpur. On the 20th the small depression had apparently quite ceased to exist, but a further small fall of pressure commenced in Bengal, so that baric gradients continued rather steep, and a strong monsoon current was blowing over the province, and rain was again fairly general on the 20th, though decidedly lighter than it had been on the 19th. On the 21st a further rapid fall of pressure took place, the fall equalling at the southern stations usually about a seventh of an inch, and pressure became about a fifth of an inch below the normal; while again there was a distinct tendency for a cyclonic circulation of winds to set up over South and West Bengal in connection with this low pressure area. The differences of pressure over the Bay and Bengal were therefore again unusually large, and strong monsoon winds and squally weather existed in the Bay, while the strong monsoon current brought up general rain to the greater part of the province, the falls being very heavy in North and parts of East Bengal. On the 22nd the area of low pressure was moving from South Bengal in a westerly direction, and the centre of the somewhat imperfect wind circulation and of the barometric depression was in the extreme west of Bengal, where Chaibassa showed a pressure no less than 0·271″ in defect of the normal. Again general rain was reported on the 22nd, though the falls were not very heavy. On the 23rd the feeble low pressure area had moved away from the province in a westerly direction, and pressure rose by about 0·15″ to 0·2″ at the south-eastern stations, while the increase was very small at the western stations, and with this westerly advance heavy rain set in over Chota Nagpur and parts of South Bihár, while lighter general rain was again reported in almost all districts. With the rapid increase of pressure which was taking place on the 23rd, pressure was therefore becoming more normal, though it was still in defect, and at the close of the week, though the differences of pressure were still causing a strong monsoon to flow over Bengal, yet the baric gradients were becoming decidedly less steep than they had been throughout the week. On the whole, therefore, during the week the monsoon conditions in the province have been unusually strongly developed, and hence rainfall has been in very considerable excess of the normal

Pressure.—As has been previously stated, pressure has been unusually low almost throughout the week, and the mean pressure for the province has hence been more than a tenth of an inch in defect. The smallest defects have been registered in Orissa, where at Cuttack and False Point they equalled 0·09″, but in Bihár the defects usually have varied from 0·12″ to 0·14″, and the average for the whole province has equalled about 0·12″. In Assam the average defect has been 0·11″.

Temperature.—Owing to the unusual heaviness of the rainfall, the temperature during the week has been decidedly below the normal. For the whole province there has been a mean defect of 1·5°, but defects of from two to three degrees have been recorded in South Bihár and Orissa. In Assam the defect has only equalled about half a degree.

Rainfall.—An average fall of more than six inches is reported in Chota Nagpur, which is nearly twice as large as usual. In South-West Bengal, East Bengal, and North and South Bihár the falls have averaged between four and five inches. In both sections of Bihár the falls have been about two inches above the normal, and hence these districts have received almost double the usual amount for the week. In South-West Bengal the excess equals little more than an inch, and the fall is about a third more than usual, while in East Bengal the falls have been rather less than ten per cent. in excess. In North Bengal the fall for the week has averaged about three and three-quarter inches, which is, however, nearly an inch larger than the normal, and hence all these divisions have received abundant rain during the week. On the other hand, Orissa has received the comparatively small fall of two and-a-half inches, or about two-thirds of an inch less than usual, but even in this district rain has fallen on more days than the normal number for the week.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the province for the week ending Saturday, the 23rd of July 1892:—

III.—The recruitment for the Provincial Service shall be—

(a) from students of the Indian Colleges, being natives of India as defined in the Statute 33 Vict. cap. 3, section 6; and (b) from Upper Subordinates of the Public Works Department.

The number of appointments annually shall, for the present, be 12 and 13 in alternate years; and they shall be distributed approximately in the ratio of 8 to 4 or 8 to 5 between the two classes, namely, students of the Colleges and the Upper Subordinates.

The detailed distribution of the appointments shall be approximately as follows:—

To lists directly under the Government of India, excluding Bengal ...	Five apprentices from Thomason College, Rurki, and three Upper Subordinates.
To the Bengal list ...	One apprentice from Sibpur, and, in alternate years, one Upper Subordinate.
To the Madras list ...	One from the Madras Engineering College, and, in alternate years, one Upper Subordinate.
To the Bombay list ...	One L. C. E. of the Bombay University, who has kept six terms in a School or College of Civil Engineering recognised by that University, and, in alternate years, one Upper Subordinate.

This distribution of the appointments shall be strictly followed, provided, on the one hand, that the prescribed number of students from each college qualify for the appointments on each list; and, on the other hand, that there are in the opinion of the Government of India, or Madras, or Bombay, or Bengal, as the case may be, Upper Subordinates who possess the necessary qualifications. If there is a deficiency in the number of qualified candidates of either the student or the Upper Subordinate Class, or of any of the Colleges, the full number of appointments on a list may be made up from the other class, or from some other college, the students of which are qualified.

IV.—Recruits from the Indian colleges shall be appointed as apprentices on Rs. 100 a month, and shall remain on probation until they have proved their thorough fitness for service in the Department. They shall then be promoted to 2nd grade Assistant Engineer on Rs. 250, and shall be required to pass the examination laid down in Public Works Code, Volume I, Chapter II, paragraphs 12-14, before promotion to 1st grade Assistant Engineer. If they are not recommended within three years for promotion to 2nd grade Assistant Engineer, they shall be liable to removal from the Department.

V.—The men of the Upper Subordinate Class to be selected annually for special promotion to the Provincial Establishment shall be ordinarily Sub-Engineers chosen for their ability and merit. These officers shall be posted to a suitable grade of the Provincial Service, and may be granted a personal allowance to protect them from loss of pay. Military Upper Subordinates shall not be appointed unless they consent to forego their military rank.

VI.—After an officer has been appointed under these regulations to the Provincial Service in a grade not below that of Assistant Engineer, 2nd grade, he shall belong to the general graded establishment of Engineers. He shall, if qualified, rise in the grades by promotion, and, as regards the higher grades, by special selection under the present rules, and shall receive the rate of salary laid down in regulation II above according to his grade.

2. Students of the Rurki, Sibpur, Poona, and Madras Colleges, who, on the date of this Resolution, have begun the courses of training for the appointments allotted to those Colleges in Resolution of 13th December 1884, and who, within three years from date of this Resolution, succeed in obtaining appointments, shall, on admission to the Engineer Establishment, be entitled to pay and pension under the rules hitherto obtaining. As regards leave, they shall be subject to the rules laid down for the Indian services. But these provisions shall only apply to the number of appointments, namely 9, allotted by the Resolution of 13th December 1884. In respect of all appointments above that number, these regulations shall take effect at once.
